Find Man Dead in His Auto

The body of a man, later identified as Charles Hawkins, of Bono, Ark., was found dead in a car at 8:45 a.m. Sunday on Highway 67, two and a half miles south of Fredericktown. When found the car's motor was running and it was determined that Mr. Hawkins died of monoxide gas poisoning. The body was taken to the Wilson Funeral Home in Fredericktown.

Troop E, State Highway Patrol, reports there were ten traffic accidents in its territory over the weekend; no fatalities except a horse, and 12 injured.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, the Patrol reports, a mile south of Advance on Highway 25, Homer Montgomery, 45, of Bloomfield, ran into and killed a horse; about two minutes later Berton Andrews, 64, of Bloomfield, ran into the same animal.

At 2:15 p.m., Sunday, the Patrol reports, six miles west of Dexter on a gravel road, David Lee Dowdy, 16, of Dexter, lost control of his car, ran off the road and turned over in a ditch. No injuries reported.

Driver Drops Cigarette; hit Train; Not Hurt

Shortly after 7:30 a.m. Sunday, at the North Street crossing, a car driven by Robert Simmons, 19, of 360 Osage Street, was hit by Frisco Freight No. 835, Don Miller, Chaffee, engineer, and badly damaged.

Simmons was shaken up but other wise escaped injury. He is reported to have told the investigating officer that he had stopped at the crossing to let the train go past and as he waited had dropped his cigarette on the floor. When he reached down to pick it up his foot slipped off the brake and his car lurched ahead and into the path of the train.

One Fatality In Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri counted only one traffic fatality over the snowy, wintry weekend. No deaths were reported Sunday, the highway patrol said.

Lewis McClintock, 59, of Chattanooga, Tenn., died early Saturday. He was struck and killed by a car on Lindbergh Boulevard in St. Louis County as he stepped from his own car to help another motorist in distress.

Only one highway death was reported in Kansas over the weekend.

Christmas Stamp Design Objected to

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Melvin R. Laird today criticized the 1964 Yuletide postal stamp and urged issuance of Christmas stamps with a religious theme such as a Nativity scene — "not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

In a letter to Postmaster General John A. Gronouski, the Wisconsin Republican said many controversial issues have arisen in recent years over the principle of separation of church and state.

"There is one issue, however, over which there should be no controversy because it in no way concerns the separation of church and state," Laird wrote. "That issue is the annual issuance of Christmas stamps by the Post Office Department.

"Again this year the Post Office has issued a highly commercialized stamp which purports to convey the 'spirit' of Christmas but which in no way symbolizes the true meaning of Christmas."

He has urged for years, Laird said, and in the past has introduced legislation calling on the Post Office Department to use the Nativity scene on its annual Christmas stamp.

The Post Office Department's special stamp committee, Laird said, turned down the Natvity scene for a Christmas stamp on the basis that it would commemorate a religious holiday.

"This argument has no relevance to this issue," he wrote. "Christmas is celebrated each year to honor the birthday of Jesus Christ. Even those who do not acknowledge Him as the Son of God recognize that He was a great figure in history.

"A Christmas stamp commemorating His birthday should in some way convey that fact and not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

Christ is the spiritual leader of millions of Americans and of millions the world over, Laird said.

Christmas mailers will have a choice of four seasonal red and green 5-cent stamps. The Post Office Department says the design is the first time in its history that such a four-in-one issue has been offered.

Cold and Hardship For Many

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Cold and hardship continued today for thousands of families in an ice-crippled eastern portion of New York. Power crews sought to restore heat and light for nearly 40,000 customers.

The sun glistened this morning on a winter wonderland created by ice-laden trees and power lines. Temperatures ranged down to 10 below zero in the wake of one of the state's worst storms.

The bitter cold added the threat of frozen water pipes for stricken residents, most of whom were in an area bounded generally by Albany on the south, Glens Falls on the north and Amsterdam-Gloversville on the west.

Three deaths were attributed to the weekend onslaught of snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Many schools closed Friday remained closed today. Others served as emergency centers for those driven from their homes. Churches, fire houses and other public places also were opened for emergency use, and cooking facilities were provided.

The Weather Bureau said tonight and Tuesday would be a bit warmer, amid scattered snow.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, touring evacuation centers in the Schenectady area Sunday night, declared, "We've had ice storms before, but none has ever been as bad as this."

He was talking about a combination of freezing rain, snow and ice accumulation that began Friday and that, by late Sunday night, froze community activities — from high school basketball games to worship services—to a stop.

Families began entering the emergency centers Friday night. Others followed as the storm damage left thousands of homes without electricity or heat.

At its peak, the storm had darkened the homes and businesses of more than 75,000 of 338,800 customers of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. in eastern-central New York.

A power company spokesman said Sunday night that the number of homes and businesses without electricity and heat was down to about 40,000.

But, a Schenectady County Civil Defense official said, it will be a few days before thousands of broken tree limbs and snapped power lines can be cleared from city streets and yards. Until then, many families will remain in evacuation centers.

Rob Safe of $75 At Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- The safe at the Estes-Walker-Knight, Inc., office was robbed Saturday night. Sheriff Ralph Temples reports entrance was gained by breaking open a back door.

The safe was 'punched' but not more than $75 was stolen.

To Seek Delay in Action

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A constitutional amendment prohibiting the Missouri General Assembly from acting on legislation for 60 days after a governor's inauguration will be introduced by State Sen. John J. Johnson.

Johnson, a St. Louis County Democrat, said he was "having all phases of this proposal researched thoroughly by experts so that I may present a well-rounded and complete plan for consideration as soon as possible."

Johnson said in an interview his plan is necessary because the new governor has only about two months after his election "to prepare recommendations on a budget, set up his administration and otherwise formulate a program under which the state will operate during the next biennium.

"It is grossly unfair to expect an incoming governor to cope as adequately as he should with the many problems he must face immediately upon assumption of office when he has only two months to prepare."

The senator, who won re-election to a second term last month, added that members of the General Assembly, "many of them new, are being sworn in at the same time as the governor and immediately must plunge into consideration and passage of legislation.

Under Johnson's proposal, after members of the General Assembly are sworn in and the inauguration of the governor, formalities of organizing the legislature would then be completed.

Johnson suggests that after the legislature is organized it should then recess until March 1, at which time it would reconvene to hear recommendations from the chief executive and begin considerating and acting on legislation.

During the interim, bills could be introduced and copies mailed to each legislator for study prior to reconvening on March 1. Johnson also recommended an April 1 deadline for introducing bills.

"It would eliminate to a great degree the present situation wherein members of both houses find a flood of bills pouring in on them in such quantities that they cannot adequately prepare themselves," Johnson added.

SUDANESE RIOTERS KILL 10 American Couple Injured

KHARTOUM, Sudan, (AP) — Arabs and Negroes battled through the night in Khartoum, and fighting continued today. An estimated 10 persons were reported killed, and scores were injured, including an American couple.

The racial warfare broke out when thousands of Negroes from South Sudan massed at the Khartoum Airport to protest domination by the East African nation's Arab majority. Then they invaded the city, smashing automobiles and attacking Europeans and Americans as well as Arabs.

Apparently the Europeans and Americans were mistaken in the dark for Arabs. "This is not against you," a leader of the mob told an English family and two Americans at the airport.

The rioters smashed windows at Communist China's embassy.

Iron shutters were lowered over the windows of the U.S. Embassy, and a Marine guard was on the alert.

Helmeted police and troops with bayonets dispersed the Negro mob. An hour later thousands of Arabs armed with sticks invaded the Negro quarter adjoining the airport. Bloody clashes were reported through the night.

The demonstration started at Khartoum Airport when a crowd of about 5,000 Negroes assembled to greet Interior Minister Clement Mboro. Mboro, a Negro, had been touring South Sudan, where Negro tribes are rebelling against the Arabs of the northern Sudan who dominate the government and the army.

At first held in check by the organizers, the crowd chanted slogans calling for the separation of the southern provinces from the rest of the country. Then the mob broke through the thin cordon of organizers and stormed the airport building, smashing doors and glass.

The crowd had grown to about 10,000 as it spilled into an adjacent residential section.

This is "Pearl Harbor Day" and Victims are Honored

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) -- An oil slick catches the rays of the subtropical sun, expanding in a rainbow of color on the water's surface.

A garland of brilliant flowers joins the wideing kaleidoscope.

A gray U. S. destroyer moves quietly through the water, its crew lining the rails, staring at Ford Island on this quiet Monday morning in December.

The place is Pearl Harbor; the time, the present.

The oil slick is from a sunken battleship; the flowers from an anonymous mourner who makes an annual pilgrimage to Pearl Harbor at this time each year.

The harbor is a serene scene, with the mountains of Oahu a backdrop for the blue water.

But 23 years ago today, a few minutes before 8 a.m., hell broke loose at Pearl and in 110 minutes, more than 2,000 Americans were dead or dying; another 1,700 were injured; eight battleships were sunk or disabled; four others were less damaged; and other smaller vessels were damaged, sunk or sinking.

Today is "Pearl Harbor Day."

Members of veterans organizations visit the white memorial which straddles the sunken battleship Arizona. Wreaths are placed in the chapel, prayers said.

Arriving quietly in ones and twos for the Navy - provided shuttleboat are some whose sons or husbands were among the 1,102 men still entombed in the Arizona.

You can still see parts of the rusted superstructure jutting from the water. Occasionally, oil still bubbles to the surface from the old ship.

The U. S. flag flies over her, signifying the USS Arizona remains a commissioned vessel of the fleet on this December 7, 23 years after the United States was plunged into World War II.

Police Report Five Arrests Over Weekend

Five arrests were made by city police over the weekend, with one defendant having three charges placed against him.

Eugene Smith, 211 Luther, arrested late Friday night on three separate charges, for excessive speed, resisting arrest and not having an operator's license, was given summons to appear in court.

Troy Tempelman, Canalou, charged with drunkenness, posted a $15 bond.

O. C. Phifer, Route One, Sikeston, charged with failure to yield for an emergency vehicle, was given summons to appear in court.

Lilly H. Yount, 711 N. Kingshighway, charged with failure to have car under control, was given summons to appear in court.

Paul Slinkerd, Carroll Street, charged with allowing dog to run loose, was given summons to appear in court.

Coast Guard Hunts Plane

NORFOLK, Va. AP -- The Coast Guard continued a search today for a Navy jet fighter interceptor plane with two men aboard that was presumed to have gone down in the Atlantic.

The F4B Phantom II jet was believed to have crashed about 35 miles off Birginia Beach on a routine training flight Saturday.

The crewmen were identified as Lt. J. G. Robert L. Carter, 25, the pilot, a native of Antioch, Calif., and Lt. J. G. James L. McDonald, 27, radio interceptor officer of Grantsville, W. Va.

Ringo May Lose Home

LONDON AP -- Ringo Starr, the Beatle drummer who lost his tonsils last week, may also lose his home.

His neighbors have petitioned his landlord to move him out of his $125-a-week apartment in Westminster. His teen-age fans are driving them crazy.

"Ringo's tonsil operation has given us our first peace for months," said Lathom Gedge, a neighbor.

"Teen-age girls scream and shriek all day long," said his wife. "They get hysterical, fight and kick each other and chase every car that arrives in case Ringo is inside."

"It's a drag," said Ringo, due out of University College Hospital on Thursday.

"I wish I could do something about it -- but I can't control the fans."

Seven Weekend Emergencies

Seven persons were treated and dismissed at the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital over the weekend.

Bruce Hampton, Sikeston, slipped and twisted foot and Shirley Littleton, Sikeston, cut finger washing dishes.

Ricy Fusten, Essex, fell at home; Donald L. Benaist, Albuquerque, N. M., shut car door on finger: J. C. Campbell, Sikeston, slipped and hit head; Tracy Mackey, Sikeston, fell into tub of hot water and Charles Scott, Sikeston, fell and cut forehead.

Burch in Trouble With GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican governors have started a fire within their party that could make it difficult for National Chairman Dean Burch to command the broad-base support he needs to hold his job.

Although they stopped short in a declaration at Denver, Colo., Saturday of calling collectively for Burch's resignation, there appeared to be majority belief among the 18 who attended that after Burch canvasses the situation thoroughly he may decide to step out.

This was based in part on reports given the governors in closed session that as many as 70 of the 138-member Republican National Committee may favor replacement of Burch.

Burch's own canvass of his strength within the committee was said to have been somewhat disappointing to him.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, former head of the committee, made the point on a television broadcast Sunday — ABC "Issues and Answers" — that the chairman has to have broad support within the committee. He added he didn't know anybody "who would want to stay in that position that didn't have support of his own committee."

Morton, who had announced his backing of Burch, said it is up to the members of the National Committee and no one else to determine whether Burch should be replaced.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, the defeated GOP presidential nominee, has said he is standing firmly behind Burch. But even some of Goldwater's firmest supporters among the governors qualified their endorsement of the national chairman.

Gov. Tim Babcock of Montana said Burch should have the opportunity to end "the factionalism which is disrupting us." If the chairman can't do that, Babcock said, he would expect Burch "to step down for the good of the party and I would be among those asking him to do so."

BONN, Germany (AP) — President Park Chung Hee of South Korea arrived today for a week-long state visit to West Germany and Berlin.

No Change in Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Defense Department team of top civilian leaders, headed by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, is expected to remain intact at least until mid-1965.

McNamara reportedly has discussed with key members of his team his wish that they stay on and see the Pentagon's programs through the Congress next session. They were said to have agreed.

This is taken to mean that McNamara himself intends to remain in office at least that long.

Associates said they had been unable to detect any signs that McNamara is thinking of stepping out. He is nearing the end of his fourth year as secretary of defense, still well short of the record of 56 months set by Charles E. Wilson in the Eisenhower administration.

The only member of McNamara's top group to resign recently was Thomas D. Morris, assistant secretary of defense for installations and logistics. He will be succeeded by Paul Ignatius, who is being promoted from undersecretary of the Army.

A change in the military high command will come in early February when Gen. Curtis E. LeMay retires as Air Force chief of staff.

Gen. John P. McConnell, who has been the Air Force's second in command since midsummer, is likely to succeed LeMay.

Adm. David L. McDonald will finish a two-year term as chief of naval operations in June. He probably will be given a second term.

Otherwise, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler is only a few months into his term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The same goes for Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff. Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Marine Corps commandant, still has three more years to go in a four-year term.

Batteries Stolen

Robert Green, 1409 E. Gladys, reported to police that someone had stolen the batteries from his Case and John Deere tractors, sometime between Thursday and Sunday. The tractors were parked at his farm on the Ables Road, and batteries were valued at $65.

Dalton Names Judge

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. John M. Dalton today appointed James A. Finch Jr. of Cape Girardeau to the Missouri Supreme Court. He will replace veteran Judge C. A. Leedy Jr. who is retiring Dec. 31.

Finch, a Republican, was one of three nominees submitted to the governor Saturday by the Appellate Judicial Commission.

Dalton said Finch, 57, "is a personal friend of mine for many years. I've tried cases against him and I've tried cases with him. He is not only a top lawyer but a top citizen."

The governor said the panel was an excellent one. The other two nominees were Circuit Judge James D. Clemens of Bowling Green and Robert G. Brady, a commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Dalton said if Missouri is to have a truly nonpartisan court there should be some Republicans. He said he has appointed three Republicans so far to the judicial system.

Finch has been on the University of Missouri Board of Curators since 1951 and has been president of the board since 1941. Dalton said his work there has been outstanding.

He formerly served as chairman of the late Gov. James T. Blair's Advisory Council on Higher Education.

On the high court he will take the place of the last of judges dating from the Pendergast days in Missouri politics. Judge Leedy was appointed in 1933 by the late Gov. Guy B. Park and has been reelected every time since then.

He is stepping down at 69 to move to Kansas City where he plans to do some writing.

The governor deferred naming a new judge to the Kansas City Court of Appeals but said he might have an appointment there in a few days.

The Appellate Judicial Commission gave him a panel of three nominees Saturday that included Circuit Judge William H. Kimberlin of Harrisonville, Fred L. Howard of Jefferson City, now secretary of the State Reciprocity Commission, and Jackson County Circuit Judge Harry A. Hall.

Hall is a Republican, the other two are Democrats.

Dr. Teller To Speak

ROLLA, Mo. Dec 5-- Mr. Edward Teller, renowned nuclear physicist, will speak to the University of Missouri at Rolla Nuclear Engineering Society at 7:30 p.m. on Friday evening December 11th. Teller will speak before the group in the auditorium of the civil engineering building and the speech is open to the public.

Dr. Teller was born in Hungary and educated in Europe, and in 1941 became a United States citizen. His early research dealt with theoretical physics, but discovery of the fission process and the menace of Nazi Germany soon drew him into the small group of men who started the atomic energy effort in America.

Dr. Parker Finds Unprecedented Numbers of Students at Nation's Colleges With a Grand Total of 2,090,638; M.U. has 30,304

(EDITOR: Dr. and Mrs. Parker were residents of Sikeston from 1938-1941 when Dr. Parker was a teacher of history and speech and debating coach at Sikeston High School.)

CINCINNATI, OHIO, -- "In veritable academic phalanx, college and university students marched onto American campuses this year in unprecedented numbers and percentage increases," the University of Cincinnati's Dr. Garland G. Parker reported here tonight.

In his annual survey of collegiate enrollment for School and Society, educational journal, Dr. Parker finds 1,111 accredited universities and four-year colleges have admitted 2,090,638 full-time and a grand total of 4,118,735 students.

Full - time students are up 10.1 per cent in the comparably reporting institutions as against increases of 6.4 per cent in 1963 and 6.2 per cent in 1962. The grand total is 9.3 per cent larger than last year.

"This is the year of the spectacular for freshmen" Dr. Parker noted. He is dean of admissions and registrar at Cincinnati university.

Freshman attendance is 17.3 per cent larger than last year -- "the largest percentage increase that is likely to occur in the foreseeable future," Dr. Parker pointed out.

"The capacity of the nation's institutions of higher learning to accept this fantastic increase is nothing short of phenomenal," he added.

Despite predictions of diminishing importance in this highly technical age, the liberal arts and the pure sciences are enjoying a renaissance, the Cincinnati statistician learned. There are also 17.3 per cent more freshmen in these fields than last year and by far the larger proportion of all current freshmen have elected these fields.

But education freshmen constitute the percentage leader among the designated first-year groups -- 18.0 per cent more than last year. Other freshman increases by fields of study include:

Business administration, 16.8 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 3.0 per cent after two successive declining years).

Engineering, 11.0 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 1.2 per cent and losses in 1962 and 1961).

Agriculture, 12.4 per cent ("its first significant increase in many years").

Nursing, 15.9 per cent.

Today's freshmen "are only the front line of a vast throng on their way to colleges in this and the next decade," Dr. Parker warned in declaring this is no time for complacency.

"If we take account only of the pool of potential applicants available, we may expect another 10 to 12 per cent increase of freshmen next year," Dr. Parker said. "In 1966 there may be a small decrease, in 1967 and 1968 there will be little change, but steady increases should be resumed in 1969 and thereafter.

"As the massive freshman classes of this year and next move into the upper classes and are replaced by almost equally ponderous groups, our institutions of higher education will find themselves grappling with the educational challenge of the century.

"If they are not ready, a crash program of preparation should be the order of the day. All the resources and educational manpower that can be mustered in both public and private areas will be needed to take care of this academic host.

"This task is a responsibility that should be felt by every citizen."

Turning to full-time students (including freshmen) as the "source from which the nation derives its business administrators, engineers, doctors, lawyers, ministers, pharmacists, scientists, teachers, and other professionals," Dr.

Women drivers have borne the brunt of many heated conversations, cartoons and jokes. However, there probably is much truth to these stories when you consider the little driving practice women get.

Many women drive as seldom as a few times a month, usually because their husbands take the family car during the day and then drive the family whereever they are going at night. The only time these women get an opportunity to drive is to an occasional club meeting or on a night out with the girls.

Some women may have the car during the day, but their driving practice is limited to taking the children to school, visiting the local shopping center or running errands in their own neighborhoods. All their driving practice is limited to daylight driving in an area well known to them.

It isn't any wonder that these women are unsure of their driving ability and make mistakes when they drive at night or in unfamiliar areas.

In order for a woman to become a better driver at night, she should learn to depend on signs rather than the familiar landmarks she uses during the day. Because many road signs are reflective and can be seen for long distance at night, the woman who chooses routes with these highly visible signs to guide her will have little trouble.

A woman who drives infrequently at night should familiarize herself with special night driving regulations such as the reduced speed limits in some states.

She should also exercise more caution when passing other cars at night because the entire outline of an oncoming car cannot be seen and she will have to judge its distance from her only by the distance of the car's headlights.

EARLY CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

A "Proud Post Office Has Its Chest Out" headline was followed by a Washington report that our swift couriers may accomplish their appointed Christmas rounds with record speed and economy this year. Provided, among other things, the department has record co-operation with its "mail early" program.

Weighting down the appointed rounds will be millions of Christmas cards, one of the nicest things of the Yule season. They can't be mailed early unless they are purchased and addressed early.

Lets get with it.

"It's surprising how few people can tell you the police telephone number when you ask them," Chief Gilbert L. Deyle of the Baltimore county police said recently. "However, they can quickly tick off without any hesitancy the numbers of department stores, cab stands and markets they have memorized.

"This is all well and good, but in the police business seconds count and can mean the difference between life and death in an emergency," Chief Deyle continued. "Failing to know the emergency number and routine call number means a loss of time in obtaining emergency aid."

To correct this situation and implant the police department telephone number firmly in the minds of Baltimore county citizens, Chief Deyle has ordered bumper stickers, bearing the department phone number in prominent letters, affixed to all police vehicles in the city. As easily readable by night as by day because they are made of a reflective material, the stickers will be a constant reminder of the number to call when Baltimoreans need to phone the police.

Chief Deyle hopes that the constant exposure to the police phone number will result in its memorization by most of the population.

The police official has also enlisted the aid of business firms in publicizing the number by having them use bumper stickers on their trucks and delivery vehicles.

"Why, of course," the clerk admitted.

"GIMME"

Something dangerous has happened to this country -- spread of the cowardly idea that the world owes you and me a living just because we're here.

Socialists love to mouth the Declaration "Life, Liberty and Happiness" but they omit the most important word -- "Pursuit." Pursuit takes energy and intestinal fortitude which beatniks and rabble rousers and their rabble haven't got and haven't the courage to acquire.

"Automation took my job of carriage driver (or ice-man or whatever) so you owe me relief." Get out and drive yourself, and if you haven't got a skill, be the best floor sweeper or day laborer in town -- and you'll get along.

If you dropped out of school or won't go to night school because it's too hard, whose fault is it but yours that you haven't got a job or a salable skill?

This once - great nation was built on self-respect, not self-pity. "Gimme" can wreck it.

Medical people have found that one of the biggest obstacles to getting people to take preventive health measures is the apparently natural feeling that "It can't happen to me."

And the more serious the disease and the greater the belief that it is incurable, the stronger this feeling seems to be.

This was the most important fact to come out of an 18-month survey recently concluded by the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

In the study, 1,500 adults across the country, selected as a typical cross-section, were asked about their attitudes to three diseases of varying severity: tooth decay, tuberculosis and cancer.

In each case, the majority felt that other people were more likely to contact the diseases than they themselves. But with the most serious of the three, "the thought of contracting cancer would seem to be . . . so painful that almost a third of the people . . . could not admit it at all."

With such an attitude, it is no surprise that 90 per cent of the interviews had not had a cancer test during the previous 10 years.

The researchers recommend that health educators place less emphasis on the seriousness of cancer and TB and start stressing science's growing ability to detect and cure these diseases in their early stages, even before any symptoms are evident.

SMART KIDS

Countless generations of kids have known it intuitively, but at last there is scientific proof:

Some people are allergic to contact with water.

Two physicians in Philadelphia, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, told of studies of three patients who developed hives after contact with water or sweat.

That's the rub -- er - itch, kids. Unless you can break out in a rash, may as well face the fact that you and that bathtub are going to have lots of encounters.

DRESS TIPS: It is difficult for the average consumer to judge the quality of a suit of clothes. Much that affects the wearability, appearance and even the fit of the garment is hidden in the construction. You must therefore buy largely on faith -- faith in your own judgment; faith in the brand-name or store-name label that the suit carries and, most importantly, faith in the recommendations of the store where the purchase is being made.

HOW LONG?

The controversy over the High Mountain Sheep Dam on the Snake River has been going on for years. It has been a classic example of the endless and bitter political opposition to private enterprise in the field of electric power.

Meanwhile, of course, a needed development, designed to cost more than $200 million has been interminably delayed. The surge it would give to businesses of many kinds and to employment has been blocked. And a major new source of taxation that would follow private utility construction and operation of the dam has so far been lost.

A short time ago it looked as if the green light had at least been lit. The Federal Power Commission licensed an organization of several investor-owned utilities to build the dam. This, one would have thought, was the end of the matter. But the socialist forces never give up, no matter how much damage they may do to power-hungry regions. A public power system announces that it is going to the courts to argue that it should be given "preference" under the federal power law. "Preference" for officialism sounds strange in a republic.

How much more delay this will cause is a matter of conjecture. The private utility group is all ready to go ahead--using private earnings and savings instead of tax money. The FPC decision held that it has the superior plan and should be given priority. How long can progress be needlessly blocked by the plea of "preference" for public plants?

WELFARE SECRETARY

Anthony Celebrezze, new Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, knows many welfare problems firsthand. From the age of six, the Catholic Digest notes, he hawked newspapers on "Celebrezze's corner" in Cleveland, labored in a railroad section gang, waited on table, drove a truck, boxed for small fees in club shows, and dug ditches.

SECURITY AND FREEDOM TOO

The "search for security" has helped build civilizations and it has contributed to their destruction. Right now in the United States how we decide to pursue the goal of security will determine what kind of a country our children will have to live in.

For years politicians have found the magic of success to lie in the direction of making government responsible for solving more of the individual's problems at taxpayer expense. But the drawbacks to this course are daily becoming more apparent. As every person knows who has ever been connected with a government program involving the payment of money, when the state sets out to take care of us, it is also going to tell us what to do. The minority who need help can be cared for in every respect without it being necessary for the majority to paddle around with all heads at the same level in a lukewarm paternalistic pea soup. Alternatives are open as long as compulsory public welfare is prevented from mushrooming and eliminating by taxation, the individual's ability to plan for his future security.

The insurance industry makes available one of the answers to the welfare state--and it works in two ways. Through insurance, and in line with his own resources and particular needs and wishes, the individual can provide for his future and that of his family or his business. Secondly, every time an insurance policy is sold, capital is accumulated to finance the growth of free enterprise to build a home, an office building, a factory, a pipeline, etc. Since the end of World War II, life insurance companies alone have made available more than $42 billion, not tax money, to help over 4 million families acquire their own homes.

The insurance industry helps build job producing free enterprise that can do more to bring security and a better life than can a debilitating welfare state.

DEMOTE CONGRESS?

With the changes of many faces in the 89th Congress, there are also likely to be some changes in the ground rules.

For some time, now, the "liberal" Democrats have been chafing at the restraints to hasty enactment of legislation posed by seniority, committees, unlimited debate (in the Senate) and other age-old trappings of our Congress.

Now they will be in a position to impose their will.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark has drawn up proposals for "reforming" the Senate to maximize an administration's chances of speedy action on its programs and minimize any discussion of the opposition views.

The House during the 88th Congress effected a compromise that reduced the ability of the Rules Committee to cool off legislative proposals before they reached the floor. Now compromise may not be necessary, and more power may pass from committees.

With the new majorities and with the clear break of the conservative South from the mainstream of the Democratic party, changes in the new Congress may be major.

This is all a part of the gradual transfer of power from the legislative to the executive and judicial branches. Increasingly in recent decades administrations have proposed legislation and written it, then demanded that it be enacted. And the Supreme Court has been accused even by some of its own Justices of appropriating powers that belong to Congress by writing new laws.

There is no question that all this makes Government easier. There is much question that it makes it better. The Presidency is decided by the whole nation, and no President since Washington ever could claim to represent all States. The Supreme Court is not even elected.

Congress is the branch that is close to the people. There are many divergent points of view in the U.S. deserving of attention, and if Congress is weakened all of us will lose.

THE KNOWLEDGE PILEUP

One odd characteristic of our time is that the increase in knowledge has far outrun our means of utilizing knowledge. One result of this is much duplication of effort in research. Another result is, as Surgeon General Luther Terry points out, that full use is not being made of medical advances.

The literature of findings in chemistry is often cited as an example of what is happening in various branches of science. It has been estimated that if a chemistry graduate did nothing but read professional journals in his field, he would fall behind 10 years every year; the material published is vastly more than one man can absorb, or even scan.

In medicine, according to Surgeon General Terry, the communications failure has an immediate impact on individual lives. Suffering and death occur, he reports, because new knowledge "is not reaching the people who can use it."

Considerable thought is being devoted to finding better ways of making new data available to those who can use it, but there has been no breakthrough. More and more, it appears that science will have to solve the problem of communications if it is not to bog down in its own findings.

BIKES IN BLOOM

Right behind the first crocus, the door-to-door seed salesman, Junior's first crush, and other sure signs of Spring, will come an army of 55 million bicyclists. For the ever-growing two-wheel set, Spring is THEIR time. Away hockey sticks and sleds, away boots, skis and galoshes, and out with the faithful two-wheelers.

Spring biking gets an added boost this year in the person of the youngest of the young-in-heart, Dr. Paul Dudley White. As National Chairman of American Bike Month this May, Dr. White is calling for all America to join him. He says, "The bicycle can undoubtedly add years to life, and health to those years. Some of the happiest hours of my life have been spent on a bike. It has kept me young in mind and body." It will do the same for you.

American Bike Month is sponsored annually by the domestic bicycle industry, in a major effort to assure safer, happier riders. They accomplish this by offering free bike inspections at bike stores all over America, by offering free booklets on the fun of safe cycling, and by cooperating with PTA's and other civic and service organizations in conducting community bike safety programs.

Dr. White has joined the campaign this last May because he believes in its merit. He believes it is worthwhile. He also believes, as he has said so often, "Cycling is one of the best ways to achieve and maintain physical fitness."

Throughout May, Dr. White campaigned for more cycling for fun and good health by people of all ages, and for increased cycling facilities -- more bike paths and trails in our parks and recreation area, more bike tracks, more safe cycling routes in our towns and cities -- more opportunity for America's legions of riders to enjoy their health giving sport in safety and pleasure.

The whole nation, we think, not just bike riders and their parents, should salute Dr. White for his unselfish dedication to the health and happiness of others. And wouldn't American Bike Month be a good time for everyone to look around their own town, survey they own facilities, and see what they can do to make their own area a safer and happier place for our many riders?

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The automobile explosion in America is outdistancing the population explosion.

About 77 per cent of U.S. men and 46.5 per cent of the women have a driver's license.

Board chairmen of banks with assests of under $300 million earn an average of $39,000 a year, those with more than $300 million in assets earn $72,000.

Speaking of money, did you know that a nickel is75 per cent copper, and that a dollar is 10 per cent copper and only 90 per cent silver?

If you have a normal appetite, you consume a million calories a year. This includes some 200 soft drinks, which account for roughly 17,000 calories.

Quotable notables: "This is daddy's bedtime secret for today: Man is born broken. He lives by mending. The grace of God is glue." —Eugene O'Neill.

No wonder your eyes sometimes get tired. In a year they move up, down or sideways more than 36 million times.

The odds are against having a white Christmas in over three-fourths of the nation. In the 17th century Massachusetts had a law imposing a five dollar fine on anyone making merry on Christmas Day. In Connecticut the people were forbidden to make mince pies or play cards or any musical instruments except drums and trumpets.

Why wars are getting more expensive: In the time of Julius Caesar, to slay an enemy cost 75 cents. In the Civil War, the mortality expense was about $5,000 a man; in World War I $50,000, and in World War II more than $125,000.

Thomas Jefferson was the first gourmet among U.S. presidents. He popularized the tomato, and also is believed to be the first host to serve spaghetti and ice cream in America.

"The best cure for getting up on the wrong side of the bed is to get into it a little earlier." — Arnold Glasow.

It was Maurice Chevalier, now 74, who observed, "Old age isn't so bad when you consider the alternative."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Here is the roll call of more congressmen who have been busy junketing abroad at the taxpayers' expense.

The venerable Mike Kirwan, Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, aged 78, and a champion junketeer, is keeping up his record. He has been on an inspection trip to the South Sea islands, particularly Samoa, one of the most delightful island paradises of all.

While the snow has been falling on Youngstown and the steelworkers are worried about automation throwing them out of jobs, Mike has been inspecting public works in the South Seas.

Most of the buildings in Samoa are built with thatch roofs, and it's difficult to ascertain exactly what Mike will inspect. Possibly he'll look over the fish situation in his capacity as a fish expert. He put across a $10 million fish aquarium for the District of Columbia when its residents would much rather have had money to improve their schools.

Rep. Charles R. Jonas, the North Carolina Republican, is covering the same South Sea islands on a separate junket, expenses also defrayed by the taxpayers. Why Jonas, a Republican, and Kirwan, a Democrat, couldn't team up together is not known.

Another interesting trip is being enjoyed by Reps. Otto Passman, D-La., and John Rhodes, R-Ariz. Though they belong to opposite political parties, they were able to get together for the delightful duty of checking on foreign aid in such interesting areas as Beirut, Lebanon; various cities in India; Bangkok, the fascinating capital of Thailand; Hong Kong, the shopping metropolis of the world; and Tokyo, the largest city in the world.

Passman prides himself on cutting the foreign aid budget. Last spring he bemoaned the fact that his colleagues wouldn't go along with him on any further cuts. They argued that President Johnson had cut enough. On this trip Otto is trying to figure out more cuts.

But in Hong Kong he will stop in to see his favorite jeweler to buy more watches. Otto has the largest collection of watches of any member of Congress — almost as many as he has suits of clothes and considerably more than he has Cadillacs. Otto confides that he always keeps two Cadillacs.

--TOURING LATIN AMERICA--

Another group from the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture one year ago delayed the agricultural appropriations for six months while he argued with Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia over the location of a peanut laboratory.

Russell wanted it in Georgia; Whitten wanted it in Mississippi. They compromised by placing a Southeastern Research Laboratory in Georgia and a Cotton Weed Control Laboratory in Whitten's district in Mississippi.

Included in Whitten's junket to Latin America are Robert Michel, Ill., Elford Cederberg, Mich., and Glenard Lipscomb, Calif., all Republicans, and John Slack, Democrat of West Virginia.

Another Appropriations Committee member, Rep. John J. Flynt, Jr., D-Ga., is on a pleasant junket to the Far East including Japan, Korea, Formosa, Hong Kong, and Manila. He will get back just before Christmas -- Dec. 22 -- presumably with a nice collection of Christmas presents.

Note: Congratulations to Rep. George Mahon of Texas, new chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, for ruling out foreign junkets for lame duck congressmen. He has said that since they can't participate in more legislation, they don't need to travel abroad. However, he has not ruled out junkets for reelected congressmen such as those listed above.

--AMA AND LBJ--

Officials of the American Medical Association may not know it, but one of the factors which got President Johnson's back up was a series of health ads in the Texas newspapers just a couple of days before the election.

One ad appearing in the Dallas Morning News on Nov. 1 featured this headline: "Health is always a big topic in national politics." It then proceeded to quote various medical authorities and previous press reports regarding Johnson's 1955 heart attack, casting doubt about his ability to survive four years in office. The medical quotes gave the appearance of being prepared by members of the medical profession, even though the ad was signed by "The Goldwater For President Committee."

The advertisement concluded with this appeal: "If you vote for Lyndon Johnson, you could be voting to make Hubert Humphrey president.

"Never before has the extreme left had it's man so close to the presidency.

"Vote for Barry Goldwater."

President Johnson has long been for Medicare. But since the appearance of this and other similar ads, he is determined to put medical care for the elderly at the top of his legislative program.

Note: Despite various ads of this kind, Johnson carried Texas by a whopping 698,173 margin.

--ADVICE TO GOLDWATER--

Syndicate salesmen peddling the Barry Goldwater column to newspapers should steer clear of the Syracuse Herald-Journal, edited by stanch Republican Casey Jones.

Jones, in a recent editorial, captioned, "Throw the bum out," advised his fellow Republicans as follows:

"Sen. Goldwater has always been in the department store business. If in his capacity as a store executive he had advocated the stocking of goods that did not sell and directed the writing of advertising that did not attract . . . his directors would not ask him to continue in a position of leadership. Someone would get up in a directors' meeting, pound the table, and demand that the company 'throw the bum out.'

"Barry Goldwater," concluded editor Jones, "has led the Republican party to that state."

Scores of Crime Syndicate Bombings Warn Against Attempts to Crack Labor Rackets

Chicago: -- It sounded much like Saigon, but it was in suburban Proviso township, Illinois, that the black powder bomb exploded the other Sunday evening. Apparently terror by night can no more be halted in the center of this nation than it can in the heartland of Viet Nam.

The blast which wrecked a restaurant by blowing out an entire wall and digging a nine-foot hole in the concrete floor was the eleventh such attack by bomb or arson in the past four months, the 37th such assault on a restaurant since Jan. 1962 and the 80th bombing in less than two years in this area.

Though Chicago swarms with city, county, state and private investigators, not one of these crimes has been solved. The latest attack was on the new Homestead restaurant now being built by Ashley Ricketts who testified before the McClellan labor rackets committee on July 16, 1958.

The Ricketts people have been in the catering business for years yet the Homestead owner told authorities that he knew no reason for the attack on his property. Neither did the owners of the other restaurants, taverns and gin mills which have been blasted or burned.

Millions of dollars worth of such properties has been destroyed in the heart of Chicago and in its suburbs. Yet, as one authority put it, "It is unbelievable what has happened and that no one will talk or that a real suspect has not been found."

No local or federal authority will speculate on the record, but there's no doubt some of them believe this is the Chicago crime syndicate's warning to all comers not to believe that the tightest and toughest gangland of all is cracking or can be penetrated as other Cosa Nostra bands have been.

Apparently the mob which has been deep in the labor, supply, trucking, construction and entertainment rackets here has succeeded in remaining impregnable. None of its top leaders has been jailed. None has disappeared, as did Joe "Bananas." None has been assassinated, as was Albert (the Executioner) Anastasia.

They are known to snear at the Eastern Cosa Nostra units, many of whose leaders are in prison or are under tough indictments. Typical of the troubles besetting the Eastern "crowd" is the coming trial of the powerful trucking and garment shop operator, James Plumeri, alias Jimmie Doyle, uncle of Johnny Dio. The latter was named by Joe Valachi as a force in the Cosa Nostra who once was powerful in a series of unions.

Doyle is an ex-convict whose tax trial soon will make headlines in New York City. This is a federal indictment. Thus the U. S. government has been able to zero in on a man who refused to deny or affirm he was a member of the Mafia when he was questioned by the McClellan committee on July 3, 1958.

The Chicago syndicate has been able to stay out of the federal reach by sticking to its bombing and arson tactics. These are local and state violations.

However, the Justice Dept's Organized Crime and Rackets section has a plan to counter the terror if it can get the new Congress to heed the desperation of the restaurateurs, small businessmen and legitimate unions.

It can be revealed that the department has prepared a bill which would amend the "travel law" passed on Sept. 13, 1961. This law makes it a crime to cross state lines, or go beyond U. S. borders, or use any facilities of interstate and foreign commerce, including the mails, with intent to distribute the profits of unlawful activity.

It is also a federal crime, under this law, to commit any violence to further unlawful activities across state lines or to facilitate, promote, manage or establish means for carrying on unlawful activity across state lines.

The Justice Department wants to add arson to the law, as well as the bombing of business which results in fires. Thus the use of materials originating in other states and resulting in acts of arson could be made a crime. Or the importation of thugs to set the fires would also fall under federal law.

This would enable the FBI to move in. If the bureau could trace the arsonists, it could crack the Chicago terrorists -- and prove that terror by night can be wiped out of our land.

SYLVIA and BENNO RABINOF

Sylvia & Benno Rabinof To Present Concert December 12 For Community Concert Ass'n

Mr. Sam Harbin, President of the Delta Community Concerts has announced that the Association has changed the date of the first concert to Saturday night, December twelfth at 8 o'clock. The Executive Committee of the concert association made this change to avoid the pending conflict with the programs being planned by the First Methodist Church of Sikeston and the Charleston Public Schools. The performance of the Rabinofs, now scheduled for Saturday, promises to be one of the outstanding musical events of Sikeston's history.

Benno and Sylvia Rabinof have literally charmed their audiences in every part of the world. Asia, Africa, Europe, Middle East, and Near East have listened to the astounding repertoire which these two artists have mastered, and loved it. They have been acclaimed for their fine interpretation of the greatest classical music as well as for their sympathetic performance of the best of our contemporary composers' works.

The fact that at the age of nineteen, Mr. Rabinoff was presented to the New York concert audiences by his teacher the great Leopold Auer himself who conducted the New York Philharmonic for the performance of the very Concerto which the composer Tchaikovsky had dedicated to Auer, speaks for the native ability of Benno Rabinof; while he received his instruction from Auer who was unexcelled, as a teacher.

Mrs. Rabinof is certainly equal to the challenge of her husband's excellence as an artist. She made her debut in Paris at the age of eighteen as a pupil of the great teacher Serkin and the matchless Paderewski, and is now recognized as one of the foremost women pianists of today and a composer of more than 150 major works.

These, then, are the artists who will open the Delta Community Concert Association season on Saturday, December 12, at eight o'clock at the Sikeston Junior High School Auditorium.

Miss Jacqueline Waller Is Bride of Thomas Chambers

MALDEN -- The wedding of Miss Jacqueline L. Waller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Waller of Malden, to Thomas Wayne Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Chambers also of Malden, took place Saturday night, November 21, in the Methodist Church.

The altar table was centered with a lighted brass cross franked by vases of white pompons and gladioli and Fujji mums. The natural arch of the church was outlined in smilax and the altar and choir railing were draped in white satin with garlands of smilax. The bridal aisle was marked with lighted tapers, white satin bows and greenery.

The Rev. Robert McCoy performed the double ring ceremony at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph Arends played the pre-nuptial selections and accompanied Warren Arends as he sang "At Dawning" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight brocaded taffeta. The original gown, designed by Priscilla of Boston, was fashioned on empire lines with a rounded neckline and long fitted sleeves. The semi-sheath skirt formed unpressed pleats at the back waistline extending into a circular train. A double-tiered veil of imported illusion cascaded from a taffeta pillbox. She wore a single strand of pearls, and white satin shoes completed her attire. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of tan Fujji mums and Cymbidium orchids with green velvet tubing.

Mrs. Neb Thomas of Harrisburg, Ark., was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Mary Ann Wilbanks, Amory, Miss.; Mrs. James Freeman, Memphis, Tenn.; and Miss Ann Waller, Malden. They wore floor length gowns of gold brocade taffeta designed with a fitted bodice, scooped neckline, and elbow length sleeves. The skirt featured unpressed pleats with a small self-bow at the back waistline. They wore matching satin shoes and headpieces of gold leaves with a circular veil. The attendants carried crescent arrangements of bronze mums and artificial fruit with brown velvet ribbon.

Ushers were Neb Thomas of Harrisburg, and Bud Deen of St. Louis. Victor Patterson of Cape Girardeau served as best man and groomsmen were Gordon Waller, brother of the bride, Bill Chambers, brother of the bridegroom, and Darrell Mills of St. Louis.

Mrs. Waller wore for her daughter's wedding a bronze lace suit with pale pink chiffon blouse. Her hat was fashioned of fall brown and gold leaves with accessories of bronze. Pink roses formed her corsage. Mrs. Chambers, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige wool jersey sheath with a small hat of mink. Her accessories were of brown with a brown Cymbidium corsage.

A reception was held at the Coach Light Inn. The bride's table was covered with a white brocaded cloth overskirted with white net, caught up at the corners with clusters of wedding bells. The four-tiered columned cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. At the base of the cake was a confection Bible with the couple's names and wedding date, Garlands of smilax entwined the base of the cake and extended to the silver candelabra. Silver punch bowls were at each end of the table. Miss Julie Wise of Columbia, Miss., and Mrs. Bob Willis of Pleasant Hill assisted in serving the guests cake and punch. Miss Linda Shelby of Clarksdale, Miss., was in charge of the guest book.

For traveling to an undisclosed destination, the bride changed to a dark brown and white checked tweed three-piece suit with brown lizzard accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet. The couple are now at home at 707 Stevenson, Malden.

The bride graduated from Malden High School and Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus. The bridegroom graduated Malden High School and is in the accounting business.

Cardinals Hoping For N.Y. Victory

It wasn't so very long ago that the St. Louis Cardinals were vitally concerned with what went on in Yankee Stadium in New York and it will be that way again next Saturday.

This time it's the National Football League's Eastern Division title going up for grabs and the Cardinals will be the football variety instead of baseball.

The Cleveland Browns had a chance to wrap up the Eastern title Sunday but lost to St. Louis 28-19 allowing the Cards to creep within a half-game of the lead. Cleveland visits New York Saturday and the Giants, struggling through a dismal season after three straight Eastern crowns, once again are a vital factor in the Eastern race.

Should the Browns win Saturday, Sunday's game between the Philadelphia Eagles and St. Louis won't mean a thing. But a Giant victory could give the Cards the crown if St. Louis gets by the Eagles the following day.

The Giants lost their ninth in 13 games Sunday, bowing to Minnesota 30-21. In other games, Detroit ended Baltimore's 11-game winning streak 31-14, Pittsburgh topped Washington 14-7, Philadelphia downed Dallas 24-14, and San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 28-7. Saturday it was Green Bay 17, Chicago 3.

Charley Johnson keyed the Cardinal triumph, pitching two touchdown passes and running short yardage for two more scores as St. Louis stalled Cleveland's title drive. Johnson completed 15 of 22 for 167 yards.

Lou Groza kept the Browns in the game, booting four field goals.

The Giants, who handed St. Louis one of its losses and held the Cards to a tie in their other game, showed signs of life against Minnesota. Clarance Childs raced 100 yards returning a kickoff for a TD and Gary Wood handled the New York offense adequately.

But scrambling Fran Tarkenton tossed two TD passes and Fred Cox kicked three field goals as the Vikings came from behind to win it.

Milt Plum threw three TD passes as the Lions ended Baltimore's win streak that started the second week of the season.

Pittsburgh scored the winning touchdown midway in the final period and then halted a last-minute Washington drive for its victory. Edd Brown's 47-yard run produced the deciding points.

Rookie Jack Concannon sparked the Eagles' victory over Dallas, completing 10 of 20 passes including two TD's.

John Brodie threw a pair of TD passes and an aggressive San Francisco defense stalled Los Angeles as the 49ers reversed an early season loss.

Mizzou Only Un-Beaten Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eighth - ranked Kansas State and Kansas took their first defeats of the season Saturday, leaving Missouri as the only unbeaten team in Big Eight basketball after the first week in which conference teams won 10 of 18 games with outside teams.

Missouri's perfect record likely will disappear tonight when the Tigers meet unbeaten, top-ranked Michigan at Ann Arbor. In other games tonight, potent Southern Illinois plays at Kansas State, South Dakota at Nebraska and Oklahoma and Indiana.

It's doubtful the Big Eight will get better than an even break in this week's rugged 18-game schedule with non-conference opponents.

Big Ten teams spoiled the perfect records of K-State and Kansas at Manhattan and Lawrence. Indiana beat K-State 74-70 with an expectedly tough defense. Northwestern edged Kansas 58-55 as the Jayhawks fizzled on the attack.

Nebraska got its first victory by clipping Purdue of the Big Ten 96-85 at Lincoln with Coley Webb hitting 21 points and Bob Antulov 20. Oklahoma State had no trouble beating Regis of Denver 78-30 at Stillwater.

Iowa State lost to Minnesota 63 - 53 at Ames, the Gophers pulling away in the last half. Missouri trailed by four at the half but rallied to beat Arkansas 81-71 at Columbia with George Flamank and Ned Monsees hitting 15 points each.

Colorado took third place in the Mile High Classic at Denver by surviving a last half rally for a 67-59 victory over Air Force. Jack Linz led the Buffs with 16 points.

The weekend left Missouri on top at 2 - 0; Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma State all at 2-1; K-State and Nebraska both 1-1, Oklahoma 0-1 and Iowa State 0-2.

On Wednesday, Missouri plays at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State. Drake is at Colorado Thursday.

The annual Sunflower doubleheader opened at Manhattan Friday with Chicago Loyola meeting K - State and Kansas facing Penn State. The two Big Eight teams switch opponents Saturday night at Lawrence.

In other games Saturday night, Iowa State plays at Air Force, Oklahoma State at UCLA, Colorado at Northwestern, St. Louis at Missouri, Michigan at Nebraska and Oklahoma at Texas.

Patriots Come Thru For Tie

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

KANSAS CITY (AP)—"It was a great effort by my team, but they've been playing that way all year despite injuries," said Boston Coach Mike Holovak Sunday after the Patriots tied Buffalo by beating Kansas City, 31-24.

"We've never had our full squad from the very first game," Holovak said. "I think they've done a heckuva job."

Boston has a 10-2-1 record in the American Football League's eastern division title race. Buffalo dropped to a tie with the Patriots at 10-2-0 after Oakland upset the Bills on the final play, 16-13.

Ties don't count in pro standings, but the tie still hurts the Patriots somewhat because they have only one game left to Buffalo's two. However, Boston's lone remaining game is Dec. 20 with Buffalo, at Boston.

Kansas City, now 5-7, was mathematically eliminated from the western race, won by San Diego. The Chiefs will play at San Diego Sunday, before closing with New York Dec. 20 in Kansas City. Oakland is close behind the Chiefs now at 4-7-2.

Gino Cappelletti, Boston end, broke his own AFL season scoring mark of 147 set in 1962. He scored 13 points, bringing his total to 155.

The Tigers Are Getting A Lot Tougher

The Morehouse Tigers shot 67% Saturday night in downing Portageville 98-65, led by Payne, who scored 36 points while hitting 66% from the field. Crumpecker hit 70%, Landers 60% and Haley hit an underpar 44%. A very good game for Morehouse, who up until now have a two and two record, displaying hot and cold nights.

Portageville, who has 1-3 record, was seen to be the victim from the start, as they went down by 12 the first quarter. From there, Morehouse never let down, scoring 25 the second period, while limiting Portageville to 16, to lead at halftime 51-30.

Portageville got hot the third period themselves, but Morehouse was not to be overtaken, as they got 23 to Portageville's 21. The final frame was a repeat of first two, Morehouse going out front by 10 more.

Portageville managed to win the "B" game, led by high scoring Phillips, who dumped in 17. Ruedrich led the Tigers with 10.

William Jewell Is Off Again

Missouri College Basketball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending champion William Jewell is off and running again in the MCAU basketball race.

The Cardinals, despite the loss of two regular players, opened defense of its title last Saturday by pinning a 77-67 defeat on Graceland at Liberty. A week ago, Jewell lost the services of starting guard Homer Drew because of an emergency appendectomy, and last Friday reserve Rich Cooper was discovered to have a broken bone in his foot.

The Jewell victory came despite an outstanding 27 - point performance by Graceland's Rich Harrop who received word earlier in the day of the death of his father.

Jewell is tied with Culver - Stockton, Central Methodist and Missouri Valley for the MCAU lead. All have 1-0 records. Culver tripped Drury 62-55; Central Methodist out-gunned Westminster 106-94, and Valley edged Tarkio 76-73, in other opening conference games.

The MIAA played all nonconference games in its first week of action with Warrensburg the only team to finish the week undefeated. In last Saturday's game Springfield dealt Southern Illinois its first defeat of the young season 86 - 80 as Dale Mathes scored 33 points in his first start. Cape Girardeau bowed to Concordia of St. Louis 81-76.

This week's schedule:

Monday—Oklahoma Christian at Springfield.

Tuesday — Cape at Union, Tenn., Rockhurst at Kirksville, Emporia State at Warrensburg, Jewell at Washington of St. Louis, Dana, Neb., at Tarkio, Iowa Wesleyan at Culver.

Cup In U.S.A. Again

By BOB MYERS

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — The Canada Cup, emblematic of world supremacy of professional golf, will reside for the fifth straight year in the United States.

And the International Trophy belongs for the second successive year to Jack Nicklaus.

This was the setting today as two-man teams from 32 nations, plus Hawaii and Puerto Rico, dispersed after giving the colorful isle in the Pacific a show they'll never forget.

Nicklaus staged a rally made famous by Palmer, coming from six strokes back of Arnie starting the final 18 holes.

At the finish, in which a three-way deadlock was broken at one stage, and a two-way tie at the 71st hole, it was Nicklaus 276, and Palmer 278.

More than 7,000 fans, largest turnout for golf in the history of the Hawaiian Islands, swarmed over the par-72 Royal Kaanapali golf course.

It had long since been recognized that the United States had the Canada Cup tucked away. The American team compiled 554 strokes with Argentina next at 565 and South Africa third with 568.

Poplar Bluff Wins Title

DEXTER -- Dark Horse, Perryville, lost to favored Poplar Bluff, but by only 3, 48-45 for the championship game Saturday night.

In the first period Poplar Bluff jumped to a two point advantage, leading 10-8 as the quarter ended. They held on, as both teams swapped evenly the second frame, to lead by three, 24-21.

The Mules got tougher the third period, out scoring the Pirates by 5, to build up a lead of 8 going into the final quarter, Perryville, with a futile, but a strong come from behind effort made up five of the eight points they lost down by three.

Dexter, another of the surprise teams of the tourney, wrestled the third place honors from Cape Central, winning 53-48.

Cape managed to jump out in front as the first quarter ended, to lead 13-11. They held their lead of 2, until the final quarter, when McKey spearheaded the Dexter attack to close out the game leading by 5 over Central.

In the game for sixth place, Jackson set down Kennett 48-39 leading all the way.

Old Pros Corner

I would like to introduce myself to area fans. I, up until last week, was the Old Pro's assistant in predicting the winners of upcoming games. After the disastrous 70% that he got right last week, he got the ax and has moved off to brighter lands. He hit 14 out of 20, which I helped him predict 6.

Tonight there are 7 games being played. All being in tournaments.

In the Richland Tournament:

Richland against Fisk--Richland, though they lost to Fisk earlier, are going to come through tonight. Richland by 10.

Puxico against Notre Dame-Notre Dame will have wasted their money for gas to make the trip. Puxico will slaughter them. Puxico by 30.

Oran Tournament:

Oran against Chaffee: Chaffee could not beat weak St. Henry last week, so they sure can't beat host Oran. Oran by whatever they want it to be.

Scott Central against Woodland - Scott Central will have to shoot better than they have recently, for Woodland could get upset fever. But it will be Central by 10.

Bragg City Tournament:

Senath-Hornersville against Southland -- Could be close, but Senath-Hornersville will come in with a winners smile. Senath-Hornersville by 10.

Braggadocio against Hayti - Hayti will have to go some to beat Braggadocio. Braggadocio by 20.

South Pemiscot against Greenway - Although I don't know Greenway, I will say South Pemiscot will finish the game in front. South Pemiscot by 15.

Tourneys All Set To Open

Area basketball gets off in a big way this week as three tournaments begin tonight at Richland, Oran, and Bragg City.

The teams in the Richland Invitational are Richland, Fisk, Puxico, Notre Dame, Greenville, Charleston, Advance, and Morehouse.

In the Oran Tourney are Oran, Chaffee, Scott Central, Woodland, Delta, Scott City, Kelly, and Cape College High.

Down at Bragg City, Senath-Hornersville, Southland Braggadocia, Hayti, South Pemiscot, Greenway, Ark., Bragg City, and Cooter round out the teams.

The schedule for Monday night:

Richland Tourney:

Richland versus Fisk

Puxico versus Notre Dame

Oran Tourney:

Oran against Chaffee

Scott Central against Woodland

Bragg City Tourney:

Senath - Hornersville opposes Southland

Braggadocio opposes Hayti

South Pemiscot opposes Greenway, Ark.

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.

An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.

Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork — nothing is overlooked.

Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

New Strength for Johnson Seen in Vigorous New Aide

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Marvin D. Watson, the Texas steel executive who is expected to join President Johnson's White House staff, is a man who has already labored hard and long for Lyndon.

The President reportedly does not like to have his little surprises printed before he is ready to spring them. Yet it is considered unlikely he will reverse himself on Watson just to confound those who have said he would soon be taken on.

The reason: Watson's talents have been freshly demonstrated to Johnson in recent mor ths, and the President is in serious need of them.

Watson is vice president of the Lone Star Steel Co. in Longview, Tex. Those who have seen him at work describe him as a superior administrator and organizer.

IN A SENSE HE WOULD REPLACE the unfortunate Walter Jenkins, the President's administrative assistant, who resigned after disclosure he had twice been arrested on morals charges.

But Watson, though evidently quiet and calm about it, is regarded as considerably more forceful and aggressive than Jenkins. He would almost certainly have a larger role and possibly even dip into policy matters.

This stocky Texan proved himself this summer. A month before it was time to nominate Johnson at Atlantic City, convention plans were in chaos. Watson unobtrusively took over and whipped the effort into shape.

Wholly out of the convention spotlight, Watson worked during the crucial weeks in a small Convention Hall office he shared with another man, Clifton Carter. Convention figures beat a path to his door.

Watson also played a major part in the President's fall campaigning. He really put together several of the big trips. Most of the time he accompanied the President on the road. Through it all, Watson stayed out of the news.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEAVY RELIANCE UPON HIM was not altogether new. In the spring of 1960, Watson helped Johnson in his futile attempt to wrest the Democratic nomination from John F. Kennedy and again gave LBJ a big lift that fall in his vice presidential campaign.

Watson's ability to take command of large operations which are threatening to become unraveled is widely remarked. The unruffled efficiency with which he sets these situations straight leads some sources to suggest he may be uniquely equipped for close daily association with the rough-riding Johnson.

Stories persist, annoying though they be to the President, that Lyndon Johnson often drives and lashes his working intimates to the breaking point.

From all accounts, Watson sounds like a man who could hold his own, even in the President's stormiest moments.

A friend of the President who knows and admires Watson is nevertheless a bit concerned over his political outlook. Says the friend:

"I just wish he were not quite so conservative as he seems to be."

Explains $100 Deductable on Income Tax

A "one hundred dollar deductible" provision on personal casualty and theft losses was part of the 1964 tax law.

As explained today by E. O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, the first $100 of each personal casualty or theft loss will not be deductible on Federal income tax returns. A husband and wife filing a joint return will have to meet but one $100 deductible limit for each separate casualty or theft in which they either jointly or separately suffer a loss. However, if they file separate returns, each will have to meet the $100 floor for each separate loss.

Business losses will continue to be fully deductible Mr. Bookwalter said. In cases where there is damage to a car used for both business and pleasure, the $100 deductible will only apply to that portion of the loss charged to personal use.

Assume in such a case that the business loss is $250 and the personal loss is $300. The $250 loss attributable to the business use is fully deductible. However, the new law permits only $200 of the $300 personal part of the loss to be deducted on tax returns.

Mr. Bookwalter said that the property losses arising from fire, storm or other casualty or theft are covered by the law. Deductions may be taken only on that part of the loss not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise.

DECLARATION ON DISARMAMENT

THE UNITED STATES PROGRAM FOR GENERAL AND COMPLETE DISARMAMENT IN A PEACEFUL WORLD

The Nations of the world,

Conscious of the crisis in human history produced by the revolutionary development of modern weapons within a world divided by serious ideological differences;

Determined to save present and succeeding generations from the scourge of war and the dangers and burdens of the arms race and to create conditions in which all peoples can strive freely and peacefully to fulfill their basic aspirations;

Declare their goal to be: A free, secure, and peaceful world of independent states adhering to common standards of justice and international conduct and subjecting the use of force to the rule of law; a world where adjustment to change takes place in accordance with the principles of the United Nations; a world where there shall be a permanent state of general and complete disarmament under effective international control and where the resources of nations shall be devoted to man's material, cultural, and spiritual advance;

Set forth as the objectives of a program of general and complete disarmament in a peaceful world:

(a) The disbanding of all national armed forces and the prohibition of their re-establishment in any form whatsoever other than those required to preserve internal order and for contributions to a United Nations Peace Force;

(b) The elimination from national arsenals of all armaments, including all weapons of mass destruction and the means for their delivery, other than those required for a United Nations Peace Force and for maintaining internal order;

(c) The establishment and effective operation of an International Disarmament Organization within the framework of the United Nations to ensure compliance at all times with all disarmament obligations;

(d) The institution of effective means for the enforcement of international agreements, for the settlement of disputes, and for the maintenance of peace in accordance with the principles of the United Nations.

Call on the negotiating states:

(a) To develop the outline program set forth below into an agreed plan for general and complete disarmament and to continue their efforts without interruption until the whole program has been achieved;

(b) To this end to seek to attain the widest possible area of agreement at the earliest possible date;

(c) Also to seek -- without prejudice to progress on the disarmament program --agreement on those immediate measures that would contribute to the common security of nations and that could facilitate and form a part of that program.

Affirm that disarmament negotiations should be guided by the following principles:

(a) Disarmament shall take place as rapidly as possible until it is completed in stages containing balanced, phased and safeguarded measures, with each measure and stage to be carried out in an agreed period of time.

(b) Compliance with all disarmament obligations shall be effectively verified from their entry into force. Verification arrangements shall be instituted progressively and in such a manner as to verify not only that agreed limitations or reductions take place but also that retained armed forces and armaments do not exceed agreed levels at any stage.

(c) Disarmament shall take place in a manner that will not affect adversely the security of any state, whether or not a party to an international agreement or treaty.

(d) As states relinquish their arms, the United Nations shall be progressively strengthened in order to improve its capacity to assure international security and the peaceful settlement of differences as well as to facilitate the development of international cooperation in common tasks for the benefit of mankind.

(e) Transition from one stage of disarmament to the next shall take place as soon as all the measures in the preceding stage have been carried out and effective verification is continuing and as soon as the arrangements that have been agreed to be necessary for the next stage have been instituted.

Agree upon the following outline program for achieving general and complete disarmament:

WHAT COULD SAVE 5,000 LIVES A YEAR AND REDUCE SERIOUS INJURIES BY ONE-THIRD?

BUCKLED SEAT BELTS!

It's a fact. The National Safety Council says that if everyone riding in a car was protected by a buckled seat belt—over 5,000 lives could be saved each year. And serious injuries could be reduced by at least one-third. Take a tip from the Safety Council and buckle up for safety every time you drive.

Commission on Education Has Plan to Expand and Improve Higher Education

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri legislators got a plea Friday to expand and improve the state's higher educational system without delay.

The State Commission on Higher Education presented its first report Thursday to Gov. John Dalton and Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes. Copies were mailed to every legislator.

Immediate action is needed, the commission said, to meet Missouri's fast growing needs at all levels beyond the high school -- junior colleges, state colleges and universities, graduate study and research.

It recommended a 55 per cent increase in operating appropriations for the next two years and capital improvements costing $37 million at once. It said a long range study will be made of other capital needs later but the state cannot afford to wait for that.

The 55 per cent operating increase would include 31.4 per cent to cover enrollment growth burgeoning fast, and 23.6 per cent for program improvements -- mostly for faculty needs.

In dollars that would mean an increase in general revenue appropriations from $85.5 million in the current biennium to $132.5 million. Allotments from college funds would increase to $4.3 million.

Where is the money coming from?

The commission did not go into that legislative problem. But state fiscal experts have estimated there will be about $130 million more in general revenue for the next biennium than the current one because of natural growth and increased sales tax collections.

The commission is headed by H. Lang Rogers, Joplin publisher, and its executive director is Dr. Ben Morton. They and Dr. Elmer Ellis, president of the University of Missouri, and Dr. Earl E. Dawson, president of Lincoln University, presented report to Gov. Dalton Thursday.

The report said Missouri has a good chance to develop a logical and consistent system of higher education. But it cautioned against rushing into new programs.

"The commission feels strongly," it said, "that great care should be exercised over approximately the next two years in initiating major and costly new programs or institutions. Most areas of the state can be reasonably well served . . . by existing institutions and arrangements.

"Slight delay is preferable to proliferation and the attendant waste and inefficiency."

The commission did not comment in its first report on proposals to set up M. U. branches at St. Joseph, Joplin and in the Bootheel area. That is expected to be covered in another report to be issued Monday.

But it did say the residence centers being maintained at West Plains by Southwest State College and at Malden by Southeast State should be continued for the time being.

It added, however, the residence center of Central State at Independence should be retained only until the expanding Kansas City metropolitan junior college district can handle the enrollment.

A pattern of emphasis on more and more graduate study emerged from the report as the needs increase in this field.

It said the University of Missouri should stress graduate study and research even if that means imposing stiffer entrance requirements to limit undergraduate enrollment.

Meanwhile the state colleges and Lincoln University should expand graduate programs at the masters' level for teachers' degrees in all fields.

Other recommendations included:

A $100 per semester fee increase for out-of-state students at Lincoln and the five colleges starting next fall—a change already agreed to by the administrators of those schools.

A 25 per cent increase in state aid for junior colleges, which would mean more than a million dollar increase over present allotments.

A separate study, to start as soon as a consultant can be found, on the problem of technical-terminal education in vocational skills beyond the high school. The commission said practically no up to date information exists on this subject now.

In its capital improvements recommendations, the commission said maintenance of existing facilities is the most immediate need.

It figured almost $26 million will be needed from state general revenue and some $11 million from federal funds, including an estimated $7 million from the 1963 Higher Education Facilities Act.

One of the big projects would be an $800,000 building at Columbia from state funds as an administration center for the whole M. U. system.

The 1963 legislature added branches at Kansas City and St. Louis and also made the Rolla School of Mines a branch campus.

The last legislature also passed a bill to set up additional branches at St. Joseph and Joplin but Gov. Dalton vetoed it.

The payoff. We were living out on our 25th wedding anniversary when my husband gave me a lovely diamond wristwatch, with this note attached:

"For reading the menus from right to left when you were 25."

Things We Take For Granted

September twenty third nineteen fifty one on a bright sunny morning Margaret woke and realized this was her wedding day. Margaret and her Mother went to church before they even thought of eating any breakfast. They prayed together for happiness for Margaret and Harold and that the sacrament they were about to receive would bless and help them in their new life together. It was a thoughtful hour and as they left the church Margaret felt a sense of peace and assurance that everything was all right.

Margaret attempted to eat breakfast but there was so much going on all around her that she finally gave up. The phone kept ringing, the flowers arrived, the friend, who was to sing called, saying he couldn't make it, so arrangements had to be made and by that time Margaret had completely lost her appetite.

A girl friend of Margaret's came in to help her bath and get dressed, the bridesmaids arrived and the photographer was waiting to take some pictures before leaving the house. Margaret, the cerebral palsied bride, had to give instructions how to hold her arms down in order to get her beautiful wedding dress on and the veil in place. But she managed to stop shaking and as the photographer snapped her picture her face shone with happiness.

The wedding party was at the church, Margaret's Mother had been taken to her special place, Margaret's Father had taken her arm, the prayer book with the pretty satin ribbons hanging from it was placed securely in her hand and then Margaret heard the wedding march begin. Tears came into her eyes, because she was taking a very big step. She was going to promise to make another person happy for the rest of their lives together. Could she do this when it had always been someone else looking after her happiness. Margaret wished that she could look into a special face at this moment and see the reassurance that she had always received from her big brother. He was so many miles away, but she knew what would be in those eyes and could almost hear his familiar words, "Go ahead Margaret, you can do any thing anyone can do". As Margaret thought of this, she held her head high and with no more doubt, started down to the altar with her Father to meet the smiling face of Harold. This was a very special moment in her life because from now on her whole life would be full of sharing, and for Margaret to have found some one to share her handicapped life was something special within it's self.

Health & Safety Tips

(EXERCISE)

"Exercise is one of the important factors contributing to total fitness," says a new pamphlet of the American Medical Association.

To assist you in planning a program of regular exercise, the AMA offers a number of suggestions.

An exercise program should be started at an early age and continued throughout life, with certain adjustments from time to time as life advances and needs, interests and capabilities change. The amount of vigorous exercise that is desirable each day is largely an individual matter, with recommendations ranging from 30 minutes to an hour each day as a minimum.

Something of interest for every individual can be found to make exercise satisfying and enjoyable. In addition to many sports, the variety of choices includes daily habits such as walking and gardening. Hard, fast, sustained or highly competitive games and sports should not be played by persons of any age unless they have attained an appropriate state of fitness through regular training. All persons should be found by medical examination to be organically sound before training for competition or other strenuous exercise.

If you're out of training, don't try to keep pace in any vigorous sport with an individual who is properly conditioned through regular training. Being in condition for one sport doesn't necessarily mean you're in condition for another. If you've been long out of training, you will need a period of gradual conditioning to get back to strenuous activity.

How can you tell whether your exercise program is too strenuous? If breathlessness and pounding of the heart don't subside within 10 minutes after exercise, if marked weakness or fatigue persists two hours later, if you're still fatigued the next day, then you have overdone it.

If you're beginning to become active again after illness or injury, medical supervision of the effects of exercise is essential. If you are competing in body contact sports, or in sports requiring great endurance and strength, pick on someone yo ur own size and strength. Don't try to stand up to someone much larger, stronger or more skilled. Body contact sports require protective equipment, and it's very important that the equipment be good. Careful preparation and maintenance of playing fields and other sports arenas are essential to reduction of injuries and full enjoyment of the activity.

Contributions of exercise to fitness include a sense of well-being, and development and maintenance of strength, speed, agility, endurance and skill. Each individual differs in his capacity to enjoy and benefit from exercise.

Business Men To Get a New Return Format

Area businessmen will receive their 1964 tax form packages in a brand new format, it was recently announced by Edwin O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

The IRS Midwest Region, which includes this state, will inaugurate its system of automatic data processing of returns beginning with business and corporation tax returns due January 1, 1965, and will mail out pre-addressed forms to taxpayers for easier completion and more efficient handling.

On page one of the new form will be affixed a mailing label containing the taxpayer's name, address and employer identification number. These labels will be printed by means of a computer tape taken directly from the Business Master File maintained in the National Computer Center of the IRS located in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Use of the pre - addressed form, Mr. Bookwalter said, will insure proper matching of the data on the 1964 return with the master file, result in accurate posting to each account, and save much inconvenience to both taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service.

Plastering is one of the most ancient of the building arts. The pyramids of Egypt contain plasterwork executed at least 4,000 years ago which is still hard and durable. The tools of the plasterer have not changed since that time. The art of plastering reached its peak under the Greeks more than five centuries before Christ.

Medically, the "Ishihara test" is given for color-blindness.

You Can Bet Your Life!

J. Lester McGee, D.D.
Centenary Methodist Church
Saint Louis, Missouri
August 2, 1964

Are you a gambler?

I am, and I am going to try this morning to make you a gambler -- a certain kind of gambler.

Of course, I am not going to produce any roulette wheels, cards, dice, or other games of chance.

Men have always gambled. The soldiers gambled for the garments of Jesus. As He died, they shot craps for the booty.

Gambling is a part of human nature. This sounds like a shocking thing for a minister to say, because gambling is associated with vice and racketeers. It has come to mean an ignoble attempt to get something for nothing, and a preying on a weakness of human nature.

Those soldiers at the cross symbolize an inherent human sickness and a perversion of a noble human impulse. Their gambling was a perversion, for the greatness of humanity lies in its irresistible impulse to risk something for unprovable goals. Every great achievement is made by men and women who dare to commit their lives and fortunes to enterprises they think worthy of their final devotion.

Everyone of us is betting on something. Each is taking his life as dice and throwing it for some prize. There is something each of us considers more important than life itself, and we are betting our lives on it.

One person bets his life that wisdom is the principle thing in life, so he spends himself to get an education. Another gambles his life that money is the greatest thing, so he gives his time and strength to get it. Another lays his life on fun. Another places his bet on power -- security.

You cannot walk down the street without taking risks. You cannot conduct a business without venture, for there is no infallible way of knowing if a policy or an investment will succeed. The farmer is a gambler, for how can he tell if the weather will destroy his crops or bring them to harvest? The Christian ministry in a sense is a gamble. I do not know that you will pay my salary or respond to my appeals. I agree with the person who says life is a gamble on whatever level you live it.

Maybe our victory over the evils of gambling can come through transforming a cheap kind of gambling into a noble kind. Wise people do not rebel against this rule, for if life had no uncertainties it could have no zest, and we would have no growth or progress.

So here is my argument today: This necessity to gamble, to take risks, to venture also holds in the higher matters of the soul.

Columbus believed he could reach the East Indies by sailing west, and he risked everything he had on that belief. He bet his life. Orville Wright bet his life that men could fly. The astronauts bet their lives that space capsules would orbit the earth.

Faith of any kind implies risks. Even science lives on the risks involved in faith. We have talked much nonsense about science dealing only with what can be proved. But every scientific theory is a leap of faith, a gamble. The so-called laws of science are generalities based on a certain number of experiments which are seldom ever final. When it comes to the ultimate nature of the universe, science like everything else has to move beyond the facts.

Now, if this law holds true in everything else, shall we risk something for our Christian faith?

Shall we live for the noisy world or for the still small voice of conscience? Shall we live for the moment or for eternity? Shall we live for the flesh or for the spirit?

Reason offers some guidance. Isn't it just as reasonable to believe that a universe which has brought forth personal life is governed by a personal God, as to believe that all creation is a galvanized spasm? Isn't it just as intelligent to judge life by the spirit of Jesus as to judge it by a devilishness that gambles at the foot of the cross.

But reason cannot prove, either by logic or scientific demonstration, that conscience is a better treasure than cash, that unselfishness is better than selfishness, that love is better than hate, that giving is better than getting. If it could, men might be good for common-sense sake.

No! we must take the risk, betting the soul against the body, the spirit against the flesh, eternity against time, goodness against evil. We are gamblers!

But there were other gamblers besides the soldiers at the crucifixion. Caiaphas and Pilate also gambled. They gambled on the faith that the sword rules, might is stronger than spirit, death is the end of a man, selfishness brings joy to the selfish. They bet that God was not looking, or if He was He did not care. They would have said: "It is a sure thing, like money in the bank. It is in the bag." They could not miss-- so they thought. But I wonder-- was there a hidden player on the other side of the board? Was the game fixed before they were born? Would you say they won?

Now let me say shockingly, yet reverently there was another gambler at Calvary. Jesus also gambled.

While the soldiers were rolling the dice for His garments, while Caiaphas and Pilate were gambling on the sword, Jesus bet his life, his soul--that love is stronger than hate, that life will conquer death, that God seeks and forgives.

He bet on love, spirit, sacrifice, unselfishness, forgiveness, goodness. He wagered His all on His Father, and I think His challenge and plea is that you and I live in the self-same venture.

There is a Christian way to gamble, and the more intense the gambling impulse, the greater the Christian potential in us.

Jesus condemned the one-talent man, not because he had only one talent but because he buried it in the earth instead of risking it in the traffic of the world.

He bade His disciples to launch out into the deep, live dangerously, stick your necks out, take a risk, take a chance, take a leap, play the long shots.

He insisted that only he who takes a chance of losing his life shall really find it. There you have an overturning of our human wisdom and logic. "Lose to Win" was His philosophy.

Let a man risk losing his life in lowly service while others clamor for name and fame. Let him risk losing his life in succoring human need while others seek self-aggrandizement.

That's the way Jesus gambled, and that's the way you and I must gamble as his followers.

Could anyone have guessed on that first Good Friday that Jesus would come back? His death was more than death. It was an oblivion of shame. But Caiaphas and Pilate are now remembered only because their victim, Jesus, is not forgotten.

They gambled and lost. He gambled and won!

You are gambling too on something -- good or bad. Are you losing or winning?

Studdert-Kennedy has given us this immortal verse:

"And sitting down they watched him there,
The soldiers did;
There while they played with dice
He made His sacrifice,
And died upon the cross to rid
God's world of sin.

He was a gambler, too, my Christ.
He took His life and threw
It for a world redeemed.
And ere His agony was done,
Before the westering sun went down,
Crowning that day with crimson crown,
He knew that He had won."

There are many definitions of religion, but one of the best I have heard was given to us by Donald Hankey who wrote: "Religion is betting your life there is a God."

When all our arguments are made and ended, If you and I would be Christians in more than name, we must bet our lives on God and Christain causes.

How are you betting? Like Caiaphas, like Pilate -- on pettiness, on position, on power, on popularity, on prestige, on property? It is an old game, and our world is still busy at it, Pilate's game --

"whose game was empires, and whose stakes were thrones,
"whose table earth, whose dice were human bones. . ."

Oh, my friends, do not bet that money or fame or fun will bring you happiness. If you do, you will lose, for all the cards are stacked against you.

Do not bet time against eternity. Do not bet that God is not looking. Do not bet that you can keep your money forever. Do not bet that you can sin and get by with it. Do not bet there is no law of retribution. Do not bet that you can have a death-bed conversion. Do not bet there is no heaven or hell. Those who play these odds always lose.

Then how will you gamble? Like Christ? No, you cannot. There is only one Christ. But you can wager your life that His suffering, as it cleanses you, is God's pardon for your soul.

You cannot prove your faith, so stop trying it. If you could prove it, you would be compelled to believe it. Then it would become not a faith but a drab compulsion. There is just enough evidence to provoke the venture, but never enough that you are spared the hazard. If you would be a Christian in more than name, you must bet your life on God and goodness.

Let me risk something in a challenge to you. I gamble your kindly feelings toward me on your willingness to gamble a little. I am betting on your Christian devotion. I am betting on a Centenary Church. Why else would I be here?

Why can't we as a church do greater things than we are doing?

Take everything fine we are doing, attending church, participating in its activities, contributing to its financial budget, winning people to Christ, ministering to human need. Now double all that. We will doubtless be doing about half what we should be doing.

Why not take a chance on doubling everything we are doing? For instance, why not risk tithing? $1.00 a week isn't much of a risk, is it? Why not risk talking with a friend or neighbor about Christ?

As I meet visitors and come to know new people many say to me: "We intend to get started to church regularly. All we need is to get started." Let me challenge you to take the risk and get started. Faith-weather Christians are not taking much risk, are they?

Let me challenge you who are not Christians or members of the church here. You have said to yourselves, if not to others: "I think I will give my life to Christ. I think I will join that church."

I dare you now to take that risk.

Did you know that the people who gamble for high stakes on the highest and best of all levels usually make it? Though the odds be against them, though the dice be loaded, though the cards be stacked against them, they usually make it.

I read of a Doctor in a little northern town on one of the Canadian lakes, who last winter heard of an epidemic on a lonely island out in the lake. There was no doctor on that island, so he felt he must reach these needy people. But how? No boat could go through those 40 miles of ice. Perhaps an airplane would make it, but the airport was poor enough in the summer and almost impossible in the winter. Yet he persuaded a pilot to make the trip, and they made it without cracking up. Was it worth the risk? Reason could have been enlisted on the side of safety. A very plausible argument could have been advanced that there were plenty of sick people close at hand.

But a man's soul was challenged to make the venture.

He risked his neck and made it. Columbus made it. The Wright brothers made it. Lindberg made it. John Glenn, Scott Carpenter, Gordon Cooper made it. So did Jesus Christ, and so can you.

This isn't sacrilegious or profane, for it is a gambling term -- you can hit the jackpot, if you will take the risk."

Why gamble in cheap ways when there are so many noble ways to gamble?

The world waits for men and women who will still hazard their lives for the sake of Christ.

Now, my friends, I have talked to you today on gambling for Christ -- taking a risk. I wish I could tell you it is a sure thing, but that would not make it a gamble. I think it is a sure thing. The Bible indicates that it is. Millions of people have believed that it is. I am betting my life that it is. But all I can say is that thus far I have found it a sure thing, and I challenge you to take the risk. The real proof is only in the venture.

In the past ten years I have received a few more than 1700 persons into the Methodist Church. They took the risk. Evidently, they have found it a sure thing, for I have not heard of a single one of them backing out. They are "going all the way."

Now I am happy to announce that I am "receiving bets here at Centenary." In one month now ten new persons have made the venture. If you are willing to take the risk, God wants you, Centenary wants you, I want you. But it must be all or nothing. What is the word of the gambling world? "Shoot the works." "Go for broke." That's it!

But on this high level, we put it this way:

"Are ye able," said the Master

"To be crucified with me?"

"Yea," the sturdy dreamers answered

"To the death we follow Thee!"

Mr. Charley Blanton
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I don't know who planned, purchased or supervised the Christmas decorations for our city, and I don't want to know so personalities will not be involved. I do know that I am personally ashamed of the way we look when we "deck our public streets".

I lean to the old-fashioned way of fresh greenry to proclaim our Holiday Spirit. But, being aware of progress and maybe a cramped budget, I will go along with the modern look of snythetic garlands. There are no doubt, many problems involved I don't know about. I would like someone to explain it so I could maybe justify to myself why we have a string of something here and a string of something there, and no one spot is really finished or truly beautiful.

Could I suggest to our town decorators that we do a bang-up job somewhere. Let's gather everything needed to one spot and make it outstanding--then as money allows, go to another. Again, I am not familiar with traffic patterns, but as a common citizen, I would think maybe the intersection of Highways 60-61 would be a logical starting point, as most visitors, tourists and local citizens seem to pass through there.

This is my first attempt at writing to an editor on public matters. I intend it as constructive criticism and in the spirit of Christmas. But this thing has "bugged" me for two years and I had to express it to someone who maybe could correct the situation.

Yours very truly,
Madeline (Mrs. Sherman) Grant

ALMOST A DINNER--A black alley cat in Los Angeles almost had this dove for dinner, but ambulance driver Pete Manos, left, was backing up his ambulance and spotted the cat in a tree ready to pounce on the dove. Manos frightened the cat away, rescued the shaken dove and took it inside the Central Receiving Hospital for treatment. Nurse Joanne Murphy checked the dove's heartbeat and reported the bird in good condition. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Winter Traffic Tie-Ups Cost Millions

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.--Loss of stop-and-go ability on ice and snow needlessly costs American motorists millions of dollars each winter in accidents and traffic tie-ups, according to E. A. Whitehurst, Director of the Tennessee Highway Research Program and a member of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards.

"Ability to stop and go in winter driving," Mr. Whitehurst explained, "narrows down to the amount of friction between car tires and road surface."

He urged all motorists to equip their cars with good tires with good treads. For even better traction, he recommended snow tires. For severe winter driving conditions, nothing c match reinforced tire chair Mr. Whitehurst explained.

"The Committee's tests have shown that snow tires are better for winter driving than regular tires," Mr. Whitehurst said, "but reinforced tire chains help you stop far more safely on packed snow and ice and give four to five times the 'go' traction of regular tires."

Mr. Whitehurst works with the national committee which conducts tests each winter on the behavior of vehicles and equipment on ice and snow and the relative merits of such traction - producing items as snow tires and chains. Much of what safety experts know about the safe operation of cars on ice and snow has been developed by this committee.

The Committee has studied the degree of slipperiness of different kinds of ice and snow and has found that wet ice at 30 degrees is twice as slippery as ice at zero temperature. The polishing effect of heavy traffic also makes ice more slippery, the Committee has learned.

Mr. Whitehurst, who is also chairman of Committee E-17 on Skid Resistance of the American Society for Testing and Materials, emphasized that the lessened traction resulting from winter driving conditions demands that the motorist reduce speed, maintain a greater following distance behind the vehicle ahead, use brakes and accelerator sparingly, and equip his car with good tires and reinforced tire chains.

He warned motorists to be especially on guard when the temperature is just above freezing.

Records Help Speed Study

To gain confidence as you start speaking Spanish the SPEED SPEECH way, you will be helped greatly by records which you play along with your textbook studies. You will be amazed at how rapidly you progress, when the records and textbook are used together in learning the Spanish language.

William Archer, who developed SPEED SPEECH, assures that if you give 24 hours of purposeful study to his method, you can be communicating in Spanish. Many Big Springers right now are engrossed in their studies.

The Daily Sikeston Standard will continue for a short time to offer the SPEEDSPEECH items at a low cost. These consist of the textbook, the set of two 45 rpm records, and a handy dictionary of words you ordinarily would be using in conversation.

Each is offered for only $2.95 plus nine cents sales tax, for a total of $3.04. You may use coupons from the Daily Sikeston Standard to order, or you may come by the Daily Sikeston Standard office, where there is a limited supply.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: I doubt that you have ever received a letter as nutty as this one. Please print your answer because I've got to understand what's going on.

I am a 16-year-old girl. My best friend is 16 also. I will call her Wendy. Last night Wendy was at my house and we were talking--just the two of us.

Suddenly she said, "How can I get bronchial pneumonia?" I asked her what in the world she wanted to get bronchial pneumonia for. She answered, "Oh I don't want to die or anything like that. I'd just like to get sick enough to go to the hospital so people will send me cards and flowers and the fellows will visit me and see me in my nightgown with my hair loose."

I was shocked at her idea of fun. Have you ever heard of anything so far out? Is Wendy crazy or what? Thanks for your help.--CAN'T DIG IT

Dear Can't Dig: Anyone who has had bronchial pneumonia will tell you it's no fun. But of course Wendy doesn't really want to be sick, she just wants the fringe benefits.

Illness is a sure-fire attention-getter. Moreover it provides a respectable excuse for not going to school or to work. Some people who fail to get attention from their day-to-day achievements conveniently get sick. You'd be surprised at the number of so-called adults who resort to this technique--often without realizing it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I own a small novelty shop. We have rented the apartment above our shop to some friends.

Last week we learned that their teen-age son has been stealing merchandise. My husband and I are upset and don't know what to do. We are reluctant to tell the boy's parents because it might end a longtime friendship.

Your counsel is badly needed. TORN

Dear Torn: Don't talk to the parents. Talk to the boy. Avoid preaching or threatening. Explain that you are deeply disappointed in him but you are confident he can straighten around and you are willing to let him prove it.

If he continues to steal after you've had the talk, then you must tell his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: For years I've been reading your column and hating you for your stand against divorce. More than once as I read your smug replies I shouted aloud, "What does SHE know about the feelings of the tortured people involved' How can SHE give such pat answers on the basis of a single letter?" Today I am singing a different tune. You were right all along.

Shad and I didn't care who we hurt. We couldn't live without each other. I thought Shad had more class than any man I'd ever known. He thought the same about me. Living together has shown us we were both wrong.

After six months we are calling it quits. Shad is going back to his former wife. She is willing to take him back because of the children. I am not so fortunate. My husband doesn't want me back. My teen-age children will have nothing to do with me because I humiliated their father and broke up two homes. All I have is my job--for as long as my health holds up.

My life is a shambles and I deserve what I'm getting. Please keep telling people they can't build a future on the ashes of destroyed marriages and broken hearts. We tried and it didn't work. -- GUILTY AS CHARGED

Dear Guilty: I plan to keep telling 'em--so long as my typewriter holds together. Now quit beating yourself and try to build a new life--somehow.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Glastonbury, England, Abbey is Site of Exciting Traditions

GLASTONBURY, England (AP) — Crumbling stone walls probe the English sky and mark the spot where some men say Christ walked.

The ruined abbey here harbors other exciting traditions. King Arthur and Queen Guenevere are said to be buried under the carpet of grass that now grows around pillars of what was a vast cathedral.

There is little doubt that Glastonbury is the oldest religious foundation in Britain. Archeological evidence indicates the presence more than 2,000 years ago of a Celtic pagan temple.

The Somerset town's early history is an irresolvable mixture of legend and fact. It starts with Joseph of Arimathea, believed to have been the Virgin Mary's uncle. He was a merchant bearing tin from Britain to Phoenicia.

Several independent south England oral tales agree in saying that when Jesus of Nazareth was a young boy, before he proclaimed himself the son of God and began his ministry, he came to Britain with Joseph and stayed briefly at Glastonbury.

It was the same Joseph who, years later, received Christ's body from the crucifixion cross and buried it in a sepulchre. Then, forced out of Palestine, Joseph returned to Glastonbury and began preaching Christianity in the year 60.

He arrived at Weary-All Hill, one of several that make up the tongue of land that projects into the marshes here. He drove his staff into the ground and local inhabitants still say it grew into a thorn tree that blossoms twice a year, at Christmas and Easter.

Joseph is reputed to have brought with him the chalice that Christ used at the Last Supper. It is said to be buried in the vicinity of what now is called Chalice Hill, near the mysterious perpetual "Blood Spring." Its water is rich in iron and leaves a red deposit on rocks, leading men through the ages to suppose that the water is tainted with blood and that it rises from the holy cup itself.

Pilgrims still worship at the shrine.

When Hugh Troy, master practical joker, was a student at Cornell, he and a friend came across a waste basket which had been fashioned from a rhinoceros hoof. With it they faked a trail of hoofprints across a snowy campus to the lake from which the university community got its drinking water. When the tracks were identified, half the people stopped using tap water and the other half reported they could taste rhinoceros in their drinks.

PUZZLED

Once I noticed a sign upon a door,
And have puzzled over it evermore:
"We buy junk. We sell antiques here."
What things in life must we hold dear?

In our family garden, six
wonder flowers grew;
How happy we were together,
nobody ever knew.
Working and playing together,
blossoming in God's free light;
Thinking and planning the future, spreading their sweetness
day and night.
God plucked one of our wonderful flowers so precious and so rare
And took him to his heavenly mansion, God grant we'll meet him there.

Town clerks in Miami Springs, Fla., were startled when more than 50 residents hustled over to City Hall to pay delinquent water bills. "I never saw anything like it," one clerk reported. "They came dashing in as fast as they could, with money in their hands." It seemed the water had stopped running in their homes.

It wasn't until later that the bill payers learned a road grader had accidentally cut the main water line into Miami Springs.

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Dec. 7, the 342nd day of 1964. There are 24 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, between 150 and 200 Japanese planes attacked Pearl Harbor. Within three minutes, the Navy had all of World War I. American casualties exceeded 4,000; of these 2,117 were killed.

On this date:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the federal constitution.

In 1842, the New York Philharmonic Society gave its first concert.

In 1916, David Lloyd George became British prime minister.

In 1941, Canada and Australia declared war on Japan.

In 1944, Washington announced that all six of the Japanese aircraft carriers which attacked at Pearl Harbor in 1941 had been sunk.

Five years ago -- A Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Kefauver ended its first week of hearings on prices and profits in the sale of drugs.

One year ago -- Four Americans were held by Bolivian miners as hostages for three labor leaders arrested by the Bolivian government.

Christmas Time is a Nervous Time for Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is the time of year the folks at the post office glance nervously at the sky for signs of snow, talk of possible transportation strikes very seriously and, above all, keep their fingers crossed.

For Christmas is exactly three weeks away.

"The peak mailing period is upon us right now," a department spokesman said today as he discussed the delicate delivery system that is designed to get your mail to you before the holiday — not after it.

The deadlines have been posted, the promotional campaign mounted — "Shop early, mail early, use zip codes" —and the trouble spots that turned up in previous years hopefully have been erased.

Now about all the Post Office Department can do is hope that all goes smoothly.

One thing it doesn't expect this time is another "Chicago bottleneck," last year's No. 1 problem.

Chicago is especially important because it is the approximate center of the country, and most east-west mail goes through it.

Last December a severe Midwestern storm and subzero temperatures slowed things up. So this year, the Windy City has on its South Side a brand new parcel post facility, inspected just Thursday by the top man himself, Postmaster Gen. John A. Gronouski. And $1 million worth of new mechanical equipment has been added.

Still, because there is no way of keeping snow from falling, "We're keeping our fingers crossed for the next three weeks," the spokesman said.

This month the Post Office Department expects to deliver 7 billion pieces of mail, 300 million more than last December. And it hopes to do it with the help of 145,000 "Christmas assistants," only 2,000 more than the 143,000 extras taken on in 1963 and less than half of the 300,000 hired the year before.

Once again the department is asking for adherence to mail deadlines.

For gift parcels to distant points in the United States the deadline is Saturday, for air parcels to servicemen overseas Dec. 10 is the date, for local gift parcels it is Dec. 14, and for local greeting cards Dec. 15.

U.S. passport statistics show that 75 per cent of Americans traveling abroad visit Europe.

Soviet's Security Police Had Big Role in K Ouster

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Kremlinologists here think the publicized promotions just announced by Soviet bosses Brezhnev and Kosygin are personal payoffs to men who helped oust Khrushchev.

By this reasoning, Soviet security police (KGB) played a heavy part in the coup. Aleksandr N. Shelepin, Communist Party Secretariat member responsible for supervising the KGB, was made a full member of the ruling Presidium. V. Semichastny, chairman of the Committee for State Security and head of the KGB, was promoted to full membership on the Central Committee of the Communist party.

The security police may thus play a stronger-than-previously-predicted role in the Brezhnev-Kosygin regime.

Kremlinologists talked to here find it "striking" that no military figures were rewarded in these payoffs.

One analyst claims, rightly or wrongly, that this omission at this particular time "dispels the idea that the military played a key role" in the coup. His conclusion is now echoed by other analysts interviewed here who had previously conjectured a strong military part in Khrushchev's ouster. (But no one argues the military didn't favor the change or that military leaders on the Party Central Committee didn't vote for removing Mr. K.)

THE RECALCULATIONS SEEM TO INDICATE, indeed, that party control over the Soviet military is being strengthened. A. S. Yepishev, party watchdog over the Red armed forces, for example, was just rewarded with a full membership on the Communist Party Central Committee.

The personal-reward nature of these promotions strengthens the belief here that the coup was a personal reach for power (by individuals and groups) rather than a fight for change in policies or methods, though, of course, policy changes may result.

Kremlinologists see signs that attempts had been made for months to get Khrushchev to retire gracefully. But Khrushchev, the word goes, wouldn't retire.

THE HEAVY SPATE OF PROMOTIONS and purges expected in the next two months, it is believed, should keep the Soviet Union preoccupied internally for some time.

The Kremlinologists interviewed here think the Russians will be so busy they won't want anything to happen which will rock the boat with the West in the near future, regardless of harrassment Soviet leaders may develop later.

This reorganizing won't, of course, prevent Moscow leaders from putting out heavy packages of anti-Western propaganda.

But these public diatribes are expected to be accompanied by continued private assurances from Moscow that Brezhnev and Kosygin want better relations with the United States.

There is a growing tendency among some influential men in the State Department and Pentagon to believe those assurances.

This growing tendency to believe is being attacked strongly by other diplomats and military men as foolhardy. They cite evidence the Soviet Union continues to be a closed police state and that Red leaders consistently have broken faith with countries that believed their assurances.

Parker said the large public universities, with an increase of 11.1 per cent, are accelerating their trend toward carrying "a larger portion of the higher educational burden."

Of all full-time students, 38.5 per cent are in these public universities. Large private universities have a 7.1 per cent increase and carry 13.4 per cent of all full-time students.

For the fifth straight year, full-time students in teachers colleges have the largest percentage gain -- 14.1. Full-time rolls in technological and related schools are 7.9 per cent larger; in arts and sciences, 9.1 per cent larger; and in fine arts, applied arts, and music schools, 7.4 per cent larger.

Only theological schools show a decrease, 1.0 per cent.

The 1,128,863 evening and part-time students are up 7.3 per cent.

"Men are still ahead but the women continue to narrow the gap between the sexes in collegiate enrollments," Dr. Parker said. The 1,088,596 full-time women represent a gain of 10.9 per cent; the 1,724,732 full-time men, a gain of 9.6 per cent.

Full-time figures, as distributed geographically, are: New England, 185,116 students (8.4 per cent increase); Middle Atlantic, 466,416 (9.0 per cent increase); East North Central, 588,695 (10.9 per cent increase); West North Central, 309,587 (10.9 per cent increase), South Atlantic, 328,058 (9.3 per cent increase); East South Central, 170,415 (12.7 per cent increase); West South Central, 270,217 (10.9 per cent increase); Mountain, 159,597 (11.4 per cent increase); Pacific, 312,613 (8.5 per cent increase); and Puerto Rico, 22,615 (12.7 per cent increase).

Say to those who are of a fearful heart, "Be strong, fear not! Behold, your God will come with vengeance, with the recompense of God. He will come and save you." (Isaiah 35:4, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, during this Advent season we would open our hearts that we may make room for the coming of the Savior of men into our lives, into our homes, into our world. Speak to our need and fulfill our desire to live each day in His presence. We ask in the name of Jesus who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

What kind of a tiger do you want under your hood?
(Have you priced a tiger lately?)

If you're handy with a whip and chair, you could go for the 360-hp GTO. It bites. But then, even the 335-hp GTO bites. So it all depends on how much you think you can chew. If you want a slightly more civilized package (but with all the growl and lots of the muscle of the GTO), try the LeMans. You can get it with a six or either of two V-8s. They all have magnificent interior appointments that make you feel you're languishing in luxury. Like bucket seats. And full carpeting. Yet they cost less than some very tame cats that go around trying to pass themselves off as tigers but who can't even manage the growl. How do we do it? That's our secret. Find Man Dead in His Auto

The body of a man, later identified as Charles Hawkins, of Bono, Ark., was found dead in a car at 8:45 a.m. Sunday on Highway 67, two and a half miles south of Fredericktown. When found the car's motor was running and it was determined that Mr. Hawkins died of monoxide gas poisoning. The body was taken to the Wilson Funeral Home in Fredericktown.

Troop E, State Highway Patrol, reports there were ten traffic accidents in its territory over the weekend; no fatalities except a horse, and 12 injured.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, the Patrol reports, a mile south of Advance on Highway 25, Homer Montgomery, 45, of Bloomfield, ran into and killed a horse; about two minutes later Berton Andrews, 64, of Bloomfield, ran into the same animal.

At 2:15 p.m., Sunday, the Patrol reports, six miles west of Dexter on a gravel road, David Lee Dowdy, 16, of Dexter, lost control of his car, ran off the road and turned over in a ditch. No injuries reported.

Driver Drops Cigarette; hit Train; Not Hurt

Shortly after 7:30 a.m. Sunday, at the North Street crossing, a car driven by Robert Simmons, 19, of 360 Osage Street, was hit by Frisco Freight No. 835, Don Miller, Chaffee, engineer, and badly damaged.

Simmons was shaken up but other wise escaped injury. He is reported to have told the investigating officer that he had stopped at the crossing to let the train go past and as he waited had dropped his cigarette on the floor. When he reached down to pick it up his foot slipped off the brake and his car lurched ahead and into the path of the train.

One Fatality In Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri counted only one traffic fatality over the snowy, wintry weekend. No deaths were reported Sunday, the highway patrol said.

Lewis McClintock, 59, of Chattanooga, Tenn., died early Saturday. He was struck and killed by a car on Lindbergh Boulevard in St. Louis County as he stepped from his own car to help another motorist in distress.

Only one highway death was reported in Kansas over the weekend.

Christmas Stamp Design Objected to

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Melvin R. Laird today criticized the 1964 Yuletide postal stamp and urged issuance of Christmas stamps with a religious theme such as a Nativity scene — "not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

In a letter to Postmaster General John A. Gronouski, the Wisconsin Republican said many controversial issues have arisen in recent years over the principle of separation of church and state.

"There is one issue, however, over which there should be no controversy because it in no way concerns the separation of church and state," Laird wrote. "That issue is the annual issuance of Christmas stamps by the Post Office Department.

"Again this year the Post Office has issued a highly commercialized stamp which purports to convey the 'spirit' of Christmas but which in no way symbolizes the true meaning of Christmas."

He has urged for years, Laird said, and in the past has introduced legislation calling on the Post Office Department to use the Nativity scene on its annual Christmas stamp.

The Post Office Department's special stamp committee, Laird said, turned down the Natvity scene for a Christmas stamp on the basis that it would commemorate a religious holiday.

"This argument has no relevance to this issue," he wrote. "Christmas is celebrated each year to honor the birthday of Jesus Christ. Even those who do not acknowledge Him as the Son of God recognize that He was a great figure in history.

"A Christmas stamp commemorating His birthday should in some way convey that fact and not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

Christ is the spiritual leader of millions of Americans and of millions the world over, Laird said.

Christmas mailers will have a choice of four seasonal red and green 5-cent stamps. The Post Office Department says the design is the first time in its history that such a four-in-one issue has been offered.

Cold and Hardship For Many

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Cold and hardship continued today for thousands of families in an ice-crippled eastern portion of New York. Power crews sought to restore heat and light for nearly 40,000 customers.

The sun glistened this morning on a winter wonderland created by ice-laden trees and power lines. Temperatures ranged down to 10 below zero in the wake of one of the state's worst storms.

The bitter cold added the threat of frozen water pipes for stricken residents, most of whom were in an area bounded generally by Albany on the south, Glens Falls on the north and Amsterdam-Gloversville on the west.

Three deaths were attributed to the weekend onslaught of snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Many schools closed Friday remained closed today. Others served as emergency centers for those driven from their homes. Churches, fire houses and other public places also were opened for emergency use, and cooking facilities were provided.

The Weather Bureau said tonight and Tuesday would be a bit warmer, amid scattered snow.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, touring evacuation centers in the Schenectady area Sunday night, declared, "We've had ice storms before, but none has ever been as bad as this."

He was talking about a combination of freezing rain, snow and ice accumulation that began Friday and that, by late Sunday night, froze community activities — from high school basketball games to worship services—to a stop.

Families began entering the emergency centers Friday night. Others followed as the storm damage left thousands of homes without electricity or heat.

At its peak, the storm had darkened the homes and businesses of more than 75,000 of 338,800 customers of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. in eastern-central New York.

A power company spokesman said Sunday night that the number of homes and businesses without electricity and heat was down to about 40,000.

But, a Schenectady County Civil Defense official said, it will be a few days before thousands of broken tree limbs and snapped power lines can be cleared from city streets and yards. Until then, many families will remain in evacuation centers.

Rob Safe of $75 At Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- The safe at the Estes-Walker-Knight, Inc., office was robbed Saturday night. Sheriff Ralph Temples reports entrance was gained by breaking open a back door.

The safe was 'punched' but not more than $75 was stolen.

To Seek Delay in Action

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A constitutional amendment prohibiting the Missouri General Assembly from acting on legislation for 60 days after a governor's inauguration will be introduced by State Sen. John J. Johnson.

Johnson, a St. Louis County Democrat, said he was "having all phases of this proposal researched thoroughly by experts so that I may present a well-rounded and complete plan for consideration as soon as possible."

Johnson said in an interview his plan is necessary because the new governor has only about two months after his election "to prepare recommendations on a budget, set up his administration and otherwise formulate a program under which the state will operate during the next biennium.

"It is grossly unfair to expect an incoming governor to cope as adequately as he should with the many problems he must face immediately upon assumption of office when he has only two months to prepare."

The senator, who won re-election to a second term last month, added that members of the General Assembly, "many of them new, are being sworn in at the same time as the governor and immediately must plunge into consideration and passage of legislation.

Under Johnson's proposal, after members of the General Assembly are sworn in and the inauguration of the governor, formalities of organizing the legislature would then be completed.

Johnson suggests that after the legislature is organized it should then recess until March 1, at which time it would reconvene to hear recommendations from the chief executive and begin considerating and acting on legislation.

During the interim, bills could be introduced and copies mailed to each legislator for study prior to reconvening on March 1. Johnson also recommended an April 1 deadline for introducing bills.

"It would eliminate to a great degree the present situation wherein members of both houses find a flood of bills pouring in on them in such quantities that they cannot adequately prepare themselves," Johnson added.

SUDANESE RIOTERS KILL 10 American Couple Injured

KHARTOUM, Sudan, (AP) — Arabs and Negroes battled through the night in Khartoum, and fighting continued today. An estimated 10 persons were reported killed, and scores were injured, including an American couple.

The racial warfare broke out when thousands of Negroes from South Sudan massed at the Khartoum Airport to protest domination by the East African nation's Arab majority. Then they invaded the city, smashing automobiles and attacking Europeans and Americans as well as Arabs.

Apparently the Europeans and Americans were mistaken in the dark for Arabs. "This is not against you," a leader of the mob told an English family and two Americans at the airport.

The rioters smashed windows at Communist China's embassy.

Iron shutters were lowered over the windows of the U.S. Embassy, and a Marine guard was on the alert.

Helmeted police and troops with bayonets dispersed the Negro mob. An hour later thousands of Arabs armed with sticks invaded the Negro quarter adjoining the airport. Bloody clashes were reported through the night.

The demonstration started at Khartoum Airport when a crowd of about 5,000 Negroes assembled to greet Interior Minister Clement Mboro. Mboro, a Negro, had been touring South Sudan, where Negro tribes are rebelling against the Arabs of the northern Sudan who dominate the government and the army.

At first held in check by the organizers, the crowd chanted slogans calling for the separation of the southern provinces from the rest of the country. Then the mob broke through the thin cordon of organizers and stormed the airport building, smashing doors and glass.

The crowd had grown to about 10,000 as it spilled into an adjacent residential section.

Ringo May Lose Home

LONDON AP -- Ringo Starr, the Beatle drummer who lost his tonsils last week, may also lose his home.

His neighbors have petitioned his landlord to move him out of his $125-a-week apartment in Westminster. His teen-age fans are driving them crazy.

"Ringo's tonsil operation has given us our first peace for months," said Lathom Gedge, a neighbor.

"Teen-age girls scream and shriek all day long," said his wife. "They get hysterical, fight and kick each other and chase every car that arrives in case Ringo is inside."

"It's a drag," said Ringo, due out of University College Hospital on Thursday.

"I wish I could do something about it -- but I can't control the fans."

Ringo was reported coming along well despite a slight cold. His voice retains its Liverpudlian croak.

Bruce Hampton, Sikeston, slipped and twisted foot and Shirley Littleton, Sikeston, cut finger washing dishes.

Ricy Fusten, Essex, fell at home; Donald L. Benaist, Albuquerque, N. M., shut car door on finger: J. C. Campbell, Sikeston, slipped and hit head; Tracy Mackey, Sikeston, fell into tub of hot water and Charles Scott, Sikeston, fell and cut forehead.

Burch in Trouble With GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican governors have started a fire within their party that could make it difficult for National Chairman Dean Burch to command the broad base support he needs to hold his job.

Although they stopped short in a declaration at Denver, Colo., Saturday of calling collectively for Burch's resignation, there appeared to be majority belief among the 18 who attended that after Burch canvasses the situation thoroughly he may decide to step out.

This was based in part on reports given the governors in closed session that as many as 70 of the 138-member Republican National Committee may favor replacement of Burch.

Burch's own canvass of his strength within the committee was said to have been somewhat disappointing to him.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, former head of the committee, made the point on a television broadcast Sunday — ABC "Issues and Answers" — that the chairman has to have broad support within the committee. He added he didn't know anybody "who would want to stay in that position that didn't have support of his own committee."

Morton, who had announced his backing of Burch, said it is up to the members of the National Committee and no one else to determine whether Burch should be replaced.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, the defeated GOP presidential nominee, has said he is standing firmly behind Burch. But even some of Goldwater's firmest supporters among the governors qualified their endorsement of the national chairman.

Gov. Tim Babcock of Montana said Burch should have the opportunity to end "the factionalism which is disrupting us." If the chairman can't do that, Babcock said, he would expect Burch "to step down for the good of the party and I would be among those asking him to do so."

No Change in Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Defense Department team of top civilian leaders, headed by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, is expected to remain intact at least until mid-1965.

McNamara reportedly has discussed with key members of his team his wish that they stay on and see the Pentagon's programs through the Congress next session. They were said to have agreed.

This is taken to mean that McNamara himself intends to remain in office at least that long.

Associates said they had been unable to detect any signs that McNamara is thinking of stepping out. He is nearing the end of his fourth year as secretary of defense, still well short of the record of 56 months set by Charles E. Wilson in the Eisenhower administration.

The only member of McNamara's top group to resign recently was Thomas D. Morris, assistant secretary of defense for installations and logistics. He will be succeeded by Paul Ignatius, who is being promoted from undersecretary of the Army.

A change in the military high command will come in early February when Gen. Curtis E. LeMay retires as Air Force chief of staff.

Gen. John P. McConnell, who has been the Air Force's second in command since midsummer, is likely to succeed LeMay.

Adm. David L. McDonald will finish a two-year term as chief of naval operations in June. He probably will be given a second term.

Otherwise, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler is only a few months into his term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The same goes for Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff. Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Marine Corps commandant, still has three more years to go in a four-year term.

Batteries Stolen

Robert Green, 1409 E. Gladys, reported to police that someone had stolen the batteries from his Case and John Deere tractors, sometime between Thursday and Sunday. The tractors were parked at his farm on the Ables Road, and batteries were valued at $65.

Dalton Names Judge

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. John M. Dalton today appointed James A. Finch Jr. of Cape Girardeau to the Missouri Supreme Court. He will replace veteran Judge C. A. Leedy Jr. who is retiring Dec. 31.

Finch, a Republican, was one of three nominees submitted to the governor Saturday by the Appellate Judicial Commission.

Dalton said Finch, 57, "is a personal friend of mine for many years. I've tried cases against him and I've tried cases with him. He is not only a top lawyer but a top citizen."

The governor said the panel was an excellent one. The other two nominees were Circuit Judge James D. Clemens of Bowling Green and Robert G. Brady, a commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Dalton said if Missouri is to have a truly nonpartisan court there should be some Republicans. He said he has appointed three Republicans so far to the judicial system.

Finch has been on the University of Missouri Board of Curators since 1951 and has been president of the board since 1941. Dalton said his work there has been outstanding.

He formerly served as chairman of the late Gov. James T. Blair's Advisory Council on Higher Education.

On the high court he will take the place of the last of judges dating from the Pendergast days in Missouri politics. Judge Leedy was appointed in 1933 by the late Gov. Guy B. Park and has been reelected every time since then.

He is stepping down at 69 to move to Kansas City where he plans to do some writing.

The governor deferred naming a new judge to the Kansas City Court of Appeals but said he might have an appointment there in a few days.

The Appellate Judicial Commission gave him a panel of three nominees Saturday that included Circuit Judge William H. Kimberlin of Harrisonville, Fred L. Howard of Jefferson City, now secretary of the State Reciprocity Commission, and Jackson County Circuit Judge Harry A. Hall.

Hall is a Republican, the other two are Democrats.

Dr. Teller To Speak

ROLLA, Mo. Dec 5-- Mr. Edward Teller, renowned nuclear physicist, will speak to the University of Missouri at Rolla Nuclear Engineering Society at 7:30 p.m. on Friday evening December 11th. Teller will speak before the group in the auditorium of the civil engineering building and the speech is open to the public.

Dr. Teller was born in Hungary and educated in Europe, and in 1941 became a United States citizen. His early research dealt with theoretical physics, but discovery of the fission process and the menace of Nazi Germany soon drew him into the small group of men who started the atomic energy effort in America.

Dr. Parker Finds Unprecedented Numbers of Students at Nation's Colleges With a Grand Total of 2,090,638; M.U. has 30,304

(EDITOR: Dr. and Mrs. Parker were residents of Sikeston from 1938-1941 when Dr. Parker was a teacher of history and speech and debating coach at Sikeston High School.)

CINCINNATI, OHIO, -- "In veritable academic phalanx, college and university students marched onto American campuses this year in unprecedented numbers and percentage increases," the University of Cincinnati's Dr. Garland G. Parker reported here tonight.

In his annual survey of collegiate enrollment for School and Society, educational journal, Dr. Parker finds 1,111 accredited universities and four-year colleges have admitted 2,090,638 full-time and a grand total of 4,118,735 students.

Full - time students are up 10.1 per cent in the comparably reporting institutions as against increases of 6.4 per cent in 1963 and 6.2 per cent in 1962. The grand total is 9.3 per cent larger than last year.

"This is the year of the spectacular for freshmen" Dr. Parker noted. He is dean of admissions and registrar at Cincinnati university.

Freshman attendance is 17.3 per cent larger than last year -- "the largest percentage increase that is likely to occur in the foreseeable future," Dr. Parker pointed out.

"The capacity of the nation's institutions of higher learning to accept this fantastic increase is nothing short of phenomenal," he added.

Despite predictions of diminishing importance in this highly technical age, the liberal arts and the pure sciences are enjoying a renaissance, the Cincinnati statistician learned. There are also 17.3 per cent more freshmen in these fields than last year and by far the larger proportion of all current freshmen have elected these fields.

But education freshmen constitute the percentage leader among the designated first-year groups -- 18.0 per cent more than last year. Other freshman increases by fields of study include:

Business administration, 16.8 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 3.0 per cent after two successive declining years).

Engineering, 11.0 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 1.2 per cent and losses in 1962 and 1961).

Agriculture, 12.4 per cent ("its first significant increase in many years").

Nursing, 15.9 per cent.

Today's freshmen "are only the front line of a vast throng on their way to colleges in this and the next decade," Dr. Parker warned in declaring this is no time for complacency.

"If we take account only of the pool of potential applicants available, we may expect another 10 to 12 per cent increase of freshmen next year," Dr. Parker said. "In 1966 there may be a small decrease, in 1967 and 1968 there will be little change, but steady increases should be resumed in 1969 and thereafter.

"As the massive freshman classes of this year and next move into the upper classes and are replaced by almost equally ponderous groups, our instutitions of higher education will find themselves grappling with the educational challenge of the century.

"If they are not ready, a crash program of preparation should be the order of the day. All the resources and educational manpower that can be mustered in both public and private areas will be needed to take care of this academic host.

"This task is a responsibility that should be felt by every citizen."

Turning to full-time students (including freshmen) as the "source from which the nation derives its business administrators, engineers, doctors, lawyers, ministers, pharmacists, scientists, teachers, and other professionals," Dr.

Christmas Stamp Design Objected to

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Melvin R. Laird today criticized the 1964 Yuletide postal stamp and urged issuance of Christmas stamps with a religious theme such as a Nativity scene — "not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

In a letter to Postmaster General John A. Gronouski, the Wisconsin Republican said many controversial issues have arisen in recent years over the principle of separation of church and state.

"There is one issue, however, over which there should be no controversy because it in no way concerns the separation of church and state," Laird wrote. "That issue is the annual issuance of Christmas stamps by the Post Office Department.

"Again this year the Post Office has issued a highly commercialized stamp which purports to convey the 'spirit' of Christmas but which in no way symbolizes the true meaning of Christmas."

He has urged for years, Laird said, and in the past has introduced legislation calling on the Post Office Department to use the Nativity scene on its annual Christmas stamp.

The Post Office Department's special stamp committee, Laird said, turned down the Natvity scene for a Christmas stamp on the basis that it would commemorate a religious holiday.

"This argument has no relevance to this issue," he wrote. "Christmas is celebrated each year to honor the birthday of Jesus Christ. Even those who do not acknowledge Him as the Son of God recognize that He was a great figure in history.

"A Christmas stamp commemorating His birthday should in some way convey that fact and not the commercialized symbol of a Christmas tree or Santa Claus."

Christ is the spiritual leader of millions of Americans and of millions the world over, Laird said.

Christmas mailers will have a choice of four seasonal red and green 5-cent stamps. The Post Office Department says the design is the first time in its history that such a four-in-one issue has been offered.

Cold and Hardship For Many

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Cold and hardship continued today for thousands of families in an ice-crippled eastern portion of New York. Power crews sought to restore heat and light for nearly 40,000 customers.

The sun glistened this morning on a winter wonderland created by ice-laden trees and power lines. Temperatures ranged down to 10 below zero in the wake of one of the state's worst storms.

The bitter cold added the threat of frozen water pipes for stricken residents, most of whom were in an area bounded generally by Albany on the south, Glens Falls on the north and Amsterdam-Gloversville on the west.

Three deaths were attributed to the weekend onslaught of snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Many schools closed Friday remained closed today. Others served as emergency centers for those driven from their homes. Churches, fire houses and other public places also were opened for emergency use, and cooking facilities were provided.

The Weather Bureau said tonight and Tuesday would be a bit warmer, amid scattered snow.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, touring evacuation centers in the Schenectady area Sunday night, declared, "We've had ice storms before, but none has ever been as bad as this."

He was talking about a combination of freezing rain, snow and ice accumulation that began Friday and that, by late Sunday night, froze community activities — from high school basketball games to worship services—to a stop.

Families began entering the emergency centers Friday night. Others followed as the storm damage left thousands of homes without electricity or heat.

At its peak, the storm had darkened the homes and businesses of more than 75,000 of 338,800 customers of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. in eastern-central New York.

A power company spokesman said Sunday night that the number of homes and businesses without electricity and heat was down to about 40,000.

But, a Schenectady County Civil Defense official said, it will be a few days before thousands of broken tree limbs and snapped power lines can be cleared from city streets and yards. Until then, many families will remain in evacuation centers.

To Seek Delay in Action

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A constitutional amendment prohibiting the Missouri General Assembly from acting on legislation for 60 days after a governor's inauguration will be introduced by State Sen. John J. Johnson.

Johnson, a St. Louis County Democrat, said he was "having all phases of this proposal researched thoroughly by experts so that I may present a well-rounded and complete plan for consideration as soon as possible."

Johnson said in an interview his plan is necessary because the new governor has only about two months after his election "to prepare recommendations on a budget, set up his administration and otherwise formulate a program under which the state will operate during the next biennium.

"It is grossly unfair to expect an incoming governor to cope as adequately as he should with the many problems he must face immediately upon assumption of office when he has only two months to prepare."

The senator, who won re-election to a second term last month, added that members of the General Assembly, "many of them new, are being sworn in at the same time as the governor and immediately must plunge into consideration and passage of legislation.

Under Johnson's proposal, after members of the General Assembly are sworn in and the inauguration of the governor, formalities of organizing the legislature would then be completed.

Johnson suggests that after the legislature is organized it should then recess until March 1, at which time it would reconvene to hear recommendations from the chief executive and begin considerating and acting on legislation.

During the interim, bills could be introduced and copies mailed to each legislator for study prior to reconvening on March 1. Johnson also recommended an April 1 deadline for introducing bills.

"It would eliminate to a great degree the present situation wherein members of both houses find a flood of bills pouring in on them in such quantities that they cannot adequately prepare themselves," Johnson added.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. John M. Dalton today appointed James A. Finch Jr. of Cape Girardeau to the Missouri Supreme Court. He will replace veteran Judge C. A. Leedy Jr. who is retiring Dec. 31.

Finch, a Republican, was one of three nominees submitted to the governor Saturday by the Appellate Judicial Commission.

Dalton said Finch, 57, "is a personal friend of mine for many years. I've tried cases against him and I've tried cases with him. He is not only a top lawyer but a top citizen."

The governor said the panel was an excellent one. The other two nominees were Circuit Judge James D. Clemens of Bowling Green and Robert G. Brady, a commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Dalton said if Missouri is to have a truly nonpartisan court there should be some Republicans. He said he has appointed three Republicans so far to the judicial system.

Finch has been on the University of Missouri Board of Curators since 1951 and has been president of the board since 1941. Dalton said his work there has been outstanding.

He formerly served as chairman of the late Gov. James T. Blair's Advisory Council on Higher Education.

On the high court he will take the place of the last of judges dating from the Pendergast days in Missouri politics. Judge Leedy was appointed in 1933 by the late Gov. Guy B. Park and has been reelected every time since then.

He is stepping down at 69 to move to Kansas City where he plans to do some writing.

The governor deferred naming a new judge to the Kansas City Court of Appeals but said he might have an appointment there in a few days.

The Appellate Judicial Commission gave him a panel of three nominees Saturday that included Circuit Judge William H. Kimberlin of Harrisonville, Fred L. Howard of Jefferson City, now secretary of the State Reciprocity Commission, and Jackson County Circuit Judge Harry A. Hall.

Hall is a Republican, the other two are Democrats.

American Couple Injured

KHARTOUM, Sudan, (AP) — Arabs and Negroes battled through the night in Khartoum, and fighting continued today. An estimated 10 persons were reported killed, and scores were injured, including an American couple.

The racial warfare broke out when thousands of Negroes from South Sudan massed at the Khartoum Airport to protest domination by the East African nation's Arab majority. Then they invaded the city, smashing automobiles and attacking Europeans and Americans as well as Arabs.

Apparently the Europeans and Americans were mistaken in the dark for Arabs. "This is not against you," a leader of the mob told an English family and two Americans at the airport.

The rioters smashed windows at Communist China's embassy.

Iron shutters were lowered over the windows of the U.S. Embassy, and a Marine guard was on the alert.

Helmeted police and troops with bayonets dispersed the Negro mob. An hour later thousands of Arabs armed with sticks invaded the Negro quarter adjoining the airport. Bloody clashes were reported through the night.

The demonstration started at Khartoum Airport when a crowd of about 5,000 Negroes assembled to greet Interior Minister Clement Mboro. Mboro, a Negro, had been touring South Sudan, where Negro tribes are rebelling against the Arabs of the northern Sudan who dominate the government and the army.

At first held in check by the organizers, the crowd chanted slogans calling for the separation of the southern provinces from the rest of the country. Then the mob broke through the thin cordon of organizers and stormed the airport building, smashing doors and glass.

The crowd had grown to about 10,000 as it spilled into an adjacent residential section.

Dr. Teller To Speak

ROLLA, Mo. Dec 5-- Mr. Edward Teller, renowned nuclear physicist, will speak to the University of Missouri at Rolla Nuclear Engineering Society at 7:30 p.m. on Friday evening December 11th. Teller will speak before the group in the auditorium of the civil engineering building and the speech is open to the public.

Dr. Teller was born in Hungary and educated in Europe, and in 1941 became a United States citizen. His early research dealt with theoretical physics, but discovery of the fission process and the menace of Nazi Germany soon drew him into the small group of men who started the atomic energy effort in America.

Dr. Parker Finds Unprecedented Numbers of Students at Nation's Colleges With a Grand Total of 2,090,638; M.U. has 30,304

(EDITOR: Dr. and Mrs. Parker were residents of Sikeston from 1938-1941 when Dr. Parker was a teacher of history and speech and debating coach at Sikeston High School.)

CINCINNATI, OHIO, -- "In veritable academic phalanx, college and university students marched onto American campuses this year in unprecedented numbers and percentage increases," the University of Cincinnati's Dr. Garland G. Parker reported here tonight.

In his annual survey of collegiate enrollment for School and Society, educational journal, Dr. Parker finds 1,111 accredited universities and four-year colleges have admitted 2,090,638 full-time and a grand total of 4,118,735 students.

Full - time students are up 10.1 per cent in the comparably reporting institutions as against increases of 6.4 per cent in 1963 and 6.2 per cent in 1962. The grand total is 9.3 per cent larger than last year.

"This is the year of the spectacular for freshmen" Dr. Parker noted. He is dean of admissions and registrar at Cincinnati university.

Freshman attendance is 17.3 per cent larger than last year -- "the largest percentage increase that is likely to occur in the foreseeable future," Dr. Parker pointed out.

"The capacity of the nation's institutions of higher learning to accept this fantastic increase is nothing short of phenomenal," he added.

Despite predictions of diminishing importance in this highly technical age, the liberal arts and the pure sciences are enjoying a renaissance, the Cincinnati statistician learned. There are also 17.3 per cent more freshmen in these fields than last year and by far the larger proportion of all current freshmen have elected these fields.

But education freshmen constitute the percentage leader among the designated first-year groups -- 18.0 per cent more than last year. Other freshman increases by fields of study include:

Business administration, 16.8 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 3.0 per cent after two successive declining years).

Engineering, 11.0 per cent (compared with a 1963 gain of only 1.2 per cent and losses in 1962 and 1961).

Agriculture, 12.4 per cent ("its first significant increase in many years").

Nursing, 15.9 per cent.

Today's freshmen "are only the front line of a vast throng on their way to colleges in this and the next decade," Dr. Parker warned in declaring this is no time for complacency.

"If we take account only of the pool of potential applicants available, we may expect another 10 to 12 per cent increase of freshmen next year," Dr. Parker said. "In 1966 there may be a small decrease, in 1967 and 1968 there will be little change, but steady increases should be resumed in 1969 and thereafter.

"As the massive freshman classes of this year and next move into the upper classes and are replaced by almost equally ponderous groups, our instutitions of higher education will find themselves grappling with the educational challenge of the century.

"If they are not ready, a crash program of preparation should be the order of the day. All the resources and educational manpower that can be mustered in both public and private areas will be needed to take care of this academic host.

"This task is a responsibility that should be felt by every citizen."

Turning to full-time students (including freshmen) as the "source from which the nation derives its business administrators, engineers, doctors, lawyers, ministers, pharmacists, scientists, teachers, and other professionals," Dr.

MEN BEHIND the oil drilling project, three miles northeast of Blodgett were rounded together last week. Drilling operations have been halted for the past week after reaching a depth of 1,452 feet, when a section of the casing broke. The rig will be moved to another point nearby and another well started today. Oil traces were found at 1,028 and 1,134 feet. Women drivers have borne the brunt of many heated conversations, cartoons and jokes. However, there probably is much truth to these stories when you consider the little driving practice women get.

Many women drive as seldom as a few times a month, usually because their husbands take the family car during the day and then drive the family whereever they are going at night. The only time these women get an opportunity to drive is to an occasional club meeting or on a night out with the girls.

Some women may have the car during the day, but their driving practice is limited to taking the children to school, visiting the local shopping center or running errands in their own neighborhoods. All their driving practice is limited to daylight driving in an area well known to them.

It isn't any wonder that these women are unsure of their driving ability and make mistakes when they drive at night or in unfamiliar areas.

In order for a woman to become a better driver at night, she should learn to depend on signs rather than the familiar landmarks she uses during the day. Because many road signs are reflective and can be seen for long distance at night, the woman who chooses routes with these highly visible signs to guide her will have little trouble.

A woman who drives infrequently at night should familiarize herself with special night driving regulations such as the reduced speed limits in some states.

She should also exercise more caution when passing other cars at night because the entire outline of an oncoming car cannot be seen and she will have to judge its distance from her only by the distance of the car's headlights.

EARLY CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

A "Proud Post Office Has Its Chest Out" headline was followed by a Washington report that our swift couriers may accomplish their appointed Christmas rounds with record speed and economy this year. Provided, among other things, the department has record co-operation with its "mail early" program.

Weighting down the appointed rounds will be millions of Christmas cards, one of the nicest things of the Yule season. They can't be mailed early unless they are purchased and addressed early.

Lets get with it.

"It's surprising how few people can tell you the police telephone number when you ask them," Chief Gilbert L. Deyle of the Baltimore county police said recently. "However, they can quickly tick off without any hesitancy the numbers of department stores, cab stands and markets they have memorized.

"This is all well and good, but in the police business seconds count and can mean the difference between life and death in an emergency," Chief Deyle continued. "Failing to know the emergency number and routine call number means a loss of time in obtaining emergency aid."

To correct this situation and implant the police department telephone number firmly in the minds of Baltimore county citizens, Chief Deyle has ordered bumper stickers, bearing the department phone number in prominent letters, affixed to all police vehicles in the city. As easily readable by night as by day because they are made of a reflective material, the stickers will be a constant reminder of the number to call when Baltimoreans need to phone the police.

Chief Deyle hopes that the constant exposure to the police phone number will result in its memorization by most of the population.

The police official has also enlisted the aid of business firms in publicizing the number by having them use bumper stickers on their trucks and delivery vehicles.

How come: David Bell, head of our foreign aid, recently told Congress that 14 of the 19 recipient nations are now self-sufficient; 19 are almost okay financially; and only eight still depend upon our largesse. Yet he asked for the largest foreign aid appropriation since 1953. We don't get it, either.

"Why, of course," the clerk admitted.

"Then let me have his room. He's not coming."

"GIMME"

Something dangerous has happened to this country -- spread of the cowardly idea that the world owes you and me a living just because we're here.

Socialists love to mouth the Declaration "Life, Liberty and Happiness" but they omit the most important word -- "Pursuit." Pursuit takes energy and intestinal fortitude which beatniks and rabble rousers and their rabble haven't got and haven't the courage to acquire.

"Automation took my job of carriage driver (or ice-man or whatever) so you owe me relief." Get out and drive yourself, and if you haven't got a skill, be the best floor sweeper or day laborer in town -- and you'll get along.

If you dropped out of school or won't go to night school because it's too hard, whose fault is it but yours that you haven't got a job or a salable skill?

This once - great nation was built on self-respect, not self-pity. "Gimme" can wreck it.

Medical people have found that one of the biggest obstacles to getting people to take preventive health measures is the apparently natural feeling that "It can't happen to me."

And the more serious the disease and the greater the belief that it is incurable, the stronger this feeling seems to be.

This was the most important fact to come out of an 18-month survey recently concluded by the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

In the study, 1,500 adults across the country, selected as a typical cross-section, were asked about their attitudes to three diseases of varying severity: tooth decay, tuberculosis and cancer.

In each case, the majority felt that other people were more likely to contact the diseases than they themselves. But with the most serious of the three, "the thought of contracting cancer would seem to be . . . so painful that almost a third of the people . . . could not admit it at all."

With such an attitude, it is no surprise that 90 per cent of the interviews had not had a cancer test during the previous 10 years.

The researchers recommend that health educators place less emphasis on the seriousness of cancer and TB and start stressing science's growing ability to detect and cure these diseases in their early stages, even before any symptoms are evident.

SMART KIDS

Countless generations of kids have known it intuitively, but at last there is scientific proof:

Some people are allergic to contact with water.

Two physicians in Philadelphia, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, told of studies of three patients who developed hives after contact with water or sweat.

That's the rub -- er - itch, kids. Unless you can break out in a rash, may as well face the fact that you and that bathtub are going to have lots of encounters.

DRESS TIPS: It is difficult for the average consumer to judge the quality of a suit of clothes. Much that affects the wearability, appearance and even the fit of the garment is hidden in the construction. You must therefore buy largely on faith -- faith in your own judgment; faith in the brand-name or store-name label that the suit carries and, most importantly, faith in the recommendations of the store where the purchase is being made.

HOW LONG?

The controversy over the High Mountain Sheep Dam on the Snake River has been going on for years. It has been a classic example of the endless and bitter political opposition to private enterprise in the field of electric power.

Meanwhile, of course, a needed development, designed to cost more than $200 million has been interminably delayed. The surge it would give to businesses of many kinds and to employment has been blocked. And a major new source of taxation that would follow private utility construction and operation of the dam has so far been lost.

A short time ago it looked as if the green light had at least been lit. The Federal Power Commission licensed an organization of several investor-owned utilities to build the dam. This, one would have thought, was the end of the matter. But the socialist forces never give up, no matter how much damage they may do to power-hungry regions. A public power system announces that it is going to the courts to argue that it should be given "preference" under the federal power law. "Preference" for officialism sounds strange in a republic.

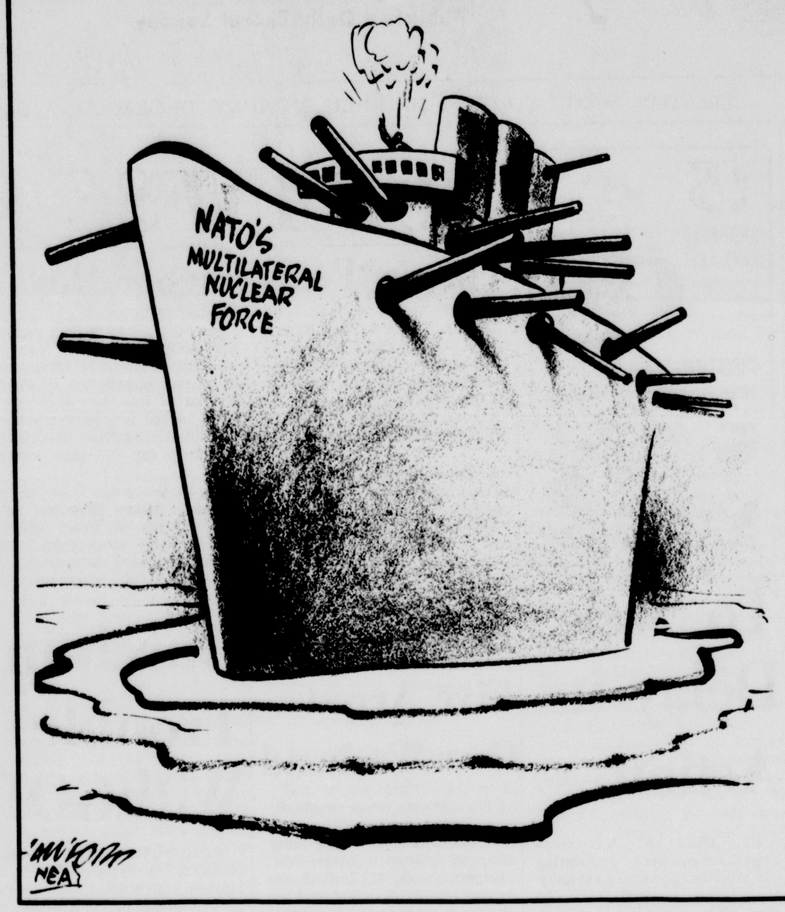

How much more delay this will cause is a matter of conjecture. The private utility group is all ready to go ahead--using private earnings and savings instead of tax money. The FPC decision held that it has the superior plan and should be given priority. How long can progress be needlessly blocked by the plea of "preference" for public plants?

WELFARE SECRETARY

Anthony Celebrezze, new Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, knows many welfare problems firsthand. From the age of six, the Catholic Digest notes, he hawked newspapers on "Celebrezze's corner" in Cleveland, labored in a railroad section gang, waited on table, drove a truck, boxed for small fees in club shows, and dug ditches.

SECURITY AND FREEDOM TOO

The "search for security" has helped build civilizations and it has contributed to their destruction. Right now in the United States how we decide to pursue the goal of security will determine what kind of a country our children will have to live in.

For years politicians have found the magic of success to lie in the direction of making government responsible for solving more of the individual's problems at taxpayer expense. But the drawbacks to this course are daily becoming more apparent. As every person knows who has ever been connected with a government program involving the payment of money, when the state sets out to take care of us, it is also going to tell us what to do. The minority who need help can be cared for in every respect without it being necessary for the majority to paddle around with all heads at the same level in a lukewarm paternalistic pea soup. Alternatives are open as long as compulsory public welfare is prevented from mushrooming and eliminating by taxation, the individual's ability to plan for his future security.

The insurance industry makes available one of the answers to the welfare state--and it works in two ways. Through insurance, and in line with his own resources and particular needs and wishes, the individual can provide for his future and that of his family or his business. Secondly, every time an insurance policy is sold, capital is accumulated to finance the growth of free enterprise to build a home, an office building, a factory, a pipeline, etc. Since the end of World War II, life insurance companies alone have made available more than $42 billion, not tax money, to help over 4 million families acquire their own homes.

The insurance industry helps build job producing free enterprise that can do more to bring security and a better life than can a debilitating welfare state.

DEMOTE CONGRESS?

With the changes of many faces in the 89th Congress, there are also likely to be some changes in the ground rules.

For some time, now, the "liberal" Democrats have been chafing at the restraints to hasty enactment of legislation posed by seniority, committees, unlimited debate (in the Senate) and other age-old trappings of our Congress.

Now they will be in a position to impose their will.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark has drawn up proposals for "reforming" the Senate to maximize an administration's chances of speedy action on its programs and minimize any discussion of the opposition views.

The House during the 88th Congress effected a compromise that reduced the ability of the Rules Committee to cool off legislative proposals before they reached the floor. Now compromise may not be necessary, and more power may pass from committees.

With the new majorities and with the clear break of the conservative South from the mainstream of the Democratic party, changes in the new Congress may be major.

This is all a part of the gradual transfer of power from the legislative to the executive and judicial branches. Increasingly in recent decades administrations have proposed legislation and written it, then demanded that it be enacted. And the Supreme Court has been accused even by some of its own Justices of appropriating powers that belong to Congress by writing new laws.

There is no question that all this makes Government easier. There is much question that it makes it better. The Presidency is decided by the whole nation, and no President since Washington ever could claim to represent all States. The Supreme Court is not even elected.

Congress is the branch that is close to the people. There are many divergent points of view in the U.S. deserving of attention, and if Congress is weakened all of us will lose.

THE KNOWLEDGE PILEUP

One odd characteristic of our time is that the increase in knowledge has far outrun our means of utilizing knowledge. One result of this is much duplication of effort in research. Another result is, as Surgeon General Luther Terry points out, that full use is not being made of medical advances.

The literature of findings in chemistry is often cited as an example of what is happening in various branches of science. It has been estimated that if a chemistry graduate did nothing but read professional journals in his field, he would fall behind 10 years every year; the material published is vastly more than one man can absorb, or even scan.

In medicine, according to Surgeon General Terry, the communications failure has an immediate impact on individual lives. Suffering and death occur, he reports, because new knowledge "is not reaching the people who can use it."

Considerable thought is being devoted to finding better ways of making new data available to those who can use it, but there has been no breakthrough. More and more, it appears that science will have to solve the problem of communications if it is not to bog down in its own findings.

BIKES IN BLOOM

Right behind the first crocus, the door-to-door seed salesman, Junior's first crush, and other sure signs of Spring, will come an army of 55 million bicyclists. For the ever-growing two-wheel set, Spring is THEIR time. Away hockey sticks and sleds, away boots, skis and galoshes, and out with the faithful two-wheelers.

Spring biking gets an added boost this year in the person of the youngest of the young-in-heart, Dr. Paul Dudley White. As National Chairman of American Bike Month this May, Dr. White is calling for all America to join him. He says, "The bicycle can undoubtedly add years to life, and health to those years. Some of the happiest hours of my life have been spent on a bike. It has kept me young in mind and body." It will do the same for you.

American Bike Month is sponsored annually by the domestic bicycle industry, in a major effort to assure safer, happier riders. They accomplish this by offering free bike inspections at bike stores all over America, by offering free booklets on the fun of safe cycling, and by cooperating with PTA's and other civic and service organizations in conducting community bike safety programs.

Dr. White has joined the campaign this last May because he believes in its merit. He believes it is worthwhile. He also believes, as he has said so often, "Cycling is one of the best ways to achieve and maintain physical fitness."

Throughout May, Dr. White campaigned for more cycling for fun and good health by people of all ages, and for increased cycling facilities -- more bike paths and trails in our parks and recreation area, more bike tracks, more safe cycling routes in our towns and cities -- more opportunity for America's legions of riders to enjoy their health giving sport in safety and pleasure.

The whole nation, we think, not just bike riders and their parents, should salute Dr. White for his unselfish dedication to the health and happiness of others. And wouldn't American Bike Month be a good time for everyone to look-around their own town, survey they own facilities, and see what they can do to make their own area a safer and happier place for our many riders?

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The automobile explosion in America is outdistancing the population explosion.

About 71 per cent of U.S. men and 46.5 per cent of the women have a driver's license.

Board chairmen of banks with assests of under $300 million earn an average of $39,000 a year, those with more than $300 million in assets earn $72,000.

Speaking of money, did you know that a nickel is75 per cent copper, and that a dollar is 10 per cent copper and only 90 per cent silver?

If you have a normal appetite, you consume a million calories a year. This includes some 200 soft drinks, which account for roughly 17,000 calories.

Quotable notables: "This is daddy's bedtime secret for today: Man is born broken. He lives by mending. The grace of God is glue." —Eugene O'Neill.

No wonder your eyes sometimes get tired. In a year they move up, down or sideways more than 36 million times.

The odds are against having a white Christmas in over three-fourths of the nation. In the 17th century Massachusetts had a law imposing a five dollar fine on anyone making merry on Christmas Day. In Connecticut the people were forbidden to make mince pies or play cards or any musical instruments except drums and trumpets.

Why wars are getting more expensive: In the time of Julius Caesar, to slay an enemy cost 75 cents. In the Civil War, the mortality expense was about $5,000 a man; in World War I $50,000, and in World War II more than $125,000.

Thomas Jefferson was the first gourmet among U.S. presidents. He popularized the tomato, and also is believed to be the first host to serve spaghetti and ice cream in America.

"The best cure for getting up on the wrong side of the bed is to get into it a little earlier." — Arnold Glasow.

It was Maurice Chevalier, now 74, who observed, "Oldage isn't so bad when you consider the alternative."

The Washington Merry- Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Here is the roll call of more congressmen who have been busy junketing abroad at the taxpayers' expense.

The venerable Mike Kirwan, Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, aged 78, and a champion junketeer, is keeping up his record. He has been on an inspection trip to the South Sea islands, particularly Samoa, one of the most delightful island paradises of all.

While the snow has been falling on Youngstown and the steelworkers are worried about automation throwing them out of jobs, Mike has been inspecting public works in the South Seas.

Most of the buildings in Samoa are built with thatch roofs, and it's difficult to ascertain exactly what Mike will inspect. Possibly he'll look over the fish situation in his capacity as a fish expert. He put across a $10 million fish aquarium for the District of Columbia when its residents would much rather have had money to improve their schools.

Rep. Charles R. Jonas, the North Carolina Republican, is covering the same South Sea islands on a separate junket, expenses also defrayed by the taxpayers. Why Jonas, a Republican, and Kirwan, a Democrat, couldn't team up together is not known.

Another interesting trip is being enjoyed by Reps. Otto Passman, D-La., and John Rhodes, R-Ariz. Though they belong to opposite political parties, they were able to get together for the delightful duty of checking on foreign aid in such interesting areas as Beirut, Lebanon; various cities in India; Bangkok, the fascinating capital of Thailand; Hong Kong, the shopping metropolis of the world; and Tokyo, the largest city in the world.

Passman prides himself on cutting the foreign aid budget. Last spring he bemoaned the fact that his colleagues wouldn't go along with him on any further cuts. They argued that President Johnson had cut enough. On this trip Otto is trying to figure out more cuts.

But in Hong Kong he will stop in to see his favorite jeweler to buy more watches. Otto has the largest collection of watches of any member of Congress — almost as many as he has suits of clothes and considerably more than he has Cadillacs. Otto confides that he always keeps two Cadillacs.

--TOURING LATIN AMERICA--

Another group from the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture one year ago delayed the agricultural appropriations for six months while he argued with Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia over the location of a peanut laboratory.

Russell wanted it in Georgia; Whitten wanted it in Mississippi. They compromised by placing a Southeastern Research Laboratory in Georgia and a Cotton Weed Control Laboratory in Whitten's district in Mississippi.

Included in Whitten's junket to Latin America are Robert Michel, Ill., Elford Cederberg, Mich., and Glenard Lipscomb, Calif., all Republicans, and John Slack, Democrat of West Virginia.

Another Appropriations Committee member, Rep. John J. Flynt, Jr., D-Ga., is on a pleasant junket to the Far East including Japan, Korea, Formosa, Hong Kong, and Manila. He will get back just before Christmas -- Dec. 22 -- presumably with a nice collection of Christmas presents.

Note: Congratulations to Rep. George Mahon of Texas, new chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, for ruling out foreign junkets for lame duck congressmen. He has said that since they can't participate in more legislation, they don't need to travel abroad. However, he has not ruled out junkets for reelected congressmen such as those listed above.

--AMA AND LBJ--

Officials of the American Medical Association may not know it, but one of the factors which got President Johnson's back up was a series of health ads in the Texas newspapers just a couple of days before the election.

One ad appearing in the Dallas Morning News on Nov. 1 featured this headline: "Health is always a big topic in national politics." It then proceeded to quote various medical authorities and previous press reports regarding Johnson's 1955 heart attack, casting doubt about his ability to survive four years in office. The medical quotes gave the appearance of being prepared by members of the medical profession, even though the ad was signed by "The Goldwater For President Committee."

The advertisement concluded with this appeal: "If you vote for Lyndon Johnson, you could be voting to make Hubert Humphrey president.

"Never before has the extreme left had it's man so close to the presidency.

"Vote for Barry Goldwater."

President Johnson has long been for Medicare. But since the appearance of this and other similar ads, he is determined to put medical care for the elderly at the top of his legislative program.

Note: Despite various ads of this kind, Johnson carried Texas by a whopping 698,173 margin.

--ADVICE TO GOLDWATER--

Syndicate salesmen peddling the Barry Goldwater column to newspapers should steer clear of the Syracuse Herald-Journal, edited by stanch Re-Journal, edited by staunch Republican Casey Jones.

Jones, in a recent editorial, captioned, "Throw the bum out," advised his fellow Republicans as follows:

"Sen. Goldwater has always been in the department store business. If in his capacity as a store executive he had advocated the stocking of goods that did not sell and directed the writing of advertising that did not attract . . . his directors would not ask him to continue in a position of leadership. Someone would get up in a directors' meeting, pound the table, and demand that the company 'throw the bum out.'

"Barry Goldwater," concluded editor Jones, "has led the Republican party to that state."

Scores of Crime Syndicate Bombings Warn Against Attempts to Crack Labor Rackets

Chicago: -- It sounded much like Saigon, but it was in suburban Proviso township, Illinois, that the black powder bomb exploded the other Sunday evening. Apparently terror by night can no more be halted in the center of this nation than it can in the heartland of Viet Nam.

The blast which wrecked a restaurant by blowing out an entire wall and digging a nine-foot hole in the concrete floor was the eleventh such attack by bomb or arson in the past four months, the 37th such assault on a restaurant since Jan. 1962 and the 80th bombing in less than two years in this area.

Though Chicago swarms with city, county, state and private investigators, not one of these crimes has been solved. The latest attack was on the new Homestead restaurant now being built by Ashley Ricketts who testified before the McClellan labor rackets committee on July 16, 1958.

The Ricketts people have been in the catering business for years yet the Homestead owner told authorities that he knew no reason for the attack on his property. Neither did the owners of the other restaurants, taverns and gin mills which have been blasted or burned.

Millions of dollars worth of such properties has been destroyed in the heart of Chicago and in its suburbs. Yet, as one authority put it, "It is unbelievable what has happened and that no one will talk or that a real suspect has not been found."

No local or federal authority will speculate on the record, but there's no doubt some of them believe this is the Chicago crime syndicate's warning to all comers not to believe that the tightest and toughest gangland of all is cracking or can be penetrated as other Cosa Nostra bands have been.

Apparently the mob which has been deep in the labor, supply, trucking, construction and entertainment rackets here has succeeded in remaining impregnable. None of its top leaders has been jailed. None has disappeared, as did Joe "Bananas." None has been assassinated, as was Albert (the Executioner) Anastasia.

They are known to snear at the Eastern Cosa Nostra units, many of whose leaders are in prison or are under tough indictments. Typical of the troubles besetting the Eastern "crowd" is the coming trial of the powerful trucking and garment shop operator, James Plumeri, alias Jimmie Doyle, uncle of Johnny Dio. The latter was named by Joe Valachi as a force in the Cosa Nostra who once was powerful in a series of unions.

Doyle is an ex-convict whose tax trial soon will make headlines in New York City. This is a federal indictment. Thus the U. S. government has been able to zero in on a man who refused to deny or affirm he was a member of the Mafia when he was questioned by the McClellan committee on July 3, 1958.

The Chicago syndicate has been able to stay out of the federal reach by sticking to its bombing and arson tactics. These are local and state violations.

However, the Justice Dept's Organized Crime and Rackets section has a plan to counter the terror if it can get the new Congress to heed the desperation of the restaurateurs, small businessmen and legitimate unions.

It can be revealed that the department has prepared a bill which would amend the "travel law" passed on Sept. 13, 1961. This law makes it a crime to cross state lines, or go beyond U. S. borders, or use any facilities of interstate and foreign commerce, including the mails, with intent to distribute the profits of unlawful activity.

It is also a federal crime, under this law, to commit any violence to further unlawful activities across state lines or to facilitate, promote, manage or establish means for carrying on unlawful activity across state lines.

The Justice Department wants to add arson to the law, as well as the bombing of business which results in fires. Thus the use of materials originating in other states and resulting in acts of arson could be made a crime. Or the importation of thugs to set the fires would also fall under federal law.

This would enable the FBI to move in. If the bureau could trace the arsonists, it could crack the Chicago terrorists -- and prove that terror by night can be wiped out of our land.

Women drivers have borne the brunt of many heated conversations, cartoons and jokes. However, there probably is much truth to these stories when you consider the little driving practice women get.

Many women drive as seldom as a few times a month, usually because their husbands take the family car during the day and then drive the family whereever they are going at night. The only time these women get an opportunity to drive is to an occasional club meeting or on a night out with the girls.

Some women may have the car during the day, but their driving practice is limited to taking the children to school, visiting the local shopping center or running errands in their own neighborhoods. All their driving practice is limited to daylight driving in an area well known to them.

It isn't any wonder that these women are unsure of their driving ability and make mistakes when they drive at night or in unfamiliar areas.

In order for a woman to become a better driver at night, she should learn to depend on signs rather than the familiar landmarks she uses during the day. Because many road signs are reflective and can be seen for long distance at night, the woman who chooses routes with these highly visible signs to guide her will have little trouble.

A woman who drives infrequently at night should familiarize herself with special night driving regulations such as the reduced speed limits in some states.

She should also exercise more caution when passing other cars at night because the entire outline of an oncoming car cannot be seen and she will have to judge its distance from her only by the distance of the car's headlights.

EARLY CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

A "Proud Post Office Has Its Chest Out" headline was followed by a Washington report that our swift couriers may accomplish their appointed Christmas rounds with record speed and economy this year. Provided, among other things, the department has record co-operation with its "mail early" program.

Weighting down the appointed rounds will be millions of Christmas cards, one of the nicest things of the Yule season. They can't be mailed early unless they are purchased and addressed early.

Lets get with it.

"It's surprising how few people can tell you the police telephone number when you ask them," Chief Gilbert L. Deyle of the Baltimore county police said recently. "However, they can quickly tick off without any hesitancy the numbers of department stores, cab stands and markets they have memorized.

"This is all well and good, but in the police business seconds count and can mean the difference between life and death in an emergency," Chief Deyle continued. "Failing to know the emergency number and routine call number means a loss of time in obtaining emergency aid."

To correct this situation and implant the police department telephone number firmly in the minds of Baltimore county citizens, Chief Deyle has ordered bumper stickers, bearing the department phone number in prominent letters, affixed to all police vehicles in the city. As easily readable by night as by day because they are made of a reflective material, the stickers will be a constant reminder of the number to call when Baltimoreans need to phone the police.

Chief Deyle hopes that the constant exposure of the police phone number will result in its memorization by most of the population.

The police official has also enlisted the aid of business firms in publicizing the number by having them use bumper stickers on their trucks and delivery vehicles.

How come: David Bell, head of our foreign aid, recently told Congress that 14 of the 19 recipient nations are now self-sufficient; 19 are almost okay financially; and only eight still depend upon our largesse. Yet he asked for the largest foreign aid appropriation since 1953. We don't get it, either.

"Why, of course," the clerk admitted.

"Then let me have his room. He's not coming."

"GIMME"

Something dangerous has happened to this country -- spread of the cowardly idea that the world owes you and me a living just because we're here.

Socialists love to mouth the Declaration "Life, Liberty and Happiness" but they omit the most important word -- "Pursuit." Pursuit takes energy and intestinal fortitude which beatniks and rabble rousers and their rabble haven't got and haven't the courage to acquire.

"Automation took my job of carriage driver (or ice-man or whatever) so you owe me relief." Get out and drive yourself, and if you haven't got a skill, be the best floor sweeper or day laborer in town -- and you'll get along.

If you dropped out of school or won't go to night school because it's too hard, whose fault is it but yours that you haven't got a job or a salable skill?

This once - great nation was built on self-respect, not self-pity. "Gimme" can wreck it.

Medical people have found that one of the biggest obstacles to getting people to take preventive health measures is the apparently natural feeling that "It can't happen to me."

And the more serious the disease and the greater the belief that it is incurable, the stronger this feeling seems to be.

This was the most important fact to come out of an 18-month survey recently concluded by the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

In the study, 1,500 adults across the country, selected as a typical cross-section, were asked about their attitudes to three diseases of varying severity: tooth decay, tuberculosis and cancer.

In each case, the majority felt that other people were more likely to contact the diseases than they themselves. But with the most serious of the three, "the thought of contracting cancer would seem to be . . . so painful that almost a third of the people . . . could not admit it at all."

With such an attitude, it is no surprise that 90 per cent of the interviews had not had a cancer test during the previous 10 years.

The researchers recommend that health educators place less emphasis on the seriousness of cancer and TB and start stressing science's growing ability to detect and cure these diseases in their early stages, even before any symptoms are evident.

SMART KIDS

Countless generations of kids have known it intuitively, but at last there is scientific proof:

Some people are allergic to contact with water.

Two physicians in Philadelphia, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, told of studies of three patients who developed hives after contact with water or sweat.

That's the rub -- er - itch, kids. Unless you can break out in a rash, may as well face the fact that you and that bathtub are going to have lots of encounters.

DRESS TIPS: It is difficult for the average consumer to judge the quality of a suit of clothes. Much that affects the wearability, appearance and even the fit of the garment is hidden in the construction. You must therefore buy largely on faith -- faith in your own judgment; faith in the brand-name or store-name label that the suit carries and, most importantly, faith in the recommendations of the store where the purchase is being made.

HOW LONG?

The controversy over the High Mountain Sheep Dam on the Snake River has been going on for years. It has been a classic example of the endless and bitter political opposition to private enterprise in the field of electric power.

Meanwhile, of course, a needed development, designed to cost more than $200 million has been interminably delayed. The surge it would give to businesses of many kinds and to employment has been blocked. And a major new source of taxation that would follow private utility construction and operation of the dam has so far been lost.

A short time ago it looked as if the green light had at least been lit. The Federal Power Commission licensed an organization of several investor-owned utilities to build the dam. This, one would have thought, was the end of the matter. But the socialist forces never give up, no matter how much damage they may do to power-hungry regions. A public power system announces that it is going to the courts to argue that it should be given "preference" under the federal power law. "Preference" for officialism sounds strange in a republic.

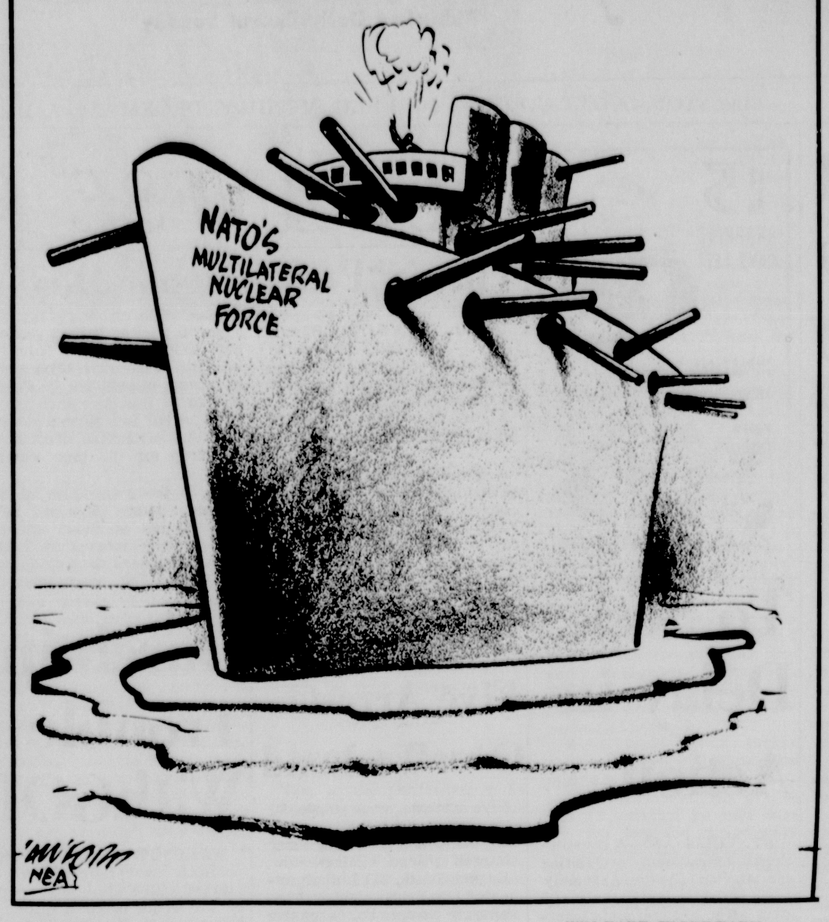

How much more delay this will cause is a matter of conjecture. The private utility group is all ready to go ahead--using private earnings and savings instead of tax money. The FPC decision held that it has the superior plan and should be given priority. How long can progress be needlessly blocked by the plea of "preference" for public plants?

WELFARE SECRETARY

Anthony Celebrezze, new Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, knows many welfare problems firsthand. From the age of six, the Catholic Digest notes, he hawked newspapers on "Celebrezze's corner" in Cleveland, labored in a railroad section gang, waited on table, drove a truck, boxed for small fees in club shows, and dug ditches.

SECURITY AND FREEDOM TOO

The "search for security" has helped build civilizations and it has contributed to their destruction. Right now in the United States how we decide to pursue the goal of security will determine what kind of a country our children will have to live in.

For years politicians have found the magic of success to lie in the direction of making government responsible for solving more of the individual's problems at taxpayer expense. But the drawbacks to this course are daily becoming more apparent. As every person knows who has ever been connected with a government program involving the payment of money, when the state sets out to take care of us, it is also going to tell us what to do. The minority who need help can be cared for in every respect without it being necessary for the majority to paddle around with all heads at the same level in a lukewarm paternalistic pea soup. Alternatives are open as long as compulsory public welfare is prevented from mushrooming and eliminating by taxation, the individual's ability to plan for his future security.

The insurance industry makes available one of the answers to the welfare state--and it works in two ways. Through insurance, and in line with his own resources and particular needs and wishes, the individual can provide for his future and that of his family or his business. Secondly, every time an insurance policy is sold, capital is accumulated to finance the growth of free enterprise to build a home, an office building, a factory, a pipeline, etc. Since the end of World War II, life insurance companies alone have made available more than $42 billion, not tax money, to help over 4 million families acquire their own homes.

The insurance industry helps build job producing free enterprise that can do more to bring security and a better life than can a debilitating welfare state.

DEMOTE CONGRESS?

With the changes of many faces in the 89th Congress, there are also likely to be some changes in the ground rules.

For some time, now, the "liberal" Democrats have been chafing at the restraints to hasty enactment of legislation posed by seniority, committees, unlimited debate (in the Senate) and other age-old trappings of our Congress.

Now they will be in a position to impose their will.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark has drawn up proposals for "reforming" the Senate to maximize an administration's chances of speedy action on its programs and minimize any discussion of the opposition views.

The House during the 88th Congress effected a compromise that reduced the ability of the Rules Committee to cool off legislative proposals before they reached the floor. Now compromise may not be necessary, and more power may pass from committees.

With the new majorities and with the clear break of the conservative South from the mainstream of the Democratic party, changes in the new Congress may be major.

This is all a part of the gradual transfer of power from the legislative to the executive and judicial branches. Increasingly in recent decades administrations have proposed legislation and written it, then demanded that it be enacted. And the Supreme Court has been accused even by some of its own Justices of appropriating powers that belong to Congress by writing new laws.

There is no question that all this makes Government easier. There is much question that it makes it better. The Presidency is decided by the whole nation, and no President since Washington ever could claim to represent all States. The Supreme Court is not even elected.

Congress is the branch that is close to the people. There are many divergent points of view in the U.S. deserving of attention, and if Congress is weakened all of us will lose.

THE KNOWLEDGE PILEUP

One odd characteristic of our time is that the increase in knowledge has far outrun our means of utilizing knowledge. One result of this is much duplication of effort in research. Another result is, as Surgeon General Luther Terry points out, that full use is not being made of medical advances.

The literature of findings in chemistry is often cited as an example of what is happening in various branches of science. It has been estimated that if a chemistry graduate did nothing but read professional journals in his field, he would fall behind 10 years every year; the material published is vastly more than one man can absorb, or even scan.

In medicine, according to Surgeon General Terry, the communications failure has an immediate impact on individual lives. Suffering and death occur, he reports, because new knowledge "is not reaching the people who can use it."

Considerable thought is being devoted to finding better ways of making new data available to those who can use it, but there has been no breakthrough. More and more, it appears that science will have to solve the problem of communications if it is not to bog down in its own findings.

BIKES IN BLOOM

Right behind the first crocus, the door-to-door seed salesman, Junior's first crush, and other sure signs of Spring, will come an army of 55 million bicyclists. For the ever-growing two-wheel set, Spring is THEIR time. Away hockey sticks and sleds, away boots, skis and galoshes, and out with the faithful two-wheelers.

Spring biking gets an added boost this year in the person of the youngest of the young-in-heart, Dr. Paul Dudley White. As National Chairman of American Bike Month this May, Dr. White is calling for all America to join him. He says, "The bicycle can undoubtedly add years to life, and health to those years. Some of the happiest hours of my life have been spent on a bike. It has kept me young in mind and body." It will do the same for you.

American Bike Month is sponsored annually by the domestic bicycle industry, in a major effort to assure safer, happier riders. They accomplish this by offering free bike inspections at bike stores all over America, by offering free booklets on the fun of safe cycling, and by cooperating with PTA's and other civic and service organizations in conducting community bike safety programs.

Dr. White has joined the campaign this last May because he believes in its merit. He believes it is worthwhile. He also believes, as he has said so often, "Cycling is one of the best ways to achieve and maintain physical fitness."

Throughout May, Dr. White campaigned for more cycling for fun and good health by people of all ages, and for increased cycling facilities -- more bike paths and trails in our parks and recreation area, more bike tracks, more safe cycling routes in our towns and cities -- more opportunity for America's legions of riders to enjoy their health giving sport in safety and pleasure.

The whole nation, we think, not just bike riders and their parents, should salute Dr. White for his unselfish dedication to the health and happiness of others. And wouldn't American Bike Month be a good time for everyone to look around their own town, survey they own facilities, and see what they can do to make their own area a safer and happier place for our many riders?

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The automobile explosion in America is outdistancing the population explosion.

About 71 per cent of U.S. men and 46.5 per cent of the women have a driver's license.

Board chairmen of banks with assests of under $300 million earn an average of $39,000 a year, those with more than $300 million in assets earn $72,000.

Speaking of money, did you know that a nickel is 75 per cent copper, and that a dollar is 10 per cent copper and only 90 per cent silver?

If you have a normal appetite, you consume a million calories a year. This includes some 200 soft drinks, which account for roughly 17,000 calories.

Quotable notables: "This is daddy's bedtime secret for today: Man is born broken. He lives by mending. The grace of God is glue." —Eugene O'Neill.

No wonder your eyes sometimes get tired. In a year they move up, down or sideways more than 36 million times.

The odds are against having a white Christmas in over three-fourths of the nation. In the 17th century Massachusetts had a law imposing a five dollar fine on anyone making merry on Christmas Day. In Connecticut the people were forbidden to make mince pies or play cards or any musical instruments except drums and trumpets.

Why wars are getting more expensive: In the time of Julius Caesar, to slay an enemy cost 75 cents. In the Civil War, the mortality expense was about $5,000 a man; in World War I $50,000, and in World War II more than $125,000.

Thomas Jefferson was the first gourmet among U.S. presidents. He popularized the tomato, and also is believed to be the first host to serve spaghetti and ice cream in America.

"The best cure for getting up on the wrong side of the bed is to get into it a little earlier." — Arnold Glasow.

It was Maurice Chevalier, now 74, who observed, "Old age isn't so bad when you consider the alternative."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Here is the roll call of more congressmen who have been busy junketing abroad at the taxpayers' expense.

The venerable Mike Kirwan, Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, aged 78, and a champion junketeer, is keeping up his record. He has been on an inspection trip to the South Sea islands, particularly Samoa, one of the most delightful island paradises of all.

While the snow has been falling on Youngstown and the steelworkers are worried about automation throwing them out of jobs, Mike has been inspecting public works in the South Seas.

Most of the buildings in Samoa are built with thatch roofs, and it's difficult to ascertain exactly what Mike will inspect. Possibly he'll look over the fish situation in his capacity as a fish expert. He put across a $10 million fish aquarium for the District of Columbia when its residents would much rather have had money to improve their schools.

Rep. Charles R. Jonas, the North Carolina Republican, is covering the same South Sea islands on a separate junket, expenses also defrayed by the taxpayers. Why Jonas, a Republican, and Kirwan, a Democrat, couldn't team up together is not known.

Another interesting trip is being enjoyed by Reps. Otto Passman, D-La., and John Rhodes, R-Ariz. Though they belong to opposite political parties, they were able to get together for the delightful duty of checking on foreign aid in such interesting areas as Beirut, Lebanon; various cities in India; Bangkok, the fascinating capital of Thailand; Hong Kong, the shopping metropolis of the world; and Tokyo, the largest city in the world.

Passman prides himself on cutting the foreign aid budget. Last spring he bemoaned the fact that his colleagues wouldn't go along with him on any further cuts. They argued that President Johnson had cut enough. On this trip Otto is trying to figure out more cuts.

But in Hong Kong he will stop in to see his favorite jeweler to buy more watches. Otto has the largest collection of watches of any member of Congress — almost as many as he has suits of clothes and considerably more than he has Cadillacs. Otto confides that he always keeps two Cadillacs.

--TOURING LATIN AMERICA--

Another group from the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture one year ago delayed the agricultural appropriations for six months while he argued with Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia over the location of a peanut laboratory.

Russell wanted it in Georgia; Whitten wanted it in Mississippi. They compromised by placing a Southeastern Research Laboratory in Georgia and a Cotton Weed Control Laboratory in Whitten's district in Mississippi.

Included in Whitten's junket to Latin America are Robert Michel, Ill., Elford Cederberg, Mich., and Glenard Lipscomb, Calif., all Republicans, and John Slack, Democrat of West Virginia.

Another Appropriations Committee member, Rep. John J. Flynt, Jr., D-Ga., is on a pleasant junket to the Far East including Japan, Korea, Formosa, Hong Kong, and Manila. He will get back just before Christmas -- Dec. 22 -- presumably with a nice collection of Christmas presents.

Note: Congratulations to Rep. George Mahon of Texas, new chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, for ruling out foreign junkets for lame duck congressmen. He has said that since they can't participate in more legislation, they don't need to travel abroad. However, he has not ruled out junkets for reelected congressmen such as those listed above.

--AMA AND LBJ--

Officials of the American Medical Association may not know it, but one of the factors which got President Johnson's back up was a series of health ads in the Texas newspapers just a couple of days before the election.

One ad appearing in the Dallas Morning News on Nov. 1 featured this headline: "Health is always a big topic in national politics." It then proceeded to quote various medical authorities and previous press reports regarding Johnson's 1955 heart attack, casting doubt about his ability to survive four years in office. The medical quotes gave the appearance of being prepared by members of the medical profession, even though the ad was signed by "The Goldwater For President Committee."

The advertisement concluded with this appeal: "If you vote for Lyndon Johnson, you could be voting to make Hubert Humphrey president.

"Never before has the extreme left had it's man so close to the presidency.

"Vote for Barry Goldwater."

President Johnson has long been for Medicare. But since the appearance of this and other similar ads, he is determined to put medical care for the elderly at the top of his legislative program.

Note: Despite various ads of this kind, Johnson carried Texas by a whopping 698,173 margin.

--ADVICE TO GOLDWATER--

Syndicate salesmen peddling the Barry Goldwater column to newspapers should steer clear of the Syracuse Herald-Journal, edited by stanch Republicans as follows:

Jones, in a recent editorial, captioned, "Throw the bum out," advised his fellow Republicans as follows:

"Sen. Goldwater has always been in the department store business. If in his capacity as a store executive he had advocated the stocking of goods that did not sell and directed the writing of advertising that did not attract . . . his directors would not ask him to continue in a position of leadership. Someone would get up in a directors' meeting, pound the table, and demand that the company 'throw the bum out.'

"Barry Goldwater," concluded editor Jones, "has led the Republican party to that state."

Scores of Crime Syndicate Bombings Warn Against Attempts to Crack Labor Rackets

Chicago: -- It sounded much like Saigon, but it was in suburban Proviso township, Illinois, that the black powder bomb exploded the other Sunday evening. Apparently terror by night can no more be halted in the center of this nation than it can in the heartland of Viet Nam.

The blast which wrecked a restaurant by blowing out an entire wall and digging a nine-foot hole in the concrete floor was the eleventh such attack by bomb or arson in the past four months, the 37th such assault on a restaurant since Jan. 1962 and the 80th bombing in less than two years in this area.

Though Chicago swarms with city, county, state and private investigators, not one of these crimes has been solved. The latest attack was on the new Homestead restaurant now being built by Ashley Ricketts who testified before the McClellan labor rackets committee on July 16, 1958.

The Ricketts people have been in the catering business for years yet the Homestead owner told authorities that he knew no reason for the attack on his property. Neither did the owners of the other restaurants, taverns and gin mills which have been blasted or burned.

Millions of dollars worth of such properties has been destroyed in the heart of Chicago and in its suburbs. Yet, as one authority put it, "It is unbelievable what has happened and that no one will talk or that a real suspect has not been found."

No local or federal authority will speculate on the record, but there's no doubt some of them believe this is the Chicago crime syndicate's warning to all comers not to believe that the tightest and toughest gangland of all is cracking or can be penetrated as other Cosa Nostra bands have been.

Apparently the mob which has been deep in the labor, supply, trucking, construction and entertainment rackets here has succeeded in remaining impregnable. None of its top leaders has been jailed. None has disappeared, as did Joe "Bananas." None has been assassinated, as was Albert (the Executioner) Anastasia.

They are known to snear at the Eastern Cosa Nostra units, many of whose leaders are in prison or are under tough indictments. Typical of the troubles besetting the Eastern "crowd" is the coming trial of the powerful trucking and garment shop operator, James Plumeri, alias Jimmie Doyle, uncle of Johnny Dio. The latter was named by Joe Valachi as a force in the Cosa Nostra who once was powerful in a series of unions.

Doyle is an ex-convict whose tax trial soon will make headlines in New York City. This is a federal indictment. Thus the U. S. government has been able to zero in on a man who refused to deny or affirm he was a member of the Mafia when he was questioned by the McClellan committee on July 3, 1958.

The Chicago syndicate has been able to stay out of the federal reach by sticking to its bombing and arson tactics. These are local and state violations.

However, the Justice Dept's Organized Crime and Rackets section has a plan to counter the terror if it can get the new Congress to heed the desperation of the restaurateurs, small businessmen and legitimate unions.

It can be revealed that the department has prepared a bill which would amend the "travel law" passed on Sept. 13, 1961. This law makes it a crime to cross state lines, or go beyond U. S. borders, or use any facilities of interstate and foreign commerce, including the mails, with intent to distribute the profits of unlawful activity.

It is also a federal crime, under this law, to commit any violence to further unlawful activities across state lines or to facilitate, promote, manage or establish means for carrying on unlawful activity across state lines.

The Justice Department wants to add arson to the law, as well as the bombing of business which results in fires. Thus the use of materials originating in other states and resulting in acts of arson could be made a crime. Or the importation of thugs to set the fires would also fall under federal law.

This would enable the FBI to move in. If the bureau could trace the arsonists, it could crack the Chicago terrorists -- and prove that terror by night can be wiped out of our land.

SYLVIA and BENNO RABINOF

Sylvia & Benno Rabinof To Present Concert December 12 For Community Concert Ass'n

Mr. Sam Harbin, President of the Delta Community Concerts has announced that the Association has changed the date of the first concert to Saturday night, December twelfth at 8 o'clock. The Executive Committee of the concert association made this change to avoid the pending conflict with the programs being planned by the First Methodist Church of Sikeston and the Charleston Public Schools. The performance of the Rabinofs, now scheduled for Saturday, promises to be one of the outstanding musical events of Sikeston's history.

Beano and Sylvia Rabinof have literally charmed their audiences in every part of the world. Asia, Africa, Europe, Middle East, and Near East have listened to the astounding repertoire which these two artists have mastered, and loved it. They have been acclaimed for their fine interpretation of the greatest classical music as well as for their sympathetic performance of the best of our contemporary composers' works.

The fact that at the age of nineteen, Mr. Rabinoff was presented to the New York concert audiences by his teacher the great Leopold Auer himself who conducted the New York Philharmonic for the performance of the very Concerto which the composer Tchaikovsky had dedicated to Auer, speaks for the native ability of Benno Rabinof; while he received his instruction from Auer who was unexcelled, as a teacher.

Mrs. Rabinof is certainly equal to the challenge of her husband's excellence as an artist. She made her debut in Paris at the age of eighteen as a pupil of the great teacher Serkin and the matchless Paderewski, and is now recognized as one of the foremost women pianists of today and a composer of more than 150 major works.

These, then, are the artists who will open the Delta Community Concert Association season on Saturday, December 12, at eight o'clock at the Sikeston Junior High School Auditorium.

A reception was held at the Coach Light Inn. The bride's table was covered with a white brocaded cloth overskirted with white net, caught up at the corners with clusters of wedding bells. The four-tiered columned cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. At the base of the cake was a confection Bible with the couple's names and wedding date, Garlands of smilax entwined the base of the cake and extended to the silver candelabra. Silver punch bowls were at each end of the table. Miss Julie Wise of Columbia, Miss., and Mrs. Bob Willis of Pleasant Hill assisted in serving the guests cake and punch. Miss Linda Shelby of Clarksdale, Miss., was in charge of the guest book.

For traveling to an undisclosed destination, the bride changed to a dark brown and white checked tweed three-piece suit with brown lizzard accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet. The couple are now at home at 707 Stevenson, Malden.

The bride graduated from Malden High School and Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus. The bridegroom graduated Malden High School and is in the accounting business.

Cardinals Hoping For N.Y. Victory

It wasn't so very long ago that the St. Louis Cardinals were vitally concerned with what went on in Yankee Stadium in New York and it will be that way again next Saturday.

This time it's the National Football League's Eastern Division title going up for grabs and the Cardinals will be the football variety instead of baseball.

The Cleveland Browns had a chance to wrap up the Eastern title Sunday but lost to St. Louis 28-19 allowing the Cards to creep within a half-game of the lead. Cleveland visits New York Saturday and the Giants, struggling through a dismal season after three straight Eastern crowns, once again are a vital factor in the Eastern race.

Should the Browns win Saturday, Sunday's game between the Philadelphia Eagles and St. Louis won't mean a thing. But a Giant victory could give the Cards the crown if St. Louis gets by the Eagles the following day.

The Giants lost their ninth in 13 games Sunday, bowing to Minnesota 30-21. In other games, Detroit ended Baltimore's 11-game winning streak 31-14, Pittsburgh topped Washington 14-7, Philadelphia downed Dallas 24-14, and San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 28-7. Saturday it was Green Bay 17, Chicago 3.

Charley Johnson keyed the Cardinal triumph, pitching two touchdown passes and running short yardage for two more scores as St. Louis stalled Cleveland's title drive. Johnson completed 15 of 22 for 167 yards.

Lou Groza kept the Browns in the game, booting four field goals.

The Giants, who handed St. Louis one of its losses and held the Cards to a tie in their other game, showed signs of life against Minnesota. Clarence Childs raced 100 yards returning a kickoff for a TD and Gary Wood handled the New York offense adequately.

But scrambling Fran Tarkenton tossed two TD passes and Fred Cox kicked three field goals as the Vikings came from behind to win it.

Milt Plum threw three TD passes as the Lions ended Baltimore's win streak that started the second week of the season.

Pittsburgh scored the winning touchdown midway in the final period and then halted a last-minute Washington drive for its victory. Edd Brown's 47-yard run produced the deciding points.

Rookie Jack Concannon sparked the Eagles' victory over Dallas, completing 10 of 20 passes including two TD's.

John Brodie threw a pair of TD passes and an aggressive San Francisco defense stalled Los Angeles as the 49ers reversed an early season loss.

Poplar Bluff Wins Title

DEXTER -- Dark Horse, Perryville, lost to favored Poplar Bluff, but by only 3, 48-45 for the championship game Saturday night.

In the first period Poplar Bluff jumped to a two point advantage, leading 10-8 as the quarter ended. They held on, as both teams swapped evenly the second frame, to lead by three, 24-21.

The Mules got tougher the third period, out scoring the Pirates by 5, to build up a lead of 8 going into the final quarter, Perryville, with a futile, but a strong come from behind effort made up five of the eight points to be down by three.

Dexter, another of the surprise teams of the tourney, wrestled the third place honors from Cape Central, winning 53-48.

Cape managed to jump out in front as the first quarter ended, to lead 13-11. They held their lead of 2, until the final quarter, when McKey spearheaded the Dexter attack to close out the game leading by 5 over Central.

In the game for sixth place, Jackson set down Kennett 48-39 leading all the way.

Old Pros Corner

I would like to introduce myself to area fans. I, up until last week, was the Old Pro's assistant in predicting the winners of upcoming games. After the disastrous 70% that he got right last week, he got the ax and has moved off to brighter lands. He hit 14 out of 20, which I helped him predict 6.

Tonight there are 7 games being played. All being in tournaments.

In the Richland Tournament:
Richland against Fisk--Richland, though they lost to Fisk earlier, are going to come through tonight. Richland by 10.

Puxico against Notre Dame-Notre Dame will have wasted their money for gas to make the trip. Puxico will slaughter them. Puxico by 30.

Oran Tournament:
Oran against Chaffee: Chaffee could not beat weak St. Henry last week, so they sure can't beat host Oran. Oran by whatever they want it to be.

Scott Central against Woodland - Scott Central will have to shoot better than they have recently, for Woodland could get upset fever. But it will be Central by 10.

Bragg City Tournament:
Senath-Hornersville against Southland -- Could be close, but Senath-Hornersville will come in with a winners smile. Senath-Hornersville by 10.

Braggadocio against Hayti - Hayti will have to go some to beat Braggadocio. Braggadocio by 20.

South Pemiscot against Greenway - Although I don't know Greenway, I will say South Pemiscot will finish the game in front. South Pemiscot by 15.

Mizzou Only Un-Beaten Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eighth - ranked Kansas State and Kansas took their first defeats of the season Saturday, leaving Missouri as the only unbeaten team in Big Eight basketball after the first week in which conference teams won 10 of 18 games with outside teams.

Missouri's perfect record likely will disappear tonight when the Tigers meet unbeaten, top-ranked Michigan at Ann Arbor. In other games tonight, potent Southern Illinois plays at Kansas State, South Dakota at Nebraska and Oklahoma and Indiana.

It's doubtful the Big Eight will get better than an even break in this week's rugged 18-game schedule with non-conference opponents.

Big Ten teams spoiled the perfect records of K-State and Kansas at Manhattan and Lawrence. Indiana beat K-State 74-70 with an expectedly tough defense. Northwestern edged Kansas 58-55 as the Jayhawks fizzled on the attack.

Nebraska got its first victory by clipping Purdue of the Big Ten 96-85 at Lincoln with Coley Webb hitting 21 points and Bob Antulov 20. Oklahoma State had no trouble beating Regis of Denver 78-30 at Stillwater.

Iowa State lost to Minnesota 63 - 53 at Ames, the Gophers pulling away in the last half. Missouri trailed by four at the half but rallied to beat Arkansas 81-71 at Columbia with George Flamank and Ned Monsees hitting 15 points each.

Colorado took third place in the Mile High Classic at Denver by surviving a last half rally for a 67-59 victory over Air Force. Jack Linz led the Buffs with 16 points.

The weekend left Missouri on top at 2 - 0; Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma State all at 2-1; K-State and Nebraska both 1-1, Oklahoma 0-1 and Iowa State 0-2.

On Wednesday, Missouri plays at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State. Drake is at Colorado Thursday.

The annual Sunflower doubleheader opened at Manhattan Friday with Chicago Loyola meeting K - State and Kansas facing Penn State. The two Big Eight teams switch opponents Saturday night at Lawrence.

In other games Saturday night, Iowa State plays at Air Force, Oklahoma State at UCLA, Colorado at Northwestern, St. Louis at Missouri, Michigan at Nebraska and Oklahoma at Texas.

Tourneys All Set To Open

Area basketball gets off in a big way this week as three tournaments begin tonight at Richland, Oran, and Bragg City.

The teams in the Richland Invitational are Richland, Fisk, Puxico, Notre Dame, Greenville, Charleston, Advance, and Morehouse.

In the Oran Tourney are Oran, Chaffee, Scott Central, Woodland, Delta, Scott City, Kelly, and Cape College High.

Down at Bragg City, Senath-Hornersville, Southland Braggadocia, Hayti, South Pemiscot, Greenway, Ark., Bragg City, and Cooter round out the teams.

The schedule for Monday night:
Richland Tourney:
Richland versus Fisk
Puxico versus Notre Dame
Oran Tourney:
Oran against Chaffee
Scott Central against Woodland
Bragg City Tourney:
Senath - Hornersville opposes Southland
Braggadocio opposes Hayti
South Pemiscot opposes Greenway, Ark.

The Tigers Are Getting A Lot Tougher

The Morehouse Tigers shot 67% Saturday night in downing Portageville 98-65, led by Payne, who scored 36 points while hitting 66% from the field. Crumpecker hit 70%, Landers 60% and Haley hit an underpar 44%. A very good game for Morehouse, who up until now have a two and two record, displaying hot and cold nights.

Portageville, who has 1-3 record, was seen to be the victim from the start, as they went down by 12 the first quarter. From there, Morehouse never let down, scoring 25 the second period, while limiting Portageville to 16, to lead at halftime 51-30.

Portageville got hot the third period themselves, but Morehouse was not to be overtaken, as they got 23 to Portageville's 21. The final frame was a repeat of first two, Morehouse going out front by 10 more.

Portageville managed to win the "B" game, led by high scoring Phillips, who dumped in 17. Ruedrich led the Tigers with 10.

Oliva First Rookie

BOSTON (AP) — Outfielder Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins is the first rookie ever to win a big-league batting championship.

This was confirmed with the release of the official 1964 averages which showed that the young Cuban hit .323 last season to pace the American League. Brooks Robinson of Baltimore was the runner-up at .317.

Oliva recently was named the AL's Rookie - of - the Year. Robinson captured the circuit's Most-Valuable-Player award.

Oliva paced the loop in four other departments, hits with 217, doubles with 43, total bases, 374, and runs, 109. Baltimore's Robinson also led in runs batted in with 118.

Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew slammed 49 homers to lead in category for the third straight year. Baltimore shortstop Luis Aparicio established a major league record by setting the pace in stolen bases for the ninth straight time. He had 57 steals last season, a personal high.

The Boston Red Sox had the highest club batting average, .258. They were followed by New York and Detroit, each .253.

Patriots Come Thru For Tie

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

KANSAS CITY (AP)—"It was a great effort by my team, but they've been playing that way all year despite injuries," said Boston Coach Mike Holovak Sunday after the Patriots tied Buffalo by beating Kansas City, 31-24.

"We've never had our full squad from the very first game," Holovak said. "I think they've done a heckuva job."

Boston has a 10-2-1 record in the American Football League's eastern division title race. Buffalo dropped to a tie with the Patriots at 10-2-0 after Oakland upset the Bills on the final play, 16-13.

Ties don't count in pro standings, but the tie still hurts the Patriots somewhat because they have only one game left to Buffalo's two. However, Boston's lone remaining game is Dec. 20 with Buffalo, at Boston.

Kansas City, now 5-7, was mathematically eliminated from the western race, won by San Diego. The Chiefs will play at San Diego Sunday, before closing with New York Dec. 20 in Kansas City. Oakland is close behind the Chiefs now at 4-7-2.

Gino Cappelletti, Boston end, broke his own AFL season scoring mark of 147 set in 1962. He scored 13 points, bringing his total to 155.

William Jewell Is Off Again

Missouri College Basketball
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending champion William Jewell is off and running again in the MCAU basketball race.

The Cardinals, despite the loss of two regular players, opened defense of its title last Saturday by pinning a 77-67 defeat on Graceland at Liberty. A week ago, Jewell lost the services of starting guard Homer Drew because of an emergency appendectomy, and last Friday reserve Rich Cooper was discovered to have a broken bone in his foot.

The Jewell victory came despite an outstanding 27 - point performance by Graceland's Rich Harrop who received word earlier in the day of the death of his father.

Jewell is tied with Culver - Stockton, Central Methodist and Missouri Valley for the MCAU lead. All have 1-0 records. Culver tripped Drury 62-55; Central Methodist out-gunned Westminster 106-94, and Valley edged Tarkio 76-73, in other opening conference games.

The MIAA played all nonconference games in its first week of action with Warrensburg the only team to finish the week undefeated. In last Saturday's game Springfield dealt Southern Illinois its first defeat of the young season 86 - 80 as Dale Mathes scored 33 points in his first start. Cape Girardeau bowed to Concordia of St. Louis 81-76.

This week's schedule:
Monday—Oklahoma Christian at Springfield.
Tuesday — Cape at Union, Tenn., Rockhurst at Kirksville, Emporia State at Warrensburg, Jewell at Washington of St. Louis, Dana, Neb., at Tarkio, Iowa Wesleyan at Culver.
Thursday — Warrensburg at Santa Barbara, Calif.
Friday—Warrensburg at Long Beach, Calif., McKendree, Ill., at Rolla, Jewell at Valley, Westminster at Culver, Tarkio at Graceland, Drury at Central Methodist.
Saturday—Cape at Harris of St. Louis, Emporia State at Springfield, Wayne, Neb., at Maryville, Central Methodist at Concordia of St. Louis.

Cup In U.S.A. Again

By BOB MYERS

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — The Canada Cup, emblematic of world supremacy of professional golf, will reside for the fifth straight year in the United States.

And the International Trophy belongs for the second successive year to Jack Nicklaus.

This was the setting today as two-man teams from 32 nations, plus Hawaii and Puerto Rico, dispersed after giving the colorful isle in the Pacific a show they'll never forget.

Nicklaus staged a rally made famous by Palmer, coming from six strokes back of Arnie starting the final 18 holes.

At the finish, in which a three-way deadlock was broken at one stage, and a two-way tie at the 71st hole, it was Nicklaus 276, and Palmer 278.

More than 7,000 fans, largest turnout for golf in the history of the Hawaiian Islands, swarmed over the par-72 Royal Kaanapali golf course.

It had long since been recognized that the United States had the Canada Cup tucked away. The American team compiled 554 strokes with Argentina next at 565 and South Africa third with 568.

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.
An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.
Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork — nothing is overlooked.
Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

Oran Tournament:
Oran against Chaffee: Chaffee could not beat weak St. Henry last week, so they sure can't beat host Oran. Oran by whatever they want it to be.

Scott Central against Woodland - Scott Central will have to shoot better than they have recently, for Woodland could get upset fever. But it will be Central by 10.

Bragg City Tournament:
Senath-Hornersville against Southland -- Could be close, but Senath-Hornersville will come in with a winners smile. Senath-Hornersville by 10.

Braggadocio against Hayti - Hayti will have to go some to beat Braggadocio. Braggadocio by 20.

South Pemiscot against Greenway - Although I don't know Greenway, I will say South Pemiscot will finish the game in front. South Pemiscot by 15.

Mizzou Only Un-Beaten Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eighth - ranked Kansas State and Kansas took their first defeats of the season Saturday, leaving Missouri as the only unbeaten team in Big Eight basketball after the first week in which conference teams won 10 of 18 games with outside teams.

Missouri's perfect record likely will disappear tonight when the Tigers meet unbeaten, top-ranked Michigan at Ann Arbor. In other games tonight, potent Southern Illinois plays at Kansas State, South Dakota at Nebraska and Oklahoma and Indiana.

It's doubtful the Big Eight will get better than an even break in this week's rugged 18-game schedule with non-conference opponents.

Big Ten teams spoiled the perfect records of K-State and Kansas at Manhattan and Lawrence. Indiana beat K-State 74-70 with an expectedly tough defense. Northwestern edged Kansas 58-55 as the Jayhawks fizzled on the attack.

Nebraska got its first victory by clipping Purdue of the Big Ten 96-85 at Lincoln with Coley Webb hitting 21 points and Bob Antulov 20. Oklahoma State had no trouble beating Regis of Denver 78-30 at Stillwater.

Iowa State lost to Minnesota 63 - 53 at Ames, the Gophers pulling away in the last half. Missouri trailed by four at the half but rallied to beat Arkansas 81-71 at Columbia with George Flamank and Ned Monsees hitting 15 points each.

Colorado took third place in the Mile High Classic at Denver by surviving a last half rally for a 67-59 victory over Air Force. Jack Linz led the Buffs with 16 points.

The weekend left Missouri on top at 2 - 0; Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma State all at 2-1; K-State and Nebraska both 1-1, Oklahoma 0-1 and Iowa State 0-2.

On Wednesday, Missouri plays at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State. Drake is at Colorado Thursday.

The annual Sunflower doubleheader opened at Manhattan Friday with Chicago Loyola meeting K - State and Kansas facing Penn State. The two Big Eight teams switch opponents Saturday night at Lawrence.

In other games Saturday night, Iowa State plays at Air Force, Oklahoma State at UCLA, Colorado at Northwestern, St. Louis at Missouri, Michigan at Nebraska and Oklahoma at Texas.

The schedule for Monday night:

The Tigers Are Getting A Lot Tougher

The Morehouse Tigers shot 67% Saturday night in downing Portageville 98-65, led by Payne, who scored 36 points while hitting 66% from the field. Crumpecker hit 70%, Landers 60% and Haley hit an underpar 44%. A very good game for Morehouse, who up until now have a two and two record, displaying hot and cold nights.

Portageville, who has 1-3 record, was seen to be the victim from the start, as they went down by 12 the first quarter. From there, Morehouse never let down, scoring 25 the second period, while limiting Portageville to 16, to lead at halftime 51-30.

Portageville got hot the third period themselves, but Morehouse was not to be overtaken, as they got 23 to Portageville's 21. The final frame was a repeat of first two, Morehouse going out front by 10 more.

Portageville managed to win the "B" game, led by high scoring Phillips, who dumped in 17. Ruedrich led the Tigers with 10.

Oliva First Rookie

BOSTON (AP) — Outfielder Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins is the first rookie ever to win a big-league batting championship.

This was confirmed with the release of the official 1964 averages which showed that the young Cuban hit .323 last season to pace the American League. Brooks Robinson of Baltimore was the runner-up at .317.

Oliva recently was named the AL's Rookie - of - the Year. Robinson captured the circuit's Most-Valuable-Player award.

Oliva paced the loop in four other departments, hits with 217, doubles with 43, total bases, 374, and runs, 109. Baltimore's Robinson also led in runs batted in with 118.

Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew slammed 49 homers to lead in category for the third straight year. Baltimore shortstop Luis Aparicio established a major league record by setting the pace in stolen bases for the ninth straight time. He had 57 steals last season, a personal high.

The Boston Red Sox had the highest club batting average, .258. They were followed by New York and Detroit, each .253.

Patriots Come Thru For Tie

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

KANSAS CITY (AP)—"It was a great effort by my team, but they've been playing that way all year despite injuries," said Boston Coach Mike Holovak Sunday after the Patriots tied Buffalo by beating Kansas City, 31-24.

"We've never had our full squad from the very first game," Holovak said. "I think they've done a heckuva job."

Boston has a 10-2-1 record in the American Football League's eastern division title race. Buffalo dropped to a tie with the Patriots at 10-2-0 after Oakland upset the Bills on the final play, 16-13.

Ties don't count in pro standings, but the tie still hurts the Patriots somewhat because they have only one game left to Buffalo's two. However, Boston's lone remaining game is Dec. 20 with Buffalo, at Boston.

Kansas City, now 5-7, was mathematically eliminated from the western race, won by San Diego. The Chiefs will play at San Diego Sunday, before closing with New York Dec. 20 in Kansas City. Oakland is close behind the Chiefs now at 4-7-2.

Gino Cappelletti, Boston end, broke his own AFL season scoring mark of 147 set in 1962. He scored 13 points, bringing his total to 155.

William Jewell Is Off Again

Missouri College Basketball
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending champion William Jewell is off and running again in the MCAU basketball race.

The Cardinals, despite the loss of two regular players, opened defense of its title last Saturday by pinning a 77-67 defeat on Graceland at Liberty. A week ago, Jewell lost the services of starting guard Homer Drew because of an emergency appendectomy, and last Friday reserve Rich Cooper was discovered to have a broken bone in his foot.

The Jewell victory came despite an outstanding 27 - point performance by Graceland's Rich Harrop who received word earlier in the day of the death of his father.

Jewell is tied with Culver - Stockton, Central Methodist and Missouri Valley for the MCAU lead. All have 1-0 records. Culver tripped Drury 62-55; Central Methodist out-gunned Westminster 106-94, and Valley edged Tarkio 76-73, in other opening conference games.

The MIAA played all nonconference games in its first week of action with Warrensburg the only team to finish the week undefeated. In last Saturday's game Springfield dealt Southern Illinois its first defeat of the young season 86 - 80 as Dale Mathes scored 33 points in his first start. Cape Girardeau bowed to Concordia of St. Louis 81-76.

This week's schedule:
Monday—Oklahoma Christian at Springfield.
Tuesday — Cape at Union, Tenn., Rockhurst at Kirksville, Emporia State at Warrensburg, Jewell at Washington of St. Louis, Dana, Neb., at Tarkio, Iowa Wesleyan at Culver.

Cup In U.S.A. Again

By BOB MYERS

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — The Canada Cup, emblematic of world supremacy of professional golf, will reside for the fifth straight year in the United States.

And the International Trophy belongs for the second successive year to Jack Nicklaus.

This was the setting today as two-man teams from 32 nations, plus Hawaii and Puerto Rico, dispersed after giving the colorful isle in the Pacific a show they'll never forget.

Nicklaus staged a rally made famous by Palmer, coming from six strokes back of Arnie starting the final 18 holes.

At the finish, in which a three-way deadlock was broken at one stage, and a two-way tie at the 71st hole, it was Nicklaus 276, and Palmer 278.

More than 7,000 fans, largest turnout for golf in the history of the Hawaiian Islands, swarmed over the par-72 Royal Kaanapali golf course.

It had long since been recognized that the United States had the Canada Cup tucked away. The American team compiled 554 strokes with Argentina next at 565 and South Africa third with 568.

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.
An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.
Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork — nothing is overlooked.
Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

New Strength for Johnson Seen in Vigorous New Aide

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Marvin D. Watson, the Texas steel executive who is expected to join President Johnson's White House staff, is a man who has already labored hard and long for Lyndon.

The President reportedly does not like to have his little surprises printed before he is ready to spring them. Yet it is considered unlikely he will reverse himself on Watson just to confound those who have said he would soon be taken on.

The reason: Watson's talents have been freshly demonstrated to Johnson in recent mor 'hs, and the President is in serious need of them.

Watson is vice president of the Lone Star Steel Co. in Longview, Tex. Those who have seen him at work describe him as a superior administrator and organizer.

IN A SENSE HE WOULD REPLACE the unfortunate Walter Jenkins, the President's administrative assistant, who resigned after disclosure he had twice been arrested on morals charges.

But Watson, though evidently quiet and calm about it, is regarded as considerably more forceful and aggressive than Jenkins. He would almost certainly have a larger role and possibly even dip into policy matters.

This stocky Texan proved himself this summer. A month before it was time to nominate Johnson at Atlantic City, convention plans were in chaos. Watson unobtrusively took over and whipped the effort into shape.

Wholly out of the convention spotlight, Watson worked during the crucial weeks in a small Convention Hall office he shared with another man, Clifton Carter. Convention figures beat a path to his door.

Watson also played a major part in the President's fall campaigning. He really put together several of the big trips. Most of the time he accompanied the President on the road. Through it all, Watson stayed out of the news.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEAVY RELIANCE UPON HIM was not altogether new. In the spring of 1960, Watson helped Johnson in his futile attempt to wrest the Democratic nomination from John F. Kennedy and again gave LBJ a big lift that fall in his vice presidential campaign.

Watson's ability to take command of large operations which are threatening to become unraveled is widely remarked. The unruffled efficiency with which he sets these situations straight leads some sources to suggest he may be uniquely equipped for close daily association with the rough-riding Johnson.

Stories persist, annoying though they be to the President, that Lyndon Johnson often drives and lashes his working intimates to the breaking point.

From all accounts, Watson sounds like a man who could hold his own, even in the President's stormiest moments.

A friend of the President who knows and admires Watson is nevertheless a bit concerned over his political outlook. Says the friend:

"I just wish he were not quite so conservative as he seems to be."

Explains $100 Deductable on Income Tax

A "one hundred dollar deductible" provision on personal casualty and theft losses was part of the 1964 tax law.

As explained today by E. O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, the first $100 of each personal casaulty or theft loss will not be deductible on Federal income tax returns. A husband and wife filing a joint return will have to meet but one $100 deductible limit for each separate casualty or theft in which they either jointly or separately suffer a loss. However, if they file separate returns, each will have to meet the $100 floor for each separate loss.

Business losses will continue to be fully deductible Mr. Bookwalter said. In cases where there is damage to a car used for both business and pleasure, the $100 deductible will only apply to that portion of the loss charged to personal use.

Assume in such a case that the business loss is $250 and the personal loss is $300. The $250 loss attributable to the business use is fully deductible. However, the new law permits only $200 of the $300 personal part of the loss to be deducted on tax returns.

Mr. Bookwalter said that the property losses arising from fire, storm or other casualty or theft are covered by the law. Deductions may be taken only on that part of the loss not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise.

New Strength for Johnson Seen in Vigorous New Aide

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Marvin D. Watson, the Texas steel executive who is expected to join President Johnson's White House staff, is a man who has already labored hard and long for Lyndon.

The President reportedly does not like to have his little surprises printed before he is ready to spring them. Yet it is considered unlikely he will reverse himself on Watson just to confound those who have said he would soon be taken on.

The reason: Watson's talents have been freshly demonstrated to Johnson in recent mor 'hs, and the President is in serious need of them.

Watson is vice president of the Lone Star Steel Co. in Longview, Tex. Those who have seen him at work describe him as a superior administrator and organizer.

IN A SENSE HE WOULD REPLACE the unfortunate Walter Jenkins, the President's administrative assistant, who resigned after disclosure he had twice been arrested on morals charges.

But Watson, though evidently quiet and calm about it, is regarded as considerably more forceful and aggressive than Jenkins. He would almost certainly have a larger role and possibly even dip into policy matters.

This stocky Texan proved himself this summer. A month before it was time to nominate Johnson at Atlantic City, convention plans were in chaos. Watson unobtrusively took over and whipped the effort into shape.

Wholly out of the convention spotlight, Watson worked during the crucial weeks in a small Convention Hall office he shared with another man, Clifton Carter. Convention figures beat a path to his door.

Watson also played a major part in the President's fall campaigning. He really put together several of the big trips. Most of the time he accompanied the President on the road. Through it all, Watson stayed out of the news.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEAVY RELIANCE UPON HIM was not altogether new. In the spring of 1960, Watson helped Johnson in his futile attempt to wrest the Democratic nomination from John F. Kennedy and again gave LBJ a big lift that fall in his vice presidential campaign.

Watson's ability to take command of large operations which are threatening to become unraveled is widely remarked. The unruffled efficiency with which he sets these situations straight leads some sources to suggest he may be uniquely equipped for close daily association with the rough-riding Johnson.

Stories persist, annoying though they be to the President, that Lyndon Johnson often drives and lashes his working intimates to the breaking point.

From all accounts, Watson sounds like a man who could hold his own, even in the President's stormiest moments.

A friend of the President who knows and admires Watson is nevertheless a bit concerned over his political outlook. Says the friend:

"I just wish he were not quite so conservative as he seems to be."

Explains $100 Deductable on Income Tax

A "one hundred dollar deductible" provision on personal casualty and theft losses was part of the 1964 tax law.

As explained today by E. O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, the first $100 of each personal casualty or theft loss will not be deductible on Federal income tax returns. A husband and wife filing a joint return will have to meet but one $100 deductible limit for each separate casualty or theft in which they either jointly or separately suffer a loss. However, if they file separate returns, each will have to meet the $100 floor for each separate loss.

Business losses will continue to be fully deductible Mr. Bookwalter said. In cases where there is damage to a car used for both business and pleasure, the $100 deductible will only apply to that portion of the loss charged to personal use.

Assume in such a case that the business loss is $250 and the personal loss is $300. The $250 loss attributable to the business use is fully deductible. However, the new law permits only $200 of the $300 personal part of the loss to be deducted on tax returns.

Mr. Bookwalter said that the property losses arising from fire, storm or other casualty or theft are covered by the law. Deductions may be taken only on that part of the loss not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise.

DECLARATION ON DISARMAMENT

THE UNITED STATES PROGRAM FOR GENERAL AND COMPLETE DISARMAMENT IN A PEACEFUL WORLD

The Nations of the world,

Conscious of the crisis in human history produced by the revolutionary development of modern weapons within a world divided by serious ideological differences;

Determined to save present and succeeding generations from the scourge of war and the dangers and burdens of the arms race and to create conditions in which all peoples can strive freely and peacefully to fulfill their basic aspirations;

Declare their goal to be: A free, secure, and peaceful world of independent states adhering to common standards of jusiice and international conduct and subjecting the use of force to the rule of law; a world where adjustment to change takes place in accordance with the principles of the United Nations; a world where there shall be a permanent state of general and complete disarmament under effective international control and where the resources of nations shall be devoted to man's material, cultural, and spiritual advance;

Set forth as the objectives of a program of general and complete disarmament in a peaceful world:

(a) The disbanding of all national armed forces and the prohibition of their re-establishment in any form whatsoever other than those required to preserve internal order and for contributions to a United Nations Peace Force;

(b) The elimination from national arsenals of all armaments, including all weapons of mass destruction and the means for their delivery, other than those required for a United Nations Peace Force and for maintaining internal order;

(c) The establishment and effective operation of an International Disarmament Organization within the framework of the United Nations to ensure compliance at all times with all disarmament obligations;

(d) The institution of effective means for the enforcement of international agreements, for the settlement of disputes, and for the maintenance of peace in accordance with the principles of the United Nations.

Call on the negotiating states:

(a) To develop the outline program set forth below into an agreed plan for general and complete disarmament and to continue their efforts without interruption until the whole program has been achieved;

(b) To this end to seek to attain the widest possible area of agreement at the earliest possible date;

(c) Also to seek -- without prejudice to progress on the disarmament program --agreement on those immediate measures that would contribute to the common security of nations and that could facilitate and form a part of that program.

Affirm that disarmament negotiations should be guided by the following principles:

(a) Disarmament shall take place as rapidly as possible until it is completed in stages containing balanced, phased and safeguarded measures, with each measure and stage to be carried out in an agreed period of time.

(b) Compliance with all disarmament obligations shall be effectively verified from their entry into force. Verification arrangements shall be instituted progressively and in such a manner as to verify not only that agreed limitations or reductions take place but also that retained armed forces and armaments do not exceed agreed levels at any stage.

(c) Disarmament shall take place in a manner that will not affect adversely the security of any state, whether or not a party to an international agreement or treaty.

(d) As states relinquish their arms, the United Nations shall be progressively strengthened in order to improve its capacity to assure international security and the peaceful settlement of differences as well as to facilitate the development of international cooperation in common tasks for the benefit of mankind.

(e) Transition from one stage of disarmament to the next shall take place as soon as all the measures in the preceding stage have been carried out and effective verification is continuing and as soon as the arrangements that have been agreed to be necessary for the next stage have been instituted.

Agree upon the following outline program for achieving general and complete disarmament:

WHAT COULD SAVE 5,000 LIVES A YEAR AND REDUCE SERIOUS INJURIES BY ONE-THIRD?

BUCKLED SEAT BELTS!

It's a fact. The National Safety Council says that if everyone riding in a car was protected by a buckled seat belt—over 5,000 lives could be saved each year. And serious injuries could be reduced by at least one-third. Take a tip from the Safety Council and buckle up for safety every time you drive.

Commission on Education Has Plan to Expand and Improve Higher Education

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri legislators got a plea Friday to expand and improve the state's higher educational system without delay.

The State Commission on Higher Education presented its first report Thursday to Gov. John Dalton and Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes. Copies were mailed to every legislator.

Immediate action is needed, the commission said, to meet Missouri's fast growing needs at all levels beyond the high school -- junior colleges, state colleges and universities, graduate study and research.

It recommended a 55 per cent increase in operating appropriations for the next two years and capital improvements costing $37 million at once. It said a long range study will be made of other capital needs later but the state cannot afford to wait for that.

The 55 per cent operating increase would include 31.4 per cent to cover enrollment growth burgeoning fast, and 23.6 per cent for program improvements -- mostly for faculty needs.

In dollars that would mean an increase in general revenue appropriations from $85.5 million in the current biennium to $132.5 million. Allotments from college funds would increase to $4.3 million.

Where is the money coming from?

The commission did not go into that legislative problem. But state fiscal experts have estimated there will be about $130 million more in general revenue for the next biennium than the current one because of natural growth and increased sales tax collections.

The commission is headed by H. Lang Rogers, Joplin publisher, and its executive director is Dr. Ben Morton. They and Dr. Elmer Ellis, president of the University of Missouri, and Dr. Earl E. Dawson, president of Lincoln University, presented report to Gov. Dalton Thursday.

The report said Missouri has a good chance to develop a logical and consistent system of higher education. But it cautioned against rushing into new programs.

"The commission feels strongly," it said, "that great care should be exercised over approximately the next two years in initiating major and costly new programs or institutions. Most areas of the state can be reasonably well served . . . by existing institutions and arrangements.

"Slight delay is preferable to proliferation and the attendant waste and inefficiency."

The commission did not comment in its first report on proposals to set up M. U. branches at St. Joseph, Joplin and in the Bootheel area. That is expected to be covered in another report to be issued Monday.

But it did say the residence centers being maintained at West Plains by Southwest State College and at Malden by Southeast State should be continued for the time being.

It added, however, the residence center of Central State at Independence should be retained only until the expanding Kansas City metropolitan junior college district can handle the enrollment.

A pattern of emphasis on more and more graduate study emerged from the report as the needs increase in this field.

It said the University of Missouri should stress graduate study and research even if that means imposing stiffer entrance requirements to limit undergraduate enrollment.

Meanwhile the state colleges and Lincoln University should expand graduate programs at the masters' level for teachers' degrees in all fields.

Other recommendations included:

A $100 per semester fee increase for out-of-state students at Lincoln and the five colleges starting next fall—a change already agreed to by the administrators of those schools.

A 25 per cent increase in state aid for junior colleges, which would mean more than a million dollar increase over present allotments.

A separate study, to start as soon as a consultant can be found, on the problem of technical-terminal education in vocational skills beyond the high school. The commission said practically no up to date information exists on this subject now.

In its capital improvements recommendations, the commission said maintenance of existing facilities is the most immediate need.

It figured almost $26 million will be needed from state general revenue and some $11 million from federal funds, including an estimated $7 million from the 1963 Higher Education Facilities Act.

One of the big projects would be an $800,000 building at Columbia from state funds as an administration center for the whole M. U. system.

The 1963 legislature added branches at Kansas City and St. Louis and also made the Rolla School of Mines a branch campus.

The last legislature also passed a bill to set up additional branches at St. Joseph and Joplin but Gov. Dalton vetoed it.

The payoff. We were living out on our 25th wedding anniversary when my husband gave me a lovely diamond wristwatch, with this note attached:

THE UNITED STATES PROGRAM FOR GENERAL AND COMPLETE DISARMAMENT IN A PEACEFUL WORLD

The Nations of the world,

Conscious of the crisis in human history produced by the revolutionary development of modern weapons within a world divided by serious ideological differences;

Determined to save present and succeeding generations from the scourge of war and the dangers and burdens of the arms race and to create conditions in which all peoples can strive freely and peacefully to fulfill their basic aspirations;

Declare their goal to be: A free, secure, and peaceful world of independent states adhering to common standards of justice and international conduct and subjecting the use of force to the rule of law; a world where adjustment to change takes place in accordance with the principles of the United Nations; a world where there shall be a permanent state of general and complete disarmament under effective international control and where the resources of nations shall be devoted to man's material, cultural, and spiritual advance;

Set forth as the objectives of a program of general and complete disarmament in a peaceful world:

(a) The disbanding of all national armed forces and the prohibition of their re-establishment in any form whatsoever other than those required to preserve internal order and for contributions to a United Nations Peace Force;

(b) The elimination from national arsenals of all armaments, including all weapons of mass destruction and the means for their delivery, other than those required for a United Nations Peace Force and for maintaining internal order;

(c) The establishment and effective operation of an International Disarmament Organization within the framework of the United Nations to ensure compliance at all times with all disarmament obligations;

(d) The institution of effective means for the enforcement of international agreements, for the settlement of disputes, and for the maintenance of peace in accordance with the principles of the United Nations.

Call on the negotiating states:

(a) To develop the outline program set forth below into an agreed plan for general and complete disarmament and to continue their efforts without interruption until the whole program has been achieved;

(b) To this end to seek to attain the widest possible area of agreement at the earliest possible date;

(c) Also to seek -- without prejudice to progress on the disarmament program --agreement on those immediate measures that would contribute to the common security of nations and that could facilitate and form a part of that program.

Affirm that disarmament negotiations should be guided by the following principles:

(a) Disarmament shall take place as rapidly as possible until it is completed in stages containing balanced, phased and safeguarded measures, with each measure and stage to be carried out in an agreed period of time.

(b) Compliance with all disarmament obligations shall be effectively verified from their entry into force. Verification arrangements shall be instituted progressively and in such a manner as to verify not only that agreed limitations or reductions take place but also that retained armed forces and armaments do not exceed agreed levels at any stage.

(c) Disarmament shall take place in a manner that will not affect adversely the security of any state, whether or not a party to an international agreement or treaty.

(d) As states relinquish their arms, the United Nations shall be progressively strengthened in order to improve its capacity to assure international security and the peaceful settlement of differences as well as to facilitate the development of international cooperation in common tasks for the benefit of mankind.

(e) Transition from one stage of disarmament to the next shall take place as soon as all the measures in the preceding stage have been carried out and effective verification is continuing and as soon as the arrangements that have been agreed to be necessary for the next stage have been instituted.

Agree upon the following outline program for achieving general and complete disarmament:

Q. A.

WHAT COULD SAVE 5,000 LIVES A YEAR AND REDUCE SERIOUS INJURIES BY ONE-THIRD?

BUCKLED SEAT BELTS!

It's a fact. The National Safety Council says that if everyone riding in a car was protected by a buckled seat belt—over 5,000 lives could be saved each year. And serious injuries could be reduced by at least one-third. Take a tip from the Safety Council and buckle up for safety every time you drive.

Commission on Education Has Plan to Expand and Improve Higher Education

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri legislators got a plea Friday to expand and improve the state's higher educational system without delay.

The State Commission on Higher Education presented its first report Thursday to Gov. John Dalton and Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes. Copies were mailed to every legislator.

Immediate action is needed, the commission said, to meet Missouri's fast growing needs at all levels beyond the high school -- junior colleges, state colleges and universities, graduate study and research.

It recommended a 55 per cent increase in operating appropriations for the next two years and capital improvements costing $37 million at once. It said a long range study will be made of other capital needs later but the state cannot afford to wait for that.

The 55 per cent operating increase would include 31.4 per cent to cover enrollment growth burgeoning fast, and 23.6 per cent for program improvements -- mostly for faculty needs.

In dollars that would mean an increase in general revenue appropriations from $85.5 million in the current biennium to $132.5 million. Allotments from college funds would increase to $4.3 million.

Where is the money coming from?

The commission did not go into that legislative problem. But state fiscal experts have estimated there will be about $130 million more in general revenue for the next biennium than the current one because of natural growth and increased sales tax collections.

The commission is headed by H. Lang Rogers, Joplin publisher, and its executive director is Dr. Ben Morton. They and Dr. Elmer Ellis, president of the University of Missouri, and Dr. Earl E. Dawson, president of Lincoln University, presented report to Gov. Dalton Thursday.

The report said Missouri has a good chance to develop a logical and consistent system of higher education. But it cautioned against rushing into new programs.

"The commission feels strongly," it said, "that great care should be exercised over approximately the next two years in initiating major and costly new programs or institutions. Most areas of the state can be reasonably well served . . . by existing institutions and arrangements.

"Slight delay is preferable to proliferation and the attendant waste and inefficiency."

The commission did not comment in its first report on proposals to set up M. U. branches at St. Joseph, Joplin and in the Bootheel area. That is expected to be covered in another report to be issued Monday.

But it did say the residence centers being maintained at West Plains by Southwest State College and at Malden by Southeast State should be continued for the time being.

It added, however, the residence center of Central State at Independence should be retained only until the expanding Kansas City metropolitan junior college district can handle the enrollment.

A pattern of emphasis on more and more graduate study emerged from the report as the needs increase in this field.

It said the University of Missouri should stress graduate study and research even if that means imposing stiffer entrance requirements to limit undergraduate enrollment.

Meanwhile the state colleges and Lincoln University should expand graduate programs at the masters' level for teachers' degrees in all fields.

Other recommendations included:

A $100 per semester fee increase for out-of-state students at Lincoln and the five colleges starting next fall—a change already agreed to by the administrators of those schools.

A 25 per cent increase in state aid for junior colleges, which would mean more than a million dollar increase over present allotments.

A separate study, to start as soon as a consultant can be found, on the problem of technical-terminal education in vocational skills beyond the high school. The commission said practically no up to date information exists on this subject now.

In its capital improvements recommendations, the commission said maintenance of existing facilities is the most immediate need.

It figured almost $26 million will be needed from state general revenue and some $11 million from federal funds, including an estimated $7 million from the 1963 Higher Education Facilities Act.

One of the big projects would be an $800,000 building at Columbia from state funds as an administration center for the whole M. U. system.

The 1963 legislature added branches at Kansas City and St. Louis and also made the Rolla School of Mines a branch campus.

The last legislature also passed a bill to set up additional branches at St. Joseph and Joplin but Gov. Dalton vetoed it.

The payoff. We were living out on our 25th wedding anniversary when my husband gave me a lovely diamond wristwatch, with this note attached:

Think of all the lives that would be saved if all teenagers drove with care instead of with a car full of teenagers.

Things We Take For Granted

September twenty third nineteen fifty one on a bright sunny morning Margaret woke and realized this was her wedding day. Margaret and her Mother went to church before they even thought of eating any breakfast. They prayed together for happiness for Margaret and Harold and that the sacrament they were about to receive would bless and help them in their new life together. It was a thoughtful hour and as they left the church Margaret felt a sense of peace and assurance that everything was all right.

Margaret attempted to eat breakfast but there was so much going on all around her that she finally gave up. The phone kept ringing, the flowers arrived, the friend, who was to sing called, saying he couldn't make it, so arrangements had to be made and by that time Margaret had completely lost her appetite.

A girl friend of Margaret's came in to help her bath and get dressed, the bridesmaids arrived and the photographer was waiting to take some pictures before leaving the house. Margaret, the cerebral palsied bride, had to give instructions how to hold her arms down in order to get her beautiful wedding dress on and the veil in place. But she managed to stop shaking and as the photographer snapped her picture her face shone with happiness.

The wedding party was at the church, Margaret's Mother had been taken to her special place, Margaret's Father had taken her arm, the prayer book with the pretty satin ribbons hanging from it was placed securely in her hand and then Margaret heard the wedding march begin. Tears came into her eyes, because she was taking a very big step. She was going to promise to make another person happy for the rest of their lives together. Could she do this when it had always been someone else looking after her happiness. Margaret wished that she could look into a special face at this moment and see the reassurance that she had always received from her big brother. He was so many miles away, but she knew what would be in those eyes and could almost hear his familiar words, "Go ahead Margaret, you can do any thing anyone can do". As Margaret thought of this, she held her head high and with no more doubt, started down to the altar with her Father to meet the smiling face of Harold. This was a very special moment in her life because from now on her whole life would be full of sharing, and for Margaret to have found some one to share her handicapped life was something special within it's self.

Health & Safety Tips

(EXERCISE)

"Exercise is one of the important factors contributing to total fitness," says a new pamphlet of the American Medical Association.

To assist you in planning a program of regular exercise, the AMA offers a number of suggestions.

An exercise program should be started at an early age and continued throughout life, with certain adjustments from time to time as life advances and needs, interests and capabilities change. The amount of vigorous exercise that is desirable each day is largely an individual matter, with recommendations ranging from 30 minutes to an hour each day as a minimum.

Something of interest for every individual can be found to make exercise satisfying and enjoyable. In addition to many sports, the variety of choices includes daily habits such as walking and gardening. Hard, fast, sustained or highly competitive games and sports should not be played by persons of any age unless they have attained an appropriate state of fitness through regular training. All persons should be found by medical examination to be organically sound before training for competition or other strenuous exercise.

If you're out of training, don't try to keep pace in any vigorous sport with an individual who is properly conditioned through regular training. Being in condition for one sport doesn't necessarily mean you're in condition for another. If you've been long out of training, you will need a period of gradual conditioning to get back to strenuous activity.

How can you tell whether your exercise program is too strenuous? If breathlessness and pounding of the heart don't subside within 10 minutes after exercise, if marked weakness or fatigue persists two hours later, if you're still fatigued the next day, then you have overdone it.

If you're beginning to become active again after illness or injury, medical supervision of the effects of exercise is essential. If you are competing in body contact sports, or in sports requiring great endurance and strength, pick on someone your own size and strength. Don't try to stand up to someone much larger, stronger or more skilled. Body contact sports require protective equipment, and it's very important that the equipment be good. Careful preparation and maintenance of playing fields and other sports arenas are essential to reduction of injuries and full enjoyment of the activity.

Contributions of exercise to fitness include a sense of well-being, and development and maintenance of strength, speed, agility, endurance and skill. Each individual differs in his capacity to enjoy and benefit from exercise.

Business Men To Get a New Return Format

Area businessmen will receive their 1964 tax form packages in a brand new format, it was recently announced by Edwin O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

The IRS Midwest Region, which includes this state, will inaugurate its system of automatic data processing of returns beginning with business and corporation tax returns due January 1, 1965, and will mail out pre-addressed forms to taxpayers for easier completion and more efficient handling.

On page one of the new form will be affixed a mailing label containing the taxpayer's name, address and employer identification number. These labels will be printed by means of a computer tape taken directly from the Business Master File maintained in the National Computer Center of the IRS located in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Use of the pre - addressed form, Mr. Bookwalter said, will insure proper matching of the data on the 1964 return with the master file, result in accurate posting to each account, and save much inconvenience to both taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service.

matter of Fact

Plastering is one of the most ancient of the building arts. The pyramids of Egypt contain plasterwork executed at least 4,000 years ago which is still hard and durable. The tools of the plasterer have not changed since that time. The art of plastering reached its peak under the Greeks more than five centuries before Christ.

Medically, the "Ishihara test" is given for color-blindness.

Things We Take For Granted

September twenty third nineteen fifty one on a bright sunny morning Margaret woke and realized this was her wedding day. Margaret and her Mother went to church before they even thought of eating any breakfast. They prayed together for happiness for Margaret and Harold and that the sacrament they were about to receive would bless and help them in their new life together. It was a thoughtful hour and as they left the church Margaret felt a sense of peace and assurance that everything was all right.

Margaret attempted to eat breakfast but there was so much going on all around her that she finally gave up. The phone kept ringing, the flowers arrived, the friend, who was to sing called, saying he couldn't make it, so arrangements had to be made and by that time Margaret had completely lost her appetite.

A girl friend of Margaret's came in to help her bath and get dressed, the bridesmaids arrived and the photographer was waiting to take some pictures before leaving the house. Margaret, the cerebral palsied bride, had to give instructions how to hold her arms down in order to get her beautiful wedding dress on and the veil in place. But she managed to stop shaking and as the photographer snapped her picture her face shone with happiness.

The wedding party was at the church, Margaret's Mother had been taken to her special place, Margaret's Father had taken her arm, the prayer book with the pretty satin ribbons hanging from it was placed securely in her hand and then Margaret heard the wedding march begin. Tears came into her eyes, because she was taking a very big step. She was going to promise to make another person happy for the rest of their lives together. Could she do this when it had always been someone else looking after her happiness. Margaret wished that she could look into a special face at this moment and see the reassurance that she had always received from her big brother. He was so many miles away, but she knew what would be in those eyes and could almost hear his familiar words, "Go ahead Margaret, you can do any thing anyone can do". As Margaret thought of this, she held her head high and with no more doubt, started down to the altar with her Father to meet the smiling face of Harold. This was a very special moment in her life because from now on her whole life would be full of sharing, and for Margaret to have found some one to share her handicapped life was something special within it's self.

Health & Safety Tips

(EXERCISE)

"Exercise is one of the important factors contributing to total fitness," says a new pamphlet of the American Medical Association.

To assist you in planning a program of regular exercise, the AMA offers a number of suggestions.

An exercise program should be started at an early age and continued throughout life, with certain adjustments from time to time as life advances and needs, interests and capabilities change. The amount of vigorous exercise that is desirable each day is largely an individual matter, with recommendations ranging from 30 minutes to an hour each day as a minimum.

Something of interest for every individual can be found to make exercise satisfying and enjoyable. In addition to many sports, the variety of choices includes daily habits such as walking and gardening. Hard, fast, sustained or highly competitive games and sports should not be played by persons of any age unless they have attained an appropriate state of fitness through regular training. All persons should be found by medical examination to be organically sound before training for competition or other strenuous exercise.

If you're out of training, don't try to keep pace in any vigorous sport with an individual who is properly conditioned through regular training. Being in condition for one sport doesn't necessarily mean you're in condition for another. If you've been long out of training, you will need a period of gradual conditioning to get back to strenuous activity.

How can you tell whether your exercise program is too strenuous? If breathlessness and pounding of the heart don't subside within 10 minutes after exercise, if marked weakness or fatigue persists two hours later, if you're still fatigued the next day, then you have overdone it.

If you're beginning to become active again after illness or injury, medical supervision of the effects of exercise is essential. If you are competing in body contact sports, or in sports requiring great endurance and strength, pick on someone your own size and strength. Don't try to stand up to someone much larger, stronger or more skilled. Body contact sports require protective equipment, and it's very important that the equipment be good. Careful preparation and maintenance of playing fields and other sports arenas are essential to reduction of injuries and full enjoyment of the activity.

Contributions of exercise to fitness include a sense of well-being, and development and maintenance of strength, speed, agility, endurance and skill. Each individual differs in his capacity to enjoy and benefit from exercise.

Business Men To Get a New Return Format

Area businessmen will receive their 1964 tax form packages in a brand new format, it was recently announced by Edwin O. Bookwalter, District Director of Internal Revenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

The IRS Midwest Region, which includes this state, will inaugurate its system of automatic data processing of returns beginning with business and corporation tax returns due January 1, 1965, and will mail out pre-addressed forms to taxpayers for easier completion and more efficient handling.

On page one of the new form will be affixed a mailing label containing the taxpayer's name, address and employer identification number. These labels will be printed by means of a computer tape taken directly from the Business Master File maintained in the National Computer Center of the IRS located in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Use of the pre - addressed form, Mr. Bookwalter said, will insure proper matching of the data on the 1964 return with the master file, result in accurate posting to each account, and save much inconvenience to both taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service.

matter of Fact

Plastering is one of the most ancient of the building arts. The pyramids of Egypt contain plasterwork executed at least 4,000 years ago which is still hard and durable. The tools of the plasterer have not changed since that time. The art of plastering reached its peak under the Greeks more than five centuries before Christ.

Medically, the "Ishihara test" is given for color-blindness.

You Can Bet Your Life!

J. Lester McGee, D.D.
Centenary Methodist Church
Saint Louis, Missouri
August 2, 1964

Are you a gambler?

I am, and I am going to try this morning to make you a gambler -- a certain kind of gambler.

Of course, I am not going to produce any roulette wheels, cards, dice, or other games of chance.

Men have always gambled. The soldiers gambled for the garments of Jesus. As He died, they shot craps for the booty.

Gambling is a part of human nature. This sounds like a shocking thing for a minister to say, because gambling is associated with vice and racketeers. It has come to mean an ignoble attempt to get something for nothing, and a preying on a weakness of human nature.

Those soldiers at the cross symbolize an inherent human sickness and a perversion of a noble human impulse. Their gambling was a perversion, for the greatness of humanity lies in its irresistible impulse to risk something for unprovable goals. Every great achievement is made by men and women who dare to commit their lives and fortunes to enterprises they think worthy of their final devotion.

Everyone of us is betting on something. Each is taking his life as dice and throwing it for some prize. There is something each of us considers more important than life itself, and we are betting our lives on it.

One person bets his life that wisdom is the principle thing in life, so he spends himself to get an education. Another gambles his life that money is the greatest thing, so he gives his time and strength to get it. Another lays his life on fun. Another places his bet on power -- security.

You cannot walk down the street without taking risks. You cannot conduct a business without venture, for there is no infallible way of knowing if a policy or an investment will succeed. The farmer is a gambler, for how can he tell if the weather will destroy his crops or bring them to harvest? The Christian ministry in a sense is a gamble. I do not know that you will pay my salary or respond to my appeals. I agree with the person who says life is a gamble on whatever level you live it.

Maybe our victory over the evils of gambling can come through transforming a cheap kind of gambling into a noble kind. Wise people do not rebel against this rule, for if life had no uncertainties it could have no zest, and we would have no growth or progress.

So here is my argument today: This necessity to gamble, to take risks, to venture also holds in the higher matters of the soul.

Columbus believed he could reach the East Indies by sailing west, and he risked everything he had on that belief. He bet his life. Orville Wright bet his life that men could fly. The astronauts bet their lives that space capsules would orbit the earth.

Faith of any kind implies risks. Even science lives on the risks involved in faith. We have talked much nonsense about science dealing only with what can be proved. But every scientific theory is a leap of faith, a gamble. The so-called laws of science are generalities based on a certain number of experiments which are seldom ever final. When it comes to the ultimate nature of the universe, science like everything else has to move beyond the facts.

Now, if this law holds true in everything else, shall we risk something for our Christian faith?

Shall we live for the noisy world or for the still small voice of conscience? Shall we live for the moment or for eternity? Shall we live for the flesh or for the spirit?

Reason offers some guidance. Isn't it just as reasonable to believe that a universe which has brought forth personal life is governed by a personal God, as to believe that all creation is a galvanized spasm? Isn't it just as intelligent to judge life by the spirit of Jesus as to judge it by a devilishness that gambles at the foot of the cross.

But reason cannot prove, either by logic or scientific demonstration, that conscience is a better treasure than cash, that unselfishness is better than selfishness, that love is better than hate, that giving is better than getting. If it could, men might be good for common-sense sake.

No! we must take the risk, betting the soul against the body, the spirit against the flesh, eternity against time, goodness against evil. We are gamblers!

But there were other gamblers besides the soldiers at the crucifixion. Caiaphas and Pilate also gambled. They gambled on the faith that the sword rules, might is stronger than spirit, death is the end of a man, selfishness brings joy to the selfish. They bet that God was not looking, or if He was He did not care. They would have said: "It is a sure thing, like money in the bank. It is in the bag." They could not miss-- so they thought. But I wonder-- was there a hidden player on the other side of the board? Was the game fixed before they were born? Would you say they won?

Now let me say shockingly, yet reverently there was another gambler at Calvary. Jesus also gambled.

While the soldiers were rolling the dice for His garments, while Caiaphas and Pilate were gambling on the sword, Jesus bet his life, his soul--that love is stronger than hate, that life will conquer death, that God seeks and forgives.

He bet on love, spirit, sacrifice, unselfishness, forgiveness, goodness. He wagered His all on His Father, and I think His challenge and plea is that you and I live in the self-same venture.

There is a Christian way to gamble, and the more intense the gambling impulse, the greater the Christian potential in us.

Jesus condemned the one-talent man, not because he had only one talent but because he buried it in the earth instead of risking it in the traffic of the world.

He bade His disciples to launch out into the deep, live dangerously, stick your necks out, take a risk, take a chance, take a leap, play the long shots.

He insisted that only he who takes a chance of losing his life shall really find it. There you have an overturning of our human wisdom and logic. "Lose to Win" was His philosophy.

Let a man risk losing his life in lowly service while others clamor for name and fame. Let him risk losing his life in succoring human need while others seek self-aggrandizement.

That's the way Jesus gambled, and that's the way you and I must gamble as his followers.

Could anyone have guessed on that first Good Friday that Jesus would come back? His death was more than death. It was an oblivion of shame. But Caiaphas and Pilate are now remembered only because their victim, Jesus, is not forgotten.

They gambled and lost. He gambled and won!

You are gambling too on something -- good or bad. Are you losing or winning?

Studdert-Kennedy has given us this immortal verse:

"And sitting down they watched him there,
The soldiers did;
There while they played with dice
He made His sacrifice,
And died upon the cross to rid
God's world of sin.

He was a gambler, too, my Christ.
He took His life and threw
It for a world redeemed.
And ere His agony was done,
Before the westering sun went down,
Crowning that day with crimson crown,
He knew that He had won."

There are many definitions of religion, but one of the best I have heard was given to us by Donald Hankey who wrote: "Religion is betting your life there is a God."

When all our arguments are made and ended, If you and I would be Christians in more than name, we must bet our lives on God and Christain causes.

How are you betting? Like Caiaphas, like Pilate -- on pettiness, on position, on power, on popularity, on prestige, on property? It is an old game, and our world is still busy at it, Pilate's game --

and whose stakes were thrones,
"whose table earth, whose dice were human bones. . ."

Oh, my friends, do not bet that money or fame or fun will bring you happiness. If you do, you will lose, for all the cards are stacked against you.

Do not bet time against eternity. Do not bet that God is not looking. Do not bet that you can keep your money forever. Do not bet that you can sin and get by with it. Do not bet there is no law of retribution. Do not bet that you can have a death-bed conversion. Do not bet there is no heaven or hell. Those who play these odds always lose.

Then how will you gamble? Like Christ? No, you cannot. There is only one Christ. But you can wager your life that His suffering, as it cleanses you, is God's pardon for your soul.

You cannot prove your faith, so stop trying it. If you could prove it, you would be compelled to believe it. Then it would become not a faith but a drab compulsion. There is just enough evidence to provoke the venture, but never enough that you are spared the hazard. If you would be a Christian in more than name, you must bet your life on God and goodness.

Let me risk something in a challenge to you. I gamble your kindly feelings toward me on your willingness to gamble a little. I am betting on your Christian devotion. I am betting on a Centenary Church. Why else would I be here?

Why can't we as a church do greater things than we are doing?

Take everything fine we are doing, attending church, participating in its activities, contributing to its financial budget, winning people to Christ, ministering to human need. Now double all that. We will doubtless be doing about half what we should be doing.

Why not take a chance on doubling everything we are doing? For instance, why not risk tithing? $1.00 a week isn't much of a risk, is it? Why not risk talking with a friend or neighbor about Christ?

As I meet visitors and come to know new people many say to me: "We intend to get started to church regularly. All we need is to get started." Let me challenge you to take the risk and get started. Faith-weather Christians are not taking much risk, are they?

Let me challenge you who are not Christians or members of the church here. You have said to yourselves, if not to others: "I think I will give my life to Christ. I think I will join that church."

I dare you now to take that risk.

Did you know that the people who gamble for high stakes on the highest and best of all levels usually make it? Though the odds be against them, though the dice be loaded, though the cards be stacked against them, they usually make it.

I read of a Doctor in a little northern town on one of the Canadian lakes, who last winter heard of an epidemic on a lonely island out in the lake. There was no doctor on that island, so he felt he must reach these needy people. But how? No boat could go through those 40 miles of ice. Perhaps an airplane would make it, but the airport was poor enough in the summer and almost impossible in the winter. Yet he persuaded a pilot to make the trip, and they made it without cracking up. Was it worth the risk? Reason could have been enlisted on the side of safety. A very plausible argument could have been advanced that there were plenty of sick people close at hand.

But a man's soul was challenged to make the venture.

He risked his neck and made it. Columbus made it. The Wright brothers made it. Lindberg made it. John Glenn, Scott Carpenter, Gordon Cooper made it. So did Jesus Christ, and so can you.

This isn't sacrilegious or profane, for it is a gambling term -- you can hit the jackpot, if you will take the risk."

Why gamble in cheap ways when there are so many noble ways to gamble?

The world waits for men and women who will still hazard their lives for the sake of Christ.

Now, my friends, I have talked to you today on gambling for Christ -- taking a risk. I wish I could tell you it is a sure thing, but that would not make it a gamble. I think it is a sure thing. The Bible indicates that it is. Millions of people have believed that it is. I am betting my life that it is. But all I can say is that thus far I have found it a sure thing, and I challenge you to take the risk. The real proof is only in the venture.

In the past ten years I have received a few more than 1700 persons into the Methodist Church. They took the risk. Evidently, they have found it a sure thing, for I have not heard of a single one of them backing out. They are "going all the way."

Now I am happy to announce that I am "receiving bets here at Centenary." In one month now ten new persons have made the venture. If you are willing to take the risk, God wants you, Centenary wants you, I want you. But it must be all or nothing. What is the word of the gambling world? "Shoot the works." "Go for broke." That's it!

But on this high level, we put it this way:

"Are ye able," said the Master
"To be crucified with me?"
"Yea," the sturdy dreamers answered
"To the death we follow Thee!"

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I don't know who planned, purchased or supervised the Christmas decorations for our city, and I don't want to know so personalities will not be involved. I do know that I am personally ashamed of the way we look when we "deck our public streets".

I lean to the old-fashioned way of fresh greenry to proclaim our Holiday Spirit. But, being aware of progress and maybe a cramped budget, I will go along with the modern look of snythetic garlands. There are no doubt, many problems involved I don't know about. I would like someone to explain it so I could maybe justify to myself why we have a string of something here and a string of something there, and no one spot is really finished or truly beautiful.

Could I suggest to our town decorators that we do a bang-up job somewhere. Let's gather everything needed to one spot and make it outstanding--then as money allows, go to another. Again, I am not familiar with traffic patterns, but as a common citizen, I would think maybe the intersection of Highways 60-61 would be a logical starting point, as most visitors, tourists and local citizens seem to pass through there.

This is my first attempt at writing to an editor on public matters. I intend it as constructive criticism and in the spirit of Christmas. But this thing has "bugged" me for two years and I had to express it to someone who maybe could correct the situation.

Yours very truly,
Madeline (Mrs. Sherman) Grant

Winter Traffic Tie-Ups Cost Millions

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.--Loss of stop-and-go ability on ice and snow needlessly costs American motorists millions of dollars each winter in accidents and traffic tie-ups, according to E. A. Whitehurst, Director of the Tennessee Highway Research Program and a member of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards.

"Ability to stop and go in winter driving," Mr. Whitehurst explained, "narrows down to the amount of friction between car tires and road surface."

He urged all motorists to equip their cars with good tires with good treads. For even better traction, he recommended snow tires. For severe winter driving conditions, nothing c match reinforced tire chair Mr. Whitehurst explained.

"The Committee's tests have shown that snow tires are better for winter driving than regular tires," Mr. Whitehurst said, "but reinforced tire chains help you stop far more safely on packed snow and ice and give four to five times the 'go' traction of regular tires."

Mr. Whitehurst works with the national committee which conducts tests each winter on the behavior of vehicles and equipment on ice and snow and the relative merits of such traction - producing items as snow tires and chains. Much of what safety experts know about the safe operation of cars on ice and snow has been developed by this committee.

The Committee has studied the degree of slipperiness of different kinds of ice and snow and has found that wet ice at 30 degrees is twice as slippery as ice at zero temperature. The polishing effect of heavy traffic also makes ice more slippery, the Committee has learned.

Mr. Whitehurst, who is also chairman of Committee E-17 on Skid Resistance of the American Society for Testing and Materials, emphasized that the lessened traction resulting from winter driving conditions demands that the motorist reduce speed, maintain a greater following distance behind the vehicle ahead, use brakes and accelerator sparingly, and equip his car with good tires and reinforced tire chains.

He warned motorists to be especially on guard when the temperature is just above freezing.

You Can Bet Your Life!

J. Lester McGee, D.D.
Centenary Methodist Church
Saint Louis, Missouri
August 2, 1964

Are you a gambler?

I am, and I am going to try this morning to make you a gambler -- a certain kind of gambler.

Of course, I am not going to produce any roulette wheels, cards, dice, or other games of chance.

Men have always gambled. The soldiers gambled for the garments of Jesus. As He died, they shot craps for the booty.

Gambling is a part of human nature. This sounds like a shocking thing for a minister to say, because gambling is associated with vice and racketeers. It has come to mean an ignoble attempt to get something for nothing, and a preying on a weakness of human nature.

Those soldiers at the cross symbolize an inherent human sickness and a perversion of a noble human impulse. Their gambling was a perversion, for the greatness of humanity lies in its irresistible impulse to risk something for unprovable goals. Every great achievement is made by men and women who dare to commit their lives and fortunes to enterprises they think worthy of their final devotion.

Everyone of us is betting on something. Each is taking his life as dice and throwing it for some prize. There is something each of us considers more important than life itself, and we are betting our lives on it.

One person bets his life that wisdom is the principle thing in life, so he spends himself to get an education. Another gambles his life that money is the greatest thing, so he gives his time and strength to get it. Another lays his life on fun. Another places his bet on power -- security.

You cannot walk down the street without taking risks. You cannot conduct a business without venture, for there is no infallible way of knowing if a policy or an investment will succeed. The farmer is a gambler, for how can he tell if the weather will destroy his crops or bring them to harvest? The Christian ministry in a sense is a gamble. I do not know that you will pay my salary or respond to my appeals. I agree with the person who says life is a gamble on whatever level you live it.

Maybe our victory over the evils of gambling can come through transforming a cheap kind of gambling into a noble kind. Wise people do not rebel against this rule, for if life had no uncertainties it could have no zest, and we would have no growth or progress.

So here is my argument today: This necessity to gamble, to take risks, to venture also holds in the higher matters of the soul.

Columbus believed he could reach the East Indies by sailing west, and he risked everything he had on that belief. He bet his life. Orville Wright bet his life that men could fly. The astronauts bet their lives that space capsules would orbit the earth.

Faith of any kind implies risks. Even science lives on the risks involved in faith. We have talked much nonsense about science dealing only with what can be proved. But every scientific theory is a leap of faith, a gamble. The so-called laws of science are generalities based on a certain number of experiments which are seldom ever final. When it comes to the ultimate nature of the universe, science like everything else has to move beyond the facts.

Now, if this law holds true in everything else, shall we risk something for our Christian faith?

Shall we live for the noisy world or for the still small voice of conscience? Shall we live for the moment or for eternity? Shall we live for the flesh or for the spirit?

Reason offers some guidance. Isn't it just as reasonable to believe that a universe which has brought forth personal life is governed by a personal God, as to believe that all creation is a galvanized spasm? Isn't it just as intelligent to judge life by the spirit of Jesus as to judge it by a devilishness that gambles at the foot of the cross.

But reason cannot prove, either by logic or scientific demonstration, that conscience is a better treasure than cash, that unselfishness is better than selfishness, that love is better than hate, that giving is better than getting. If it could, men might be good for common-sense sake.

No! we must take the risk, betting the soul against the body, the spirit against the flesh, eternity against time, goodness against evil. We are gamblers!

But there were other gamblers besides the soldiers at the crucifixion. Caiaphas and Pilate also gambled. They gambled on the faith that the sword rules, might is stronger than spirit, death is the end of a man, selfishness brings joy to the selfish. They bet that God was not looking, or if He was He did not care. They would have said: "It is a sure thing, like money in the bank. It is in the bag." They could not miss-- so they thought. But I wonder-- was there a hidden player on the other side of the board? Was the game fixed before they were born? Would you say they won?

Now let me say shockingly, yet reverently there was another gambler at Calvary. Jesus also gambled.

While the soldiers were rolling the dice for His garments, while Caiaphas and Pilate were gambling on the sword, Jesus bet his life, his soul--that love is stronger than hate, that life will conquer death, that God seeks and forgives.

He bet on love, spirit, sacrifice, unselfishness, forgiveness, goodness. He wagered His all on His Father, and I think His challenge and plea is that you and I live in the self-same venture.

There is a Christian way to gamble, and the more intense the gambling impulse, the greater the Christian potential in us.

Jesus condemned the one-talent man, not because he had only one talent but because he buried it in the earth instead of risking it in the traffic of the world.

He bade His disciples to launch out into the deep, live dangerously, stick your necks out, take a risk, take a chance, take a leap, play the long shots.

He insisted that only he who takes a chance of losing his life shall really find it. There you have an overturning of our human wisdom and logic. "Lose to Win" was His philosophy.

Let a man risk losing his life in lowly service while others clamor for name and fame. Let him risk losing his life in succoring human need while others seek self-aggrandizement.

That's the way Jesus gambled, and that's the way you and I must gamble as his followers.

Could anyone have guessed on that first Good Friday that Jesus would come back? His death was more than death. It was an oblivion of shame. But Caiaphas and Pilate are now remembered only because their victim, Jesus, is not forgotten.

They gambled and lost. He gambled and won!

You are gambling too on something -- good or bad. Are you losing or winning?

Studdert-Kennedy has given us this immortal verse:

"And sitting down they watched him there,
The soldiers did;
There while they played with dice
He made His sacrifice,
And died upon the cross to rid
God's world of sin.

He was a gambler, too, my Christ.
He took His life and threw
It for a world redeemed.
And ere His agony was done,
Before the westering sun went down,
Crowning that day with crimson crown,
He knew that He had won."

There are many definitions of religion, but one of the best I have heard was given to us by Donald Hankey who wrote: "Religion is betting your life there is a God."

When all our arguments are made and ended, If you and I would be Christians in more than name, we must bet our lives on God and Christain causes.

How are you betting? Like Caiaphas, like Pilate -- on pettiness, on position, on power, on popularity, on prestige, on property? It is an old game, and our world is still busy at it, Pilate's game --

"whose game was empires,
and whose stakes were thrones,
"whose table earth, whose dice were human bones. . ."

Oh, my friends, do not bet that money or fame or fun will bring you happiness. If you do, you will lose, for all the cards are stacked against you.

Do not bet time against eternity. Do not bet that God is not looking. Do not bet that you can keep your money forever. Do not bet that you can sin and get by with it. Do not bet there is no law of retribution. Do not bet that you can have a death-bed conversion. Do not bet there is no heaven or hell. Those who play these odds always lose.

Then how will you gamble? Like Christ? No, you cannot. There is only one Christ. But you can wager your life that His suffering, as it cleanses you, is God's pardon for your soul.

You cannot prove your faith, so stop trying it. If you could prove it, you would be compelled to believe it. Then it would become not a faith but a drab compulsion. There is just enough evidence to provoke the venture, but never enough that you are spared the hazard. If you would be a Christian in more than name, you must bet your life on God and goodness.

Let me risk something in a challenge to you. I gamble your kindly feelings toward me on your willingness to gamble a little. I am betting on your Christian devotion. I am betting on a Centenary Church. Why else would I be here?

Why can't we as a church do greater things than we are doing?

Take everything fine we are doing, attending church, participating in its activities, contributing to its financial budget, winning people to Christ, ministering to human need. Now double all that. We will doubtless be doing about half what we should be doing.

Why not take a chance on doubling everything we are doing? For instance, why not risk tithing? $1.00 a week isn't much of a risk, is it? Why not risk talking with a friend or neighbor about Christ?

As I meet visitors and come to know new people many say to me: "We intend to get started to church regularly. All we need is to get started." Let me challenge you to take the risk and get started. Faith-weather Christians are not taking much risk, are they?

Let me challenge you who are not Christians or members of the church here. You have said to yourselves, if not to others: "I think I will give my life to Christ. I think I will join that church."

I dare you now to take that risk.

Did you know that the people who gamble for high stakes on the highest and best of all levels usually make it? Though the odds be against them, though the dice be loaded, though the cards be stacked against them, they usually make it.

I read of a Doctor in a little northern town on one of the Canadian lakes, who last winter heard of an epidemic on a lonely island out in the lake. There was no doctor on that island, so he felt he must reach these needy people. But how? No boat could go through those 40 miles of ice. Perhaps an airplane would make it, but the airport was poor enough in the summer and almost impossible in the winter. Yet he persuaded a pilot to make the trip, and they made it without cracking up. Was it worth the risk? Reason could have been enlisted on the side of safety. A very plausible argument could have been advanced that there were plenty of sick people close at hand.

But a man's soul was challenged to make the venture.

He risked his neck and made it. Columbus made it. The Wright brothers made it. Lindberg made it. John Glenn, Scott Carpenter, Gordon Cooper made it. So did Jesus Christ, and so can you.

This isn't sacrilegious or profane, for it is a gambling term -- you can hit the jackpot, if you will take the risk."

Why gamble in cheap ways when there are so many noble ways to gamble?

The world waits for men and women who will still hazard their lives for the sake of Christ.

Now, my friends, I have talked to you today on gambling for Christ -- taking a risk. I wish I could tell you it is a sure thing, but that would not make it a gamble. I think it is a sure thing. The Bible indicates that it is. Millions of people have believed that it is. I am betting my life that it is. But all I can say is that thus far I have found it a sure thing, and I challenge you to take the risk. The real proof is only in the venture.

In the past ten years I have received a few more than 1700 persons into the Methodist Church. They took the risk. Evidently, they have found it a sure thing, for I have not heard of a single one of them backing out. They are "going all the way."

Now I am happy to announce that I am "receiving bets here at Centenary." In one month now ten new persons have made the venture. If you are willing to take the risk, God wants you, Centenary wants you, I want you. But it must be all or nothing. What is the word of the gambling world? "Shoot the works." "Go for broke." That's it!

But on this high level, we put it this way:

"Are ye able," said the Master
"To be crucified with me?"
"Yea," the sturdy dreamers answered
"To the death we follow Thee!"

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: I doubt that you have ever received a letter as nutty as this one. Please print your answer because I've got to understand what's going on.

I am a 16-year-old girl. My best friend is 16 also. I will call her Wendy. Last night Wendy was at my house and we were talking--just the two of us.

Suddenly she said, "How can I get bronchial pneumonia?" I asked her what in the world she wanted to get bronchial pneumonia for. She answered, "Oh I don't want to die or anything like that. I'd just like to get sick enough to go to the hospital so people will send me cards and flowers and the fellows will visit me and see me in my nightgown with my hair loose."

I was shocked at her idea of fun. Have you ever heard of anything so far out? Is Wendy crazy or what? Thanks for your help.--CAN'T DIG IT

Dear Can't Dig: Anyone who has had bronchial pneumonia will tell you it's no fun. But of course Wendy doesn't really want to be sick, she just wants the fringe benefits.

Illness is a sure-fire attention-getter. Moreover it provides a respectable excuse for not going to school or to work. Some people who fail to get attention from their day-to-day achievements conveniently get sick. You'd be surprised at the number of so-called adults who resort to this technique--often without realizing it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I own a small novelty shop. We have rented the apartment above our shop to some friends.

Last week we learned that their teen-age son has been stealing merchandise. My husband and I are upset and don't know what to do. We are reluctant to tell the boy's parents because it might end a longtime friendship.

Your counsel is badly needed. TORN

Dear Torn: Don't talk to the parents. Talk to the boy. Avoid preaching or threatening. Explain that you are deeply disappointed in him but you are confident he can straighten around and you are willing to let him prove it.

If he continues to steal after you've had the talk, then you must tell his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: For years I've been reading your column and hating you for your stand against divorce. More than once as I read your smug replies I shouted aloud, "What does SHE know about the feelings of the tortured people involved! How can SHE give such pat answers on the basis of a single letter?" Today I am singing a different tune. You were right all along.

Shad and I didn't care who we hurt. We couldn't live without each other. I thought Shad had more class than any man I'd ever known. He thought the same about me. Living together has shown us we were both wrong.

After six months we are calling it quits. Shad is going back to his former wife. She is willing to take him back because of the children. I am not so fortunate. My husband doesn't want me back. My teen-age children will have nothing to do with me because I humiliated their father and broke up two homes. All I have is my job--for as long as my health holds up.

My life is a shambles and I deserve what I'm getting. Please keep telling people they can't build a future on the ashes of destroyed marriages and broken hearts. We tried and it didn't work. -- GUILTY AS CHARGED

Dear Guilty: I plan to keep telling 'em--so long as my typewriter holds together. Now quit beating yourself and try to build a new life--somehow.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Glastonbury, England, Abbey is Site of Exciting Traditions

GLASTONBURY, England (AP) — Crumbling stone walls probe the English sky and mark the spot where some men say Christ walked.

The ruined abbey here harbors other exciting traditions. King Arthur and Queen Guenevere are said to be buried under the carpet of grass that now grows around pillars of what was a vast cathedral.

There is little doubt that Glastonbury is the oldest religious foundation in Britain. Archeological evidence indicates the presence more than 2,000 years ago of a Celtic pagan temple.

The Somerset town's early history is an irresolvable mixture of legend and fact. It starts with Joseph of Arimathea, believed to have been the Virgin Mary's uncle. He was a merchant bearing tin from Britain to Phoenicia.

Several independent south England oral tales agree in saying that when Jesus of Nazareth was a young boy, before he proclaimed himself the son of God and began his ministry, he came to Britain with Joseph and stayed briefly at Glastonbury.

It was the same Joseph who, years later, received Christ's body from the crucifixion cross and buried it in a sepulchre. Then, forced out of Palestine, Joseph returned to Glastonbury and began preaching Christianity in the year 60.

He arrived at Weary-All Hill, one of several that make up the tongue of land that projects into the marshes here. He drove his staff into the ground and local inhabitants still say it grew into a thorn tree that blossoms twice a year, at Christmas and Easter.

Joseph is reputed to have brought with him the chalice that Christ used at the Last Supper. It is said to be buried in the vicinity of what now is called Chalice Hill, near the mysterious perpetual "Blood Spring." Its water is rich in iron and leaves a red deposit on rocks, leading men through the ages to suppose that the water is tainted with blood and that it rises from the holy cup itself.

Pilgrims still worship at the shrine.

When Hugh Troy, master practical joker, was a student at Cornell, he and a friend came across a waste basket which had been fashioned from a rhinoceros hoof. With it they faked a trail of hoofprints across a snowy campus to the lake from which the university community got its drinking water. When the tracks were identified, half the people stopped using tap water and the other half reported they could taste rhinoceros in their drinks.

PUZZLED

Once I noticed a sign upon a door,
And have puzzled over it evermore:
"We buy junk. We sell antiques here."
What things in life must we hold dear?

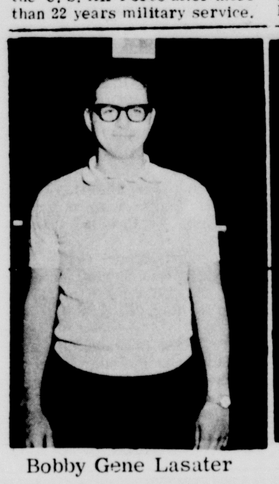

--Helen Douglas Thomas

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

In our family garden, six
wonder flowers grew;
How happy we were together,
nobody ever knew.
Working and playing together,
blossoming in God's free light;
Thinking and planning the future,
spreading their sweetness
day and night.
God plucked one of our wonderful flowers so precious and so rare
And took him to his heavenly mansion, God grant we'll meet him there.

Town clerks in Miami Springs, Fla., were startled when more than 50 residents hustled over to City Hall to pay delinquent water bills. "I never saw anything like it," one clerk reported. "They came dashing in as fast as they could, with money in their hands." It seemed the water had stopped running in their homes.

It wasn't until later that the bill payers learned a road grader had accidentally cut the main water line into Miami Springs.

After six months we are calling it quits. Shad is going back to his former wife. She is willing to take him back because of the children. I am not so fortunate. My husband doesn't want me back. My teen-age children will have nothing to do with me because I humiliated their father and broke up two homes. All I have is my job--for as long as my health holds up.

My life is a shambles and I deserve what I'm getting. Please keep telling people they can't build a future on the ashes of destroyed marriages and broken hearts. We tried and it didn't work. -- GUILTY AS CHARGED

Dear Guilty: I plan to keep telling 'em--so long as my typewriter holds together. Now quit beating yourself and try to build a new life--somehow.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Glastonbury, England, Abbey is Site of Exciting Traditions

GLASTONBURY, England (AP) — Crumbling stone walls probe the English sky and mark the spot where some men say Christ walked.

The ruined abbey here harbors other exciting traditions. King Arthur and Queen Guenevere are said to be buried under the carpet of grass that now grows around pillars of what was a vast cathedral.

There is little doubt that Glastonbury is the oldest religious foundation in Britain. Archeological evidence indicates the presence more than 2,000 years ago of a Celtic pagan temple.

The Somerset town's early history is an irresolvable mixture of legend and fact. It starts with Joseph of Arimathea, believed to have been the Virgin Mary's uncle. He was a merchant bearing tin from Britain to Phoenicia.

Several independent south England oral tales agree in saying that when Jesus of Nazareth was a young boy, before he proclaimed himself the son of God and began his ministry, he came to Britain with Joseph and stayed briefly at Glastonbury.

It was the same Joseph who, years later, received Christ's body from the crucifixion cross and buried it in a sepulchre. Then, forced out of Palestine, Joseph returned to Glastonbury and began preaching Christianity in the year 60.

He arrived at Weary-All Hill, one of several that make up the tongue of land that projects into the marshes here. He drove his staff into the ground and local inhabitants still say it grew into a thorn tree that blossoms twice a year, at Christmas and Easter.

Joseph is reputed to have brought with him the chalice that Christ used at the Last Supper. It is said to be buried in the vicinity of what now is called Chalice Hill, near the mysterious perpetual "Blood Spring." Its water is rich in iron and leaves a red deposit on rocks, leading men through the ages to suppose that the water is tainted with blood and that it rises from the holy cup itself.

Pilgrims still worship at the shrine.

When Hugh Troy, master practical joker, was a student at Cornell, he and a friend came across a waste basket which had been fashioned from a rhinoceros hoof. With it they faked a trail of hoofprints across a snowy campus to the lake from which the university community got its drinking water. When the tracks were identified, half the people stopped using tap water and the other half reported they could taste rhinoceros in their drinks.

PUZZLED

Once I noticed a sign upon a door,
And have puzzled over it evermore:
"We buy junk. We sell antiques here."
What things in life must we hold dear?

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

In our family garden, six
wonder flowers grew;
How happy we were together,
nobody ever knew.
Working and playing together,
blossoming in God's free light;
Thinking and planning the future,
spreading their sweetness
day and night.
God plucked one of our wonderful flowers so precious and so rare
And took him to his heavenly mansion, God grant we'll meet him there.

Town clerks in Miami Springs, Fla., were startled when more than 50 residents hustled over to City Hall to pay delinquent water bills. "I never saw anything like it," one clerk reported. "They came dashing in as fast as they could, with money in their hands." It seemed the water had stopped running in their homes.

It wasn't until later that the bill payers learned a road grader had accidentally cut the main water line into Miami Springs.

Mirages mock seeing believers;
To know the substance from the wraith,
Walk not by sight, but walk by faith.

"This is going to be a long, rough trip! We're carrying a spare!"

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Dec. 7, the 342nd day of 1964. There are 24 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, between 150 and 200 Japanese planes attacked Pearl Harbor. Within three minutes, the Navy had all of World War I. American casualties exceeded 4,000; of these 2,117 were killed.

On this date:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the federal constitution.

In 1842, the New York Philharmonic Society gave its first concert.

In 1916, David Lloyd George became British prime minister.

In 1941, Canada and Australia declared war on Japan.

In 1944, Washington announced that all six of the Japanese aircraft carriers which attacked at Pearl Harbor in 1941 had been sunk.

Five years ago -- A Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Kefauver ended its first week of hearings on prices and profits in the sale of drugs.

One year ago -- Four Americans were held by Bolivian miners as hostages for three labor leaders arrested by the Bolivian government.

Christmas Time is a Nervous Time for Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is the time of year the folks at the post office glance nervously at the sky for signs of snow, talk of possible transportation strikes very seriously and, above all, keep their fingers crossed.

For Christmas is exactly three weeks away.

"The peak mailing period is upon us right now," a department spokesman said today as he discussed the delicate delivery system that is designed to get your mail to you before the holiday — not after it.

The deadlines have been posted, the promotional campaign mounted — "Shop early, mail early, use zip codes" —and the trouble spots that turned up in previous years hopefully have been erased.

Now about all the Post Office Department can do is hope that all goes smoothly.

One thing it doesn't expect this time is another "Chicago bottleneck," last year's No. 1 problem.

Chicago is especially important because it is the approximate center of the country, and most east-west mail goes through it.

Last December a severe Midwestern storm and subzero temperatures slowed things up. So this year, the Windy City has on its South Side a brand new parcel post facility, inspected just Thursday by the top man himself, Postmaster Gen. John A. Gronouski. And $1 million worth of new mechanical equipment has been added.

Still, because there is no way of keeping snow from falling, "We're keeping our fingers crossed for the next three weeks," the spokesman said.

This month the Post Office Department expects to deliver 7 billion pieces of mail, 300 million more than last December. And it hopes to do it with the help of 145,000 "Christmas assistants," only 2,000 more than the 143,000 extras taken on in 1963 and less than half of the 300,000 hired the year before.

Once again the department is asking for adherence to mail deadlines.

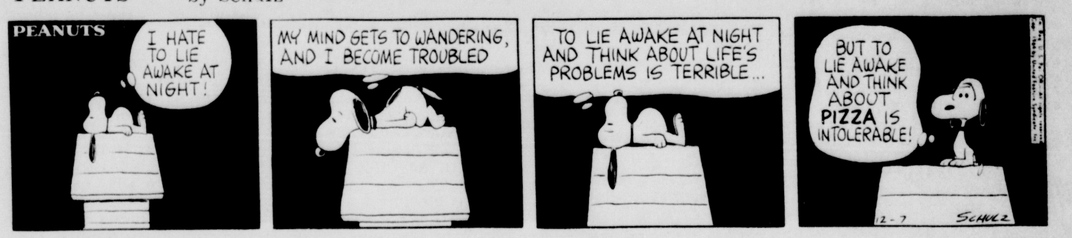

For gift parcels to distant points in the United States the deadline is Saturday, for air parcels to servicemen overseas Dec. 10 is the date, for local gift parcels it is Dec. 14, and for local greeting cards Dec. 15.

U.S. passport statistics show that 75 per cent of Americans traveling abroad visit Europe.

Soviet's Security Police Had Big Role in K Ouster

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Kremlinologists here think the publicized promotions just announced by Soviet bosses Brezhnev and Kosygin are personal payoffs to men who helped oust Khrushchev.

By this reasoning, Soviet security police (KGB) played a heavy part in the coup. Aleksandr N. Shelepin, Communist Party Secretariat member responsible for supervising the KGB, was made a full member of the ruling Presidium. V. Semichastny, chairman of the Committee for State Security and head of the KGB, was promoted to full membership on the Central Committee of the Communist party.

The security police may thus play a stronger-than-previously-predicted role in the Brezhnev-Kosygin regime.

Kremlinologists talked to here find it "striking" that no military figures were rewarded in these payoffs.

One analyst claims, rightly or wrongly, that this omission at this particular time "dispels the idea that the military played a key role" in the coup. His conclusion is now echoed by other analysts interviewed here who had previously conjectured a strong military part in Khrushchev's ouster. (But no one argues the military didn't favor the change or that military leaders on the Party Central Committee didn't vote for removing Mr. K.)

THE RECALCULATIONS SEEM TO INDICATE, indeed, that party control over the Soviet military is being strengthened. A. S. Yepishev, party watchdog over the Red armed forces, for example, was just rewarded with a full membership on the Communist Party Central Committee.

The personal-reward nature of these promotions strengthens the belief here that the coup was a personal reach for power (by individuals and groups) rather than a fight for change in policies or methods, though, of course, policy changes may result.

Kremlinologists see signs that attempts had been made for months to get Khrushchev to retire gracefully. But Khrushchev, the word goes, wouldn't retire.

THE HEAVY SPATE OF PROMOTIONS and purges expected in the next two months, it is believed, should keep the Soviet Union preoccupied internally for some time.

The Kremlinologists interviewed here think the Russians will be so busy they won't want anything to happen which will rock the boat with the West in the near future, regardless of harrassment Soviet leaders may develop later.

This reorganizing won't, of course, prevent Moscow leaders from putting out heavy packages of anti-Western propaganda.

But these public diatribes are expected to be accompanied by continued private assurances from Moscow that Brezhnev and Kosygin want better relations with the United States.

There is a growing tendency among some influential men in the State Department and Pentagon to believe those assurances.

This growing tendency to believe is being attacked strongly by other diplomats and military men as foolhardy. They cite evidence the Soviet Union continues to be a closed police state and that Red leaders consistently have broken faith with countries that believed their assurances.

Parker said the large public universities, with an increase of 11.1 per cent, are accelerating their trend toward carrying "a larger portion of the higher educational burden."

Of all full-time students, 38.5 per cent are in these public universities. Large private universities have a 7.1 per cent increase and carry 13.4 per cent of all full-time students.

Only theological schools show a decrease, 1.0 per cent.

The 1,128,863 evening and part-time students are up 7.3 per cent.

"Men are still ahead but the women continue to narrow the gap between the sexes in collegiate enrollments," Dr. Parker said. The 1,088,596 full-time women represent a gain of 10.9 per cent; the 1,724,732 full-time men, a gain of 9.6 per cent.

What kind of a tiger do you want under your hood?

(Have you priced a tiger lately?)

If you're handy with a whip and chair, you could go for the 360-hp GTO. It bites. But then, even the 335-hp GTO bites. So it all depends on how much you think you can chew. If you want a slightly more civilized package (but with all the growl and lots of the muscle of the GTO), try the LeMans. You can get it with a six or either of two V-8s. They all have magnificent interior appointments that make you feel you're languishing in luxury. Like bucket seats. And full carpeting. Yet they cost less than some very tame cats that go around trying to pass themselves off as tigers but who can't even manage the growl. How do we do it? That's our secret. See them all in captivity at your Pontiac dealer's.

What kind of a tiger do you want under your hood?
(Have you priced a tiger lately?)
If you're handy with a whip and chair, you could go for the 360-hp GTO. It bites. But then, even the 335-hp GTO bites. So it all depends on how much you think you can chew. If you want a slightly more civilized package (but with all the growl and lots of the muscle of the GTO), try the LeMans. You can get it with a six or either of two V-8s. They all have magnificent interior appointments that make you feel you're languishing in luxury. Like bucket seats. And full carpeting. Yet they cost less than some very tame cats that go around trying to pass themselves off as tigers but who can't even manage the growl. How do we do it? That's our secret. See them all in captivity at your Pontiac dealer's.
